Planned city buildings dropped

A new city administration building and a new 18th District Court are out of a Tax Increment Finance Authority plan, to be formally acted on by the city council next Monday.

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

A Westland City Council majority plans to scrap a $15 million proposal for new city administration offices and a new 18th District Court.

However, council members are supportive of a $2.1 million plan for luring Sears to Westland Center and improving Nankin Boulevard.

The consensus emerged during a Monday evening study session as the council debated a 16-year extension of the city's Tax Increment Finance Authority.

TIFA, established 10 years ago, captures a portion of tax revenues to pay for public improvements in a designated area northwest of Ford and Wayne roads.

With a vote on the amended TIFA plan looming Monday, four of seven council members told Economic Development Director Scott Veldhuis to scrap a proposal to use TIFA dollars for new city buildings.

"I wouldn't support it under any circumstances, and I would like to see it taken out of the plan entirely," Councilman Glenn Anderson said.

No specific site had been selected for city buildings.

An appointed TIFA board was expected to meet Wednesday to approve the revisions, rather than risking a council vote Monday that could also scuttle the Sears and Nankin Boulevard proposals.

Wayne County officials also opposed public tax dollars being used for Westland city buildings, although the county supported the remainder of the TIFA plan, Westland Finance Director Michael Gorman confirmed Tuesday.

City Hall is 32 years old, and district court opened 16 years ago. Administration officials had suggested the need for bigger buildings.

The latest developments mean that TIFA dollars will continue to be used for public projects for only four years, rather than 16 years. After-

Bank robbed, drugstore holdup aborted

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

Two masked bandits robbed a Westland bank at gunpoint last Thursday and escaped with an undisclosed sum of cash, a city police sergeant said.

The holdup occurred less than three hours after an aborted robbery – apparently unrelated – was reported at a Westland drugstore, Sgt. Scott Fetner said.

No one was seriously injured during either incident.

The bank robbery occurred at 11:45 a.m. Thursday when two masked bandits walked into a Comerica branch on Ann Arbor Trail east of Merriman, Fetner said.

One male suspect revealed a pistol and announced a holdup while a second man jumped over a customer counter and seized money from bank employees; he said.

No shots were fired.

The suspect who seized the money assaulted two female employees during the holdup, Fetner said. The bandit knocked one woman to the floor and brushed another across the face during the incident, witnesses told police.

"They weren't really hurt much," Fetner said.

About 15 employees and customers were inside the bank at the time.

The suspects, who wore nylon masks, escaped in a GMC Sonoma truck that was later found at Wonderland Mall in Livonia, Fetner said.

The vehicle had earlier been reported stolen in Roseville.

Federal authorities are trying to determine whether the suspects may fit the description of a pair of bandits potentially responsible for other holdups in southeast Michigan, Fetner said.

No arrests had been made Tuesday and the investigation was continuing.

The Comerica holdup occurred after a single suspect tried to rob Arbor Drugs at Palmer and Merriman, Fetner said.

That incident happened at 9:20 a.m. last Thursday when a suspect carrying a large-caliber revolver walked inside and announced a holdup, the sergeant said.

The suspect ordered several employees to gather near a safe in a rear office area, but one worker managed to leave the store's front entrance and phone the Westland Police Department, Fetner said.

The suspect apparently became fearful of being caught, and he fled the store without getting any money, Fetner said. He fired no shots.

The man was described as a 180-pound black male, approximately 5-foot-8 to 5-foot-10 in height with a medium build, Fetner said. He had a mustache and a blotch of discoloration stretching from under his right eye to his right temple, based on witnesses' reports.

The suspect wore a black baseball cap and T-shirt. He fled in what was described as a white vehicle. The first letter of the license plate was an "R," and the last two numbers were "25," Fetner said.

PLACES & FACES

Clerk honored

Westland City Clerk Diane Fritz has achieved the designation of certified municipal clerk from the International Institute of Municipal Clerks. The California-based organization noted in a press release that Fritz met IIMC's "high educational, experience and service requirements."

Fritz has been a Westland city employee for 26 years, serving as clerk typist, secretary, deputy city clerk and, since February 1978, as clerk. She attained her new certification by attending IIMC programs at Michigan State University that provide 100 hours of courses in managerial and leadership skills, social and interpersonal concerns, and technical training needed to deal with changes in government.

Fritz is involved in various professional and civic organizations, such as the Michigan Municipal Clerks Association and, the Westland Anniversary Committee and the Salvation Army Christmas in July Committee.

Pool hours changed

The Westland Bailey Center Swimming Pool will have revised hours for the last week of the summer season, starting in 11 days.

Beginning Monday, Aug. 26, and continuing through Aug. 30, the hours will be 3-7 p.m. On weekends from Aug. 31 through September, the pool and water slide will be open 3-7 p.m. Fridays and noon to 7:30 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays, said pool supervisor Debbie Lindquist.

Immunization shots

Free immunization shots will be given to Wayne-Westland school district students 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 21, at Tinkham Center, 450 S. Venoy.

The purpose is to give district pupils a chance to receive "appropriate and up-to-date immunizations" to attend school, which will open the following week. Without the required shots, students won't be allowed to enter school until parents provide proof that all the requirements are met.

For information, parents may call 595-2630.

Students go 'batty' in prepping for MEAP reading, math tests

Talking Bats to 35 children and other guest at P.D. Graham elementary school is Rob Mies, a former Westland resident and student.

His program, "The Organization for Bat Control," focuses on focus on Michigan bats and the area in which they live.

His presentation last week at P.D. Graham School was part of a two-week summer program for Graham and Schweitzer School students to enhance their reading for information skills as well as math in preparation for the upcoming Michigan Educational Assessment Program tests.

There was a slide presentation about different kinds of bats, showed three different live bats; big brown bat, hoary bat, and the red bats and showed a bat house.

This was part of the program teacher Diane Smith described as "kind of going batty over reading and math."

The summer program is just one of several focused activities the Wayne-Westland school district's curriculum department has started in recent years to improve local students' MEAP scores, particularly in reading.

Observers are changing

The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers are joining other publications across the country in making major changes in the way they do business.

That was the message Banks Dishmon Jr., Observer Newspapers' group publisher, had for the Westland Chamber of Commerce membership luncheon program Tuesday.

He cited the recent installation of new technology which speeds up the process of printing newspapers.

Dishmon said the technology has reporters and editors working with Macintosh computers.

Photographers are using new equipment to develop films in seven minutes and scanning negatives into their own computers to create images for newspaper publication.

"This is an entire new editorial system which is far different from the 1960s-vintage computer system" that is replaced and now puts the Observer Newspapers into the "space age and the future."

There is now research going on which will speed up the publishing process even more so that changes can be made onto the press room plates, said Dishmon, whose publishing group includes the Westland Observer.

What about the changes for employees during the technological changes?

"They have retrained and three accepted an early retirement," he said. "Everyone else is still working."

In the advertising department, the Observer was created "solutions selling teams," which includes the company's Specialty Publications, its phone directories and other community newspapers.

"We act like a mini-ad agency for businesses which can afford their own agency," Dishmon said. "We want to maximize your ad dollars."

In the circulation department, the newspapers have converted to a fully-paid subscription system to replace the voluntary pay plan.

ward, new tax revenues spawned by a decade of economic growth in the TIFA district will start benefiting the city, the county, Schoolcraft and Wayne County community colleges, and the SMART bus system.

Revenues captured for the next four years, alone, will amount to an estimated $7.5 million.

Council members appear ready to approve the amended TIFA plan in a 6-1 vote Monday. Councilman Charles Pickering remains vehemently opposed to it, and he has been particularly vocal against spending tax dollars to bring Sears to Westland Center.

To boost a 183,000-square-foot Sears project, the city is willing to spend $1.5 million for such costs as parking improvements, landscaping, utility relocation and site preparation.

"I don't think we should be spending tax dollars on private property," Pickering said Monday.

He also noted that the city didn't assist other projects such as a Kohl's expansion that is in progress at Westland Center.

Pickering has contended all along that Sears should pay its own way, but his colleagues aren't willing to risk a possible company decision to build elsewhere.

"We're making an investment in our tax base," Anderson said.

Anderson and other supporters fear that Westland Center will deteriorate if Sears pulls out of a plan to build an anchor store at the city's busiest retail center.

Sears representative Michael Dzaman said during Monday's study session that the company is "in the final stage" of reaching a lease agreement at Westland Center, but he stressed that the deal depends on TIFA dollars.

"The deal has not been done," he cautioned.

Council members Justine Barns and Charles "Trav" Griffin compared helping Sears to a former city plan that provided tax abatements to lure companies to Westland's industrial parks – a measure that Pickering supported.

Barns said the tax abatements benefited private enterprise.

"That business person kept those nickels in his jeans," she said.

But Pickering stood firm in his belief that the TIFA plan has achieved its purpose and should be dismantled.

Early in Monday's study session, it appeared that Anderson might join Pickering in voting against the amended TIFA plan – not because of Sears, but due to questions about whether Nankin Boulevard needs to be improved.

But Anderson's colleagues convinced him that the $600,000 project – expected in summer 1999 – would be money well-spent to avoid future road problems.

GOP convention

Local delegates enjoy 'party' confab, gear up for fall races

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

SAN DIEGO – Catching up with western Wayne County politicos at the GOP National Convention here:

Joe Fitzsimmons had some good news. His contacts at the national convention have helped swell his campaign war chest to $600,000 in his effort to unseat Democratic U.S. Rep. Lynn Rivers of Ann Arbor.

The bad news is that he figures he still needs $600,000 more to challenge the freshman lawmaker in a 13th Congressional District that twice, since reapportionment, has gone Democratic.

"I'm here to meet people, connect with people, not only from Michigan but all parts of the country," said the retired president of University Microfilms in Ann Arbor.

"I've walked 60 percent of Westland already, and I'll do Northville, Plymouth, Canton, Garden City and Wayne. My billboards are up. District polls show voters are somewhat conservative. We've had a great reception so far in part of Livonia, Garden City and Westland. At one of every three doors I knock on, I get recognition."

Carl Pursell represented much of the district until reapportionment in 1992, when he declined to seek re-election. "Carl's one of my co-chairs. We'll win it going away," said Fitzsimmons.

Canton contingent: State Sen. Loren Bennett, R-Canton, is working as deputy whip of the Michigan delegation. Terry Bennett is Canton Township clerk. It's their first convention.

He solicited advice from a much younger congressman – Dave Camp of Midland – during a poolside party for the Michigan delegation at the Holiday Inn on the Bay.

The Cornell graduate came to Ann Arbor in 1966 after Xerox bought Eugene Power's University Microfilms. Fitzsimmons was president of the division from 1976 to June of 1995, pushing up sales to $200 million and jobs from 300 to 1,300.

Canton contingent

His platform: "I'm pro education."

He's working. She's learning.

He's state Sen. Loren Bennett, R-Canton. "Betsy DeVos (party chair) asked me to be a deputy whip of the delegation. I had a meeting on what our role is going to be," said Bennett, a delegate to the GOP national convention.

"There are 11 of us responsible for 57 delegates and 57 alternates."

Now, a political "whip" isn't like a plantation whip wielded by a boss. "A lot of it is communication and rumor control. Then I poll the delegation and report it back to Betsy."

Terry Bennett, who succeeded her husband as township clerk after 22 years of teaching, had a different destination mid-Monday: the Ronald Reagan Library. "It has presidential memorabilia, papers, historical stuff. It's a quick plane trip," she said.

The Bennetts have been to several presidential libraries, including Gerald Ford's in Grand Rapids and Herbert Hoover's in West Branch, Iowa.

It's their first national convention. Mrs. Bennett didn't attend, even when she was chair of the old 15th Congressional District organization. "It doesn't get any better for political junkies," she said of the San Diego conclave.

Even though he's working this week and she's learning, they're still a team. "I spent a year and a half walking for Loren's Senate race. We knocked on 38,000 doors," she said.

"Then he said we have to find someone to run for township clerk. He said, 'You do it.' And she did.

Donnelly pleased

A long-time Livonia activist, Elaine Donnelly, sticks pretty much to the national scene these days.

Her title: president, Center for Military Readiness.

Her goal: "an end to social experimentation and political correctness in the military."

Her activity: watchdogging the platforms of both major parties.

"I didn't get to testify on the Republican platform because they didn't hold hearings," she said in a street corner interview. But she was well satisfied the GOP plank on defense.

Its pledges: no deployment of American troops under international command, defenses against ballistic missiles, "elect a Republican president who has been on active duty (and) will not casually disrupt military family life by sending troops on non-military missions around the world."

And of course the continued "exemption of women from ground combat units." That was the position she took while serving on President George Bush's commission on women in the military.

She and husband Terry are staying at the home of a retired three-star general for the week.

Local CEO is delegate

David Brandon grew up as the son of a four-term Salem Township supervisor. Now he's politically active in a big way – delegate to the national convention and fund-raiser for the state Republican Party and its congressional candidates.

"I was a guest at the New Orleans convention (1988), but this is my first time as a delegate and the first convention for my wife, Jan," Brandon said, after a Monday morning Michigan delegation breakfast.

"So far it has been lots of partying, but now we get to work. I'm a liaison for the governor to congressional candidates."

Brandon grew up with a triple identity: home in Salem, high school in South Lyon, Plymouth mailing address.

President and CEO of Vlassis, Inc., printer of advertising inserts in Livonia – "and one of the top 100 companies to work for in America" – Brandon and his wife live in Plymouth Township, where he has been increasingly active in GOP politics.

"I'm state finance chair. That means fund-raising," said the 13th Congressional District delegate. On Aug. 6 Jan won a precinct delegate post, too.

National presidential nominating conventions, as such, are an anachronism. Bob Dole sealed the presidential nomination last March by winning primaries and caucuses. He handpicked his running mate, Jack Kemp, two days before the conclave commenced.

But the four-day convention – six, when you count the weekend before – brings together needy congressional candidates like Susy Heintz to meet major donors and interest groups who may want to help them. The party also showcases the hopefuls with a couple of minutes at the convention podium.

Heintz, Romney address delegates

SAN DIEGO _ Folks in Michigan missed it on network television, but a couple of familiar voices addressed the Republican National Convention here Monday.

Ronna Romney, Bloomfield Hills party worker and U.S. Senate nominee, and Susy Heintz, former Northville, Novi and Birmingham resident now running for Congress in Macomb County, had a few minutes apiece in the sun at mid-day (Pacific time) before a sparsely-filled convention hall.

"Lots of fund-raising," Romney answered when asked what she was doing at the conclave. "Women don't usually have the network to raise money.

"They let me speak at the convention. We had to submit our text last Friday. Then I had to practice with a Teleprompter. I had never used a Teleprompter," said the former GOP national committeewoman and veteran radio broadcaster.

"I've been at events," said Heintz, a former Wayne County commissioner, chief of Gov. Engler's Detroit office and state party chair. "We heard Newt (Speaker Newt Gingrich) at GOPAC, the Susan B. Anthony group, RENEW.

"Sometimes they just introduce me. A lot of it is one-on-one with women's organizations. They want to know what I stand for," said the pro-life candidate.

In case you watched TV and still missed them, here are excerpts.

Romney, at 1:57 p.m.: "Growing up in a working-class neighborhood in Detroit, I learned the importance of neighbors helping neighbors for the common good. I have listened to the voices of the voiceless. . .

"For far too long, Bill Clinton, (incumbent Sen.) Carl Levin and the Democratic Party have promoted an agenda that taxes families beyond their means. . .

"The fundamental values that have made our nation great: personal responsibility, the work ethic, strong families, love of God. These are American values. . .

"As a woman blessed with five wonderful children, and driven by the responsibility to ensure that their generation has a chance at the American dream, I say let the debate begin."

Heintz at 11:55 a.m.: "I bring you greetings from the tax-cutting state of Michigan.

"Just last week I won my primary election and the high privilege of representing the Republican party in our campaign to unseat liberal Democrat whip David Bonior in November. . .

"I was also thrilled when Bob Dole threw down the gauntlet before Bill Clinton with a plan for tax cuts. This is going to be great for me. . . In my primary, I ran on the platform that the top three problems facing families in Michigan's 10th Congressional District are taxes, taxes and taxes.

"(With) the backing of Gov. John Engler, America's tax-cutting champion, I was chosen to take on America's tax-raising champion, David Bonior. . ."

Heintz's successor in the governor's Detroit office, Anne Mervenne, played a "floating" game at the convention.

"Yesterday, the Republican Governors' Association needed help with their office, and I went there. The governor has an office here, and I'm answering the phone," said the Birmingham native.

Rouge friendly

Program shows business how to help river

BY BETH SUNDRLA JACHMAN
STAFF WRITER

Wayne County has begun a Rouge Friendly Business Program to teach businesses how to help the Rouge River.

The Observer Newspapers Inc. has agreed to be part of the pilot program, which encompasses a section of Livonia bounded by Levan, Stark, the Jeffries Freeway and the railroad tracks.

The Observer's publishing plant, at the southeast corner of I-96 and Levan, underwent a site inspection this week. Several Observer managers, Jim Jimmerson, director of manufacturing; Mark Vines, press and mail supervisor; and George Harper, building services manager; attended an explanatory session Monday presented by the Rouge Program Office.

As part of the federally funded National Wet Weather Demonstration Project, programs are being developed for businesses and residents to tackle the problem of non-point source pollution, or pollution coming from sources that can't be pinpointed. This is part of the effort to comply with the Clean Water Act.

Water quality monitoring in the Rouge was completed last year and will be conducted again after the public education program to check for improvement, Karen G. Reaume, senior scientist with the Rouge Program Office, said.

The city of Livonia has also agreed to help by doing street sweeping and cleaning catch basins in the pilot area.

Harper was surprised to learn that water going in to catch basins isn't going to a Detroit treatment plant.

"Any runoff from parking lots really goes to the Rouge River," Reaume said.

That's a message Rouge experts hope to get to businesses and residents alike: Most western Wayne County communities have separated sewers and pouring wastes into the storm drain sends them into the river.

Wayne County is also conducting a Clean Neighborhood Program to get residents into the act.

"If everyone makes a little change, we can probably make a big impact," Reaume said.

Livonia Mayor Jack Kirksey sent a letter to all the businesses in the pilot area. The Observer Newspapers was the first to volunteer and underwent the first site visit.

"Definitely we want to hear any observations or recommendations," Jimmerson said. "We want to work with it, and we want to do what should be done."

The Observer got good marks during the site visit. Reaume suggested employees stack all empty containers that are stored outside, on their sides, rather than standing up. A number of empty photo developer and floor wax containers were stacked on their sides, while some were left standing upright.

Rainwater can collect in the tops of those standing upright and that could result in chemical residues being washed into the Rouge River, Reaume said.

The containers will be stacked on their sides from now on, Harper said.

Other changes the Observer had already made were praised

Phone customers to get rate hike

■ In Livonia, Westland, Garden City, Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Canton Township, Ameritech customers with Call 50 will see a $1 increase per month in their basic phone bills, from $10.40 to $11.40.

Ameritech is making some adjustments in its rate structure and that will add up to rate increases in many western Wayne County communities and a late fee for overdue bills.

Customers in Redford Township, however, will either see a rate decrease or no change, along with Detroit, Royal Oak and Southfield.

"We need to eliminate the 60-year-old subsidies of the past if customers are to benefit from true competition in the future," Bob Cooper, president of Ameritech Michigan, said in a press release. The proposed rates will go to the Michigan Public Service Commission, and are expected to become effective in mid-November.

In Livonia, Westland, Garden City, Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Canton Township, Ameritech customers with Call 50 will see a $1 increase per month in their basic phone bills, from $10.40 to $11.40. Call 50 is a program in which customers receive a set rate if they make no more than 50 local calls a month. Calls above 50 cost an extra 6.2 cents a minute.

Call 400 customers in Livonia, Garden City and most of Westland will see a 15-cent a month increase from $13.25 to $13.40. Call 400 customers have a set rate for 400 local calls a month, with a 6.2 cents a minute charge for calls beyond the 400 limit.

Call 400 customers in Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Canton Township and part of Westland, north of Warren Road and west of Newburgh Road, will see a 60-cent increase from $12.80 a month to $13.40 a month.

In Redford Township, Call 400 plan members will see a 25-cent a month decrease, from $13.25 a month to $13, while Call 50 plan members will see no change at $10 a month.

Western Wayne County's increases aren't as steep as some out-state Michigan areas in which customers in both the Call 50 and Call 400 plans will see $1.25 increases a month.

Michigan has a web of subsidies that have some customers paying more than their fair share, according to Ameritech. That stems from a practice of having urban areas pay more to keep phone service in rural areas from being cost-prohibitive, according to Sara Snyder, Ameritech spokeswoman.

It is changing now because the Michigan Telecommunications Act calls for Ameritech to set costs in preparation for competition in the local telephone service, Snyder said.

A couple more rate changes will probably be announced in the future, Cooper said.

Other adjustments include:

• Late payments charges for residential customers. Ameritech will assess a 1.5 percent per month late charge on unpaid balances in an effort to encourage timely payment of bills. "We're among the last to do this," Snyder said.

• Restructuring of Centrex rates. Centrex offers phone services such as voice mail and call waiting for businesses out of Ameritech offices. Business customers with month-to-month contracts for Centrex service will see average increases of $2.76 per line.

Current Centrex prices will be grandfathered for customers with contracts. A new pricing plan will be available with discounts up to 25 percent based on volume and term length.

• Increase in one-time charge for business lines. The line-connection charge for business lines will increase from $42 to $50. In addition, the service charge for miscellaneous activity, such as changing account billing information or directory listings, will increase to $13 from $8.35.

Delegate Ragan likes choice of Jack Kemp

SAN DIEGO – Steve Ragan is getting a "reward" that cost him plenty.

"To some people, going to a national convention is a reward for their involvement, though it's hard to consider it a reward to spend $3,000. And with all the social functions, you forget what the convention is for," said Ragan, who has been politically active since he started a Teen Age Republican Club in Plymouth Canton High School.

"I was elected to the Schoolcraft College board a year out of college. At 25, I was the youngest chair of the board (in the community college's 31-year history).

"This is my first national convention. Even though I'm an alternate (from the 13th Congressional District), it allows me to participate and gives opportunities for people to gather."

Ragan greeted Plymouth Township resident Abe Munfakh and his wife Darlene at a beach party hosted by state Senate majority leader Dick Posthumus at the Hotel del Coronado.

Casually-dressed Gov. John Engler, Sen. Spencer Abraham and Secretary of State Candice Miller schmoozed with delegates, alternates and guests.

"Excellent," Ragan said of presidential nominee Bob Dole's choice of Jack Kemp as his running mate.

"Kemp has very strong ties to Michigan. He did well here in '88 (seeking the presidential nomination against George Bush). It's exciting to see him on the ticket. If there's not some bounce at this convention ...

"The Buchanan 'cultural war' ('92 speech) did not set well," said Ragan, a Plymouth resident who recently moved from Eastern Michigan University to a capital fund-raising post for St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor.

Recognition sticker identifies Rouge-friendly businesses

Businesses targeted in the Rouge Friendly Business Program include vehicle service, construction, food and metal finishing.

They will be asked to complete an assessment form, will receive information on best management practices and undergo a site visit. Once improvements are made, a second site visit will be made.

Those that have made improvements will gain the Rouge Friendly Business designation, which includes a recognition program and a logo to put in the window featuring the program mascot "SnoopaSaurus."

After the program is implemented in the pilot area and any bugs worked out, it will then be implemented throughout the Rouge River watershed, which extends through Wayne County and into Oakland and Washtenaw counties.

Auto service businesses are being recruited throughout the watershed to help with the program, and they in turn could help educate the general public by offering brochures with pollution prevention information, according to Noel Mullett Jr., Rouge Project technical coordinator.

Neighborhoods are also part of the neighborhood pilot program, one in Dearborn Heights, one in Detroit and possibly one in West Bloomfield.

The Rouge Program Office is developing the materials and initiating the program, which may eventually be taken over by the county or local municipalities or a combination of the two.

"We're really trying to develop a partnership between the county, local government and business," Mullett said.

Some information included in the program manual for businesses includes:

• Storm water runoff is the excess water that flows over land during and after a rainfall or snow melt. As water flows over the land, it picks up and carries materials that impact water quality, such as leaves, litter, excess fertilizer, animal droppings, exposed soil and oil and grease from parking lots and streets.

• The Rouge River watershed consists of land and waterways that drain into the Rouge River.

• Storm water runs directly into the river. Whatever is washed down a storm drain eventually reaches the Rouge River and the Great Lakes without treatment.

• It is illegal to dump chemicals or other pollutants down a storm drain.

Also you may be polluting if you:

• Rinse wash water down a storm drain;

• Spill materials or wastes in your parking lot or driveways without cleaning them up;

• Allow materials or wastes stored outside to leak.

by Reaume. Years ago the company had underground tanks, but they were removed, Jimmerson said. "We're in the newspaper business," he said. The responsibility to keep up the containers belongs to someone who is in the business, he said, adding Observer vehicle fueling and maintenance are now being done off-site.

The Observer was praised for having a roof overhang over the loading dock, which helps prevent storm water runoff.

Managers at the Observer were urged to have a collapsed catch basin on the west side of the building repaired, which Jimmerson said is planned.

Reaume also suggested evaluating all floor drains inside the building. "Know where all the drains go," she said.

"Ask yourself if you have a flood-drain why you need it," she said. If drums of ink or chemicals are stored near a drain, have a contingency plan in case of a spill, she said.

The drains have been reviewed by the city of Livonia, but possibly an update is needed since the traditional darkroom has gone out of use and the drains there could be sealed up, Jimmerson said.

The Rouge Program Office is working on refining the program materials and making changes during the pilot program. "If it's not practical people aren't going to do it. If it's too costly people aren't going to do it," Reaume said.

Back To School - The Forgotten School Supply

Your child struggled through school all last year. The teacher suggested A.D.D. You hope and yearn for a better year this year.

It's frustrating, for parent and child. We worry. We plan a fresh start. We. . .check their vision???

20/20 sight simply means the child can focus 20 feet away. But what about up close, which he does in school all day? What about seeing double, losing focus after a few seconds, not being able to move your focus from far to near, the board to the book?

Dr. John P. Jacobi, a specialist in vision related learning problems, has tested hundreds of children who have learning difficulties, including A.D.D. He has discovered that most of them have undiagnosed vision problems.

Most passed their school screenings. "That test is very basic," says Dr. Jacobi. "Vision skills, though rarely tested, are a must for any child at risk."

Parents agree. "Tommy was really struggling in school, having excessive homework and seemed frustrated most of the time. Tommy has really worked hard and the improvement is unbelievable! The amount of homework he brings home has drastically reduced and he sets and does it without getting frustrated. Tommy's teacher has said she has never seen as big an improvement in a student in so short a time as she's seen in Tommy. She said he seems happier and is able to work without squirming. I think Tommy feels better about himself because he's able to get his work done just like the others in his class. I would recommend this program to anyone having the problems Tommy was having. It really works!", says a Redford Parent.

Testing goes far beyond even the most comprehensive eye exams. "In addition to addressing focus and double vision, we will test and treat visual learning problems such as visual memory, eye hand coordination, and reading comprehension," shares Dr. Jacobi.

If your child has these symptoms, call his office for an appointment for a screening, at no charge, at (313) 525-8170.

- easily distracted, cannot sit still or finish a task
- headaches and fatigue after school
- works slowly, brings work home to finish
- tilts the head or gets too close to study
- avoids reading and paperwork
- poor memory and poor spelling
- letter reversals
- poor handwriting, but may draw well

Body found in pond at apartment site

Westland police are investigating whether a man – found floating Monday in a pond at The Landings apartments – was killed or died accidentally while swimming.

A medical examiner has ruled that the man drowned, but Westland police Sgt. Scott Fetner said he is still trying to determine whether the drowning was accidental or whether foul play is suspected.

Fetner identified the man as Jose Gonzalez Torres Martin, a 34-year-old native of Mexico who had been working in the area for an Illinois cable company contracted by Ameritech.

Martin had been living at Hunter's West apartments on Yale with his father, who identified the body, Fetner said.

Martin's body was spotted shortly after 10:30 a.m. Monday by a resident of The Landings, an apartment complex on the south side of Warren Road between Wayne and Newburgh.

Westland firefighters pulled the body from a pond in the southwest corner of the complex, not far from Hunter and Central City Parkway, Assistant Fire Chief George Riley said.

■ Fetner identified the man as Jose Gonzales Torres Martin, a 34-year-old native of Mexico who had been working in the area for an Illinois cable company contracted by Ameritech.

The man is believed to have been dead for several hours, Riley said.

Police are investigating a possible lead that the man may have earlier attended a party at The Landings, Fetner said.

He apparently had been involved in an altercation, Fetner said, but an investigation is continuing into whether he died accidentally or was killed.

It didn't appear as though Martin had been beaten, Fetner said. "There were no signs of trauma."

However, Fetner has been interviewing witnesses in hopes of determing exactly how Martin died.

Wheelchairs available through Civitan Club

People who need wheelchairs for a short- or long-term basis can get help from the Westland Civitan Club.

Sam Corrado, a community activist who helped raise money for the four new wheelchairs, presented two of the wheelchairs Tuesday to Civitan officers at the Westland Chamber of Commerce luncheon program.

The equipment will be made available without charge to eligible people for as long as they need it, said Suzanne Turnauer, Civitan president-elect who will assume her duties Oct. 1.

Turnauer and Civitan President Barbara Polich accepted the wheelchairs at the chamber program and thanked Corrado, Realtor Charles Pickering and the Westland Jaycees, represented by Michael Kehrer, who also works for the real estate office.

The Jaycees and Pickering donated $1,000 for the wheelchairs with Corrado paying the other remaining $100.

The Civitan Club was picked to receive the equipment because of its ongoing support of the Special Olympics athletic competition for handicapped people and its access to people who would need the wheelchairs.

Also on hand for the presentation were George and Mary Marvaso, owners of the Electric Stick billiard business, who hosted a national wheelchair billiard tournament several months ago.

Marvaso told the estimated 75 people at the chamber program that the winners of the U.S. and European wheelchair tournaments will compete against each other next year at the Westland billiard hall, on Wayne Road at Hunter.

Those interested in using the wheelchairs may contact Polich at 729-4941.

Day to emphasize family safety, fun

Bicycle safety, fire safety and family fun are on the agenda for Family Safety Day from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 24, at Livonia Community Credit Union, 15420 Farmington Road in Livonia.

Livonia fire and police representatives will talk with residents about fire and bicycle safety. Vehicles from their departments will be on display.

Representatives of the DARE program will provide free children's identification kits to parents.

Sponsored by the Livonia Community Credit Union and Allstate Insurance, Family Safety Day is open to all and will be held on property adjacent to the credit union's parking lot.

There will be free hot dogs, pop corn and soft drinks as well as drawings during the event for bicycles, bike helmets, and smoke detectors.

Park backers release election finance report

■ COUNTY NEWS

People for Parks, organized this year to support the Wayne County parks millage, raised $69,187 and spent $41,145.05 for its campaign.

Although Observer area residents turned down the parks millage, voters countywide approved Proposition P, a quarter-mill tax increase Aug. 6 to fund parks improvements, staffing and maintenance for five years.

Taxes will increase 25 cents per $1,000 state equalized valuation. To the owner of a $100,000 house, which is taxed at half the value or $50,000, the increase will be $12.50 a year.

Donations to the organization were received from area businesses, including some that have contracts with Wayne County, and the Friends of Wayne County.

According to a pre-primary election report filed with the Wayne County Elections Bureau on July 25, People for Parks received $4,437 from Friends of Wayne County; $3,000 from Mary Jo Knittel, controller of Southridge Construction of Redford; $2,500 from the Farbman Group of Southfield; $2,500 from Sisters of St. Joseph in Ann Arbor; $1,000 from W.F. Miller Co. of Novi, $2,500 from Camp, Dresser, McKee of Detroit; $10,000 from Smith Hinchman & Grylis of Detroit; $500 from Hamilton Anderson of Detroit, $500 from Torre & Bruglio of Pontiac; $1,000 from NTH Consultants of Farmington Hills; $500 from Ric-man Construction of Sterling Heights; $10,000 from Edward C. Levy Company of Dearborn; $3,000 from DeAngelis Landscape of Woodhaven; $3,000 from Wade-Trim Associates; $10,000 from Chrysler; $2,000 from ECT of Gainesville, Fla., $5,000 from Standard Federal of Troy; $1,500 from Guardian Industries; $5,000 from Turner Construction of Detroit and $750 from Glenda Forster, secretary of Play Environments Inc. of Holland.

Several of these companies have had contracts with the county approved by the Wayne County Commission in recent months.

In February, DeAngelis Landscaping Co. of Woodhaven won a $6.4 million contract to construct the county's Inkster Valley Golf Course and two related wetland projects in the Lower Rouge Parkway. In December 1995, DeAngelis won approval of a $72,189 contract for tree planting services on Moross Road, Mound Road and Dix Avenue.

NTH Consultants received approval of a contract in February for $115,500 to provide engineering services in connection with the Middle Rouge Parkway interceptor extension sewer repair on Ford Road, under and west of the Southfield Freeway.

Wade-Trim Associates Inc. received contract approval in February for $289,575 to provide professional engineering services for the Sexton-Kilfoil Drain Drainage District improvement project and one in May for $689,979 to provide engineering services in connection with the North Huron Valley/Rouge Valley Wastewater Control System Project.

W.F. Miller of Novi won a $78,034 contract, approved in June, to provide for Kut-Kwick mower parts for the Department of Public Services, Stores Control Division for a one-year period with a one-year renewal option.

People for Parks, which filed its organization form in June 3, 1996, had expenditures including $22,079 to Inland Press of Detroit for the printing of a parks brochure; $15,900 to American Mailer of Detroit for mailing the brochure; and $3,015.93 to Practical Political Consulting of East Lansing for registered voters mailing labels.

Animal birthing exhibit will be open daily at state fair

■ The "Miracle of Life," exhibit gives fairgoers the opportunity to witness the animal birthing process.

The squeal of piglets, the cheeping of chicks and the baaing of newborn sheep will echo through the Michigan State Fair again this year.

For the fourth year in a row, the Michigan State University College of Veterinary Medicine is presenting the "Miracle of Life," a state fair exhibit that gives fairgoers the opportunity to witness the animal birthing process.

Staffed by veterinarians and veterinary students from MSU's College of Veterinary Medicine, the exhibit is open Aug. 20 through Sept. 2 at the State Fairgrounds in Detroit. Exhibit hours are 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

More than 100 animals, including cows, pigs, sheep and chickens, will be part of the exhibit, which has grown into one of the more popular attractions at the fair. Last year, thousands of people witnessed the births of 86 calves, lambs, and piglets and more than 300 chicks.

"It's an educational exhibit," said Michelle Kopcha, MSU veterinarian and exhibit coordinator. "It also allows us to showcase the role of the veterinarian in the birthing process, while giving our veterinary students a chance to explain the process, care and management of livestock to the public."

The exhibit, occupying more than 14,000 square feet of space, includes a birthing pen for cows, sheep and pigs, a chicken hatchery, a photo exhibit stage and a video theater.

The exhibit is staffed 24 hours a day by at least two MSU veterinary students, who monitor and care for the animals. An MSU veterinarian is also on site to supervise the students.

"Student participation is vital to the exhibit," Kopcha said. "These soon-to-graduate veterinarians are extremely enthusiastic about their chosen profession and are very willing to share their knowledge with the public."

The exhibit is sponsored by Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan and the Michigan Farm Bureau.

Delegates: Powell's handling of pro-choice issue was just right

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

SAN DIEGO – Michigan Republicans say Gen. Colin Powell unified the entire GOP by raising the toughest issue – his pro-choice stand on abortion – and then getting it out of the way.

"He said it and moved on," said Oakland County Republican chair Cathy Longo of Troy. "We knew someone would have to deliver that message."

"There was some booing when he said he was pro-choice," said Wayne County GOP chair Edward Haroutunian. "But what you heard was that we are a party that's big enough that we can disagree. The entire body got up."

Powell, who chose against being a presidential contender, closed Monday's program before a pro-life party by mentioning what several big-state governors like Pete Wilson of California and William Weld of Massachusetts had been prevented from saying: A significant minority of the GOP is either pro-choice or doesn't want abortion to be a litmus test issue.

"Powell was courageous," said Steve Ragan, 13th District delegate from Plymouth Township. "There was a small scattering of boos for a woman's right to choose. I sat next to Sen. (Loren) Bennett, who is conservative, and he applauded. I was surprised. The mood is not as intolerant as expected.

■ 'He answered the questions people still have. It (abortion) is only one issue. To focus on one issue is wrong.'

Abe Munfakh
Plymouth Township

"It's good those issues come up now and we get them out of the way," said Nanig Manoukian, at-large delegate for Buchanan from West Bloomfield.

"Certainly we're conservative, but there's room for differences," said her alternate, husband Berj Manoukian. "There are extremes on both sides.

"Wonderful!" said Peg Sippola, an 11th District delegate from Livonia. "I've never heard him talk that way before." Husband Art agreed: "There were a few boos, then it (the audience) went 'yeah!' Yesterday was upbeat."

"Great," said Troy mayor pro-tem Bob Gosselin. A 12th District Buchanan delegate, Gosselin visibly shrugged when he said, "He's pro-choice."

"He talked unity and togetherness; stability," said U.S. Rep. Dick Chrysler of Brighton. "We're a big tent party. We want to reach everybody. The Democrats would kill to have Powell. He chose the Republican Party."

"This party goes from Buchanan to Powell," said Joe Fitzsimmons, Ann Arborite who is the nominee in the 13th Congressional District. "The divisions are under control. We are united."

"Uplifting," said Jim Willoughby, retired Ford employee from Bloomfield Township who drives to every convention. "I happen to be pro-choice. I don't think the government should be in it at all. That (Powell's reference to being pro-choice) didn't turn me off any more than the stuff Ralph Reed (director of the Christian Coalition) comes up with."

"He answered the questions people still have," said Abe Munfakh, Plymouth Township resident and convention guest. "It (abortion) is only one issue. To focus on one issue is wrong."

U.S. Sen. Spencer Abraham bashed media types who say the GOP is divided. "In one night, we put that to rest."

Word spread that Secretary of State Candice Miller was told by presidential nominee Bob Dole that Powell may be available to stump for him in Michigan. The unanimous reaction: Good news.

Wayne County celebrates its 200th birthday with party

Today, Thursday, Aug. 15, is Wayne County's 200th birthday.

To celebrate, Wayne County is giving itself a birthday party, and the public is invited.

The party will begin at 1 p.m. and will be held outside in front of the Wayne County Building on the steps and street at the Randolph entrance.

The festivities will include a flag ceremony, music and balloons. Children from area day care centers will sing "Happy Birthday" and help elected officials blow out the candles on the cake.

Eight birthday cakes from bakeries throughout Wayne County will be featured. Each cake will be decorated in a birthday motif reflecting the county's bicentennial birthday and the centennial of the automobile.

Wayne County was named on Aug. 15, 1796 by acting Gov. Winthrop Sargent in honor of Gen. Anthony Wayne, commander of the American forces in the Northwest Territory.

Convention couples find political ties also bind

Joe Knollenberg, R-Bloomfield Hills, at a Hotel del Coronado beach party sponsored by Senate Majority Leader Dick Posthumus.*

SAN DIEGO – Two area couples are elated that Jack Kemp will be GOP presidential nominee Bob Dole's running mate in the fall campaign.

Berj and Nanig Manoukian of West Bloomfield are the only husband-wife team among Michigan's 57 delegates and 57 alternates to the four-day convention here.

"This is my first time as a delegate," said Peg Sippola, Livonia resident and 11th Congressional District delegate, "but Art was a Kemp delegate (in 1992). Kemp is great. I still wanted John (Engler), but Kemp is wonderful."

Added husband Art, who is retired from Comerica Bank: "I heard him do the economic platform in '80 for Reagan. He made a lot of sense to me."

Mrs. Manoukian, an at-large delegate like the governor and U.S. Sen. Spencer Abraham, is attending her third national convention, the others being in 1984 and 1992. Her husband is an at-large alternate, like House Speaker Paul Hillegonds.

"We were for Buchanan," Mrs. Manoukian said. "We (Buchanan supporters) were allowed seven of the nine at-large posts. They (the Buchanan campaign) chose us."

■ 'This is my first time as a delegate, "but Art was a Kemp delegate (in 1992). Kemp is great. I still wanted John (Engler), but Kemp is wonderful.'

Peg Sippola
delegate

"I started with Barry Goldwater in 1964," said Berj Manoukian, a Ford Motor Co. manager. "We were looked at as kinda funny and extreme back then. I look at myself as mainstream at this point.

"I've been a precinct delegate for 20 years (in Farmington Hills and now West Bloomfield), but never a national convention delegate or alternate," he said.

Manoukian agrees with the Sippolas that Kemp "will energize this campaign." Mrs. Manoukian, a Kemp supporter in 1988, also was "very happy. I thought I wasn't going home enthusiastically, but now I am. I've met Kemp several times."

Unlike first lady Michelle Engler, a pro-choice Texas Democrat when she married John in 1990, the Manoukians, married for 40 years, see eye-to-eye on nearly everything political.

"We debate things and develop a consensus," said Berj.

"We vote almost identically each time," said Nanig.

The Sippolas, veterans of 38 years of marriage, are just about as close politically. Art was a Kemp supporter in 1992, and recently he has worked for Wayne County Commissioner Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia. Peg is active for state Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Redford, and worked in the 1994 congressional campaign of John Schall.

Neither has sought public office in Livonia or wants to. "No way," said Art. "We had a family to raise and an occupation."

Art noticed one major change in convention procedure since he first attended in 1980. "The media are demanding shorter speeches to keep the attention of viewers. The long speeches have been eliminated," he said.

The Manoukians and the Sippolas gathered at sunset Sunday with U.S. Rep. Joe Knollenberg, R-Bloomfield Hills, at a Hotel del Coronado beach party sponsored by Senate Majority Leader Dick Posthumus. Press photographers and snapshooters took many pictures in front of the steel drum bandstand.

Schmoozing with delegates and guests were Gov. Engler, Sen. Abraham, Secretary of State Candice Miller, nine of the 22 Republican state senators, several members of Congress, State Chamber President Jim Barrett, Michigan Insurance Federation President Doug Cruce and others.

The four-day national convention was almost unnecessary because Dole wrapped up the nomination after Michigan's March 16 primary, and tapped Kemp as his running mate two days before the festivities started.

But Bob Wyatt, an 11th District alternate from Novi, said it was still valuable. "You meet people from different parts of the state. It's nice to get to know them. You see them at state conventions (a Friday night and Saturday), but you never get to know them."

Long train ride helps Young Republicans rally support

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

SAN DIEGO – Those demonstrations on the floor of the Republican National Convention weren't entirely spontaneous.

But the enthusiasm was real. They were conducted by Young Republican Club members like Mark Gunn, 34, of Troy.

"We volunteers do the youth rallies on the floor. We've made a lot of appearances," said Gunn, president of both the Michigan Federation and Oakland County Young Republicans.

Local YRs in the entourage include Marty Kaltenbach of Livonia, Craig Guvva and Erika Davert of Birmingham, and Janet Jensen of Farmington Hills.

"We started in Chicago and had a 44-hour train ride to San Diego," said Gunn. "We had rallies in cities and at train stops and ended up with 200 people (including nine from Michigan).

"We're looking at young people as a swing vote. We want to take back the youth from Clinton. The Republican Party is the future."

Will it be easier now that Jack Kemp will be on the ticket? "It sure will," Gunn said.

"We'd stop at Topeka, Albuquerque, lots of towns. Even at 2:45 in the morning, people would greet us. At one place at 7 a.m., three people were out with Dole signs. We had rallies on the train. We had ABC News, Newsweek, the Boston Globe and MTV with us.

"We arrived Saturday at 1 p.m. and had a huge rally at the train station. Fifty or 60 people were on hand to greet us. It seems like 250 of us were out there."

Gunn owns a franchise company called Pasta to Go, with stores in Michigan, Wisconsin and Texas. He has been active in the party six years.

Hardee's 'Cool Cause' will aid annual MDA telethon

Hardee's Restaurants of greater Detroit have established the fund-raising campaign, "Hardee's Cool Cause," to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

The event will take place the weekend of Aug. 24 and 25 at local Hardee's Restaurants.

This is Hardee's second year as a national sponsor for the MDA. WLTI-FM is the media sponsor of this year's event.

Hardee's will sell its vanilla frozen yogurt cones for 50 cents. The entire cost of the cone will be donated to MDA for use in carrying on its fight against 40 neuromuscular disorders.

These contributions will be designated for basic and applied research, a program of medical services for patients and their families, and professional and public education. There will also be canisters in the store for those wishing to make cash donations.

Representatives from Hardee's and WLTI-FM will make the check presentation for the monies collected. The presentation will be televised during the Jerry Lewis MDA telethon, at 11 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 1.

OPINION

16A(W) 36251 SCHOOLCRAFT, LIVONIA, MICHIGAN 48150 THURSDAY, AUGUST 15, 1996

Tax defeat

Millage rejection predictable

The voters have spoken.

They rejected by more than 1,100 votes last week a property tax millage that would have financed Advanced Life Support (ALS) medical services and the expansion of the new community policing program.

Was it a tax revolt by homeowners who feel that they are overburdened now?

Or was it a reaction to public opposition to the 1.5-mill tax proposal from two former city council members, Thomas Brown and Kenneth Mehl, who disclosed their concerns in the last two weeks of the Aug. 6 primary election campaign?

The Observer believes that voters had other objections which led to the proposal's defeat, which should be a clear message to elected officials.

While the general concern over taxes and the opposition from Brown and Mehl may have been factors, there were other campaign information dynamics initiated by the city administration, which was aggressively pushing for the tax hike, that may have created problems.

There was a strategic flaw in formulating the proposal.

The administration, with the support of six of the seven city council members, put all its political eggs in one basket with one proposal designed to cover all the various programs:

■City officials may have been smarter in separating the community policing proposal from the one relating to Advanced Life Support medical services. That, coupled with public opposition from two former city council members, may have prompted voters to stop and think about their pocket book.

ALS service, community policing and a smaller amount for renovations of the fire stations and the public services department building.

Ideally, the issues should have been split into separate ballot proposals to allow voters more discretion on how their money would be spent by elected officials.

That was made clear by the fact that those who voted by absentee ballot, traditionally the elderly who would benefit the most from ALS services, opposed the tax increase.

If and when the proposal comes back to the ballot, political leaders should think more about how they plan to go about improving the level of city services.

Caring for the River Rouge

Changing Currents

Restoring the Rouge

You might think the batteries stacked and covered by a tarp outside your company are safely stored. But when it rains, materials from them will find their way to the Rouge River. Count on it.

The same goes for the salt on your company's parking lot. When the thaw comes, that salted runoff heads for the storm drains and eventually the Rouge River.

That's why the Rouge Friendly Business Program is so important. And that's why the Observer Newspapers at Levan and Schoolcraft is among participating businesses.

The Rouge Friendly Business Program is a pilot effort designed to educate companies in a test area – an industrial area bounded by Levan, Schoolcraft and Stark roads in Livonia.

The education process is not about major contaminants, but those little things that slip the mind, such as salt on parking lots, materials stored outside – anything that will seep into the drainage system and into the Rouge.

The test program is part of a larger effort, the Rouge River National Wet Weather Demonstration Project, which was awarded a federal grant to conduct various projects designed to help clean up the beleaguered Rouge River.

We support the test program because it is designed to prevent further pollution of the Rouge through education and awareness of the river's fragile condition. It also will teach small business owners what they can do to help by changing some of their everyday practices – not through punitive enforcement.

■With everyone's help, the Rouge River will represent one of the few natural and environmental gems in western Wayne County. The test program for the Rouge needs public support.

Program consultants are now working on a package of items that will help explain to small business owners what activities they can become involved in, as well as tips to reduce the source of pollution to the Rouge.

Consultants also tour the facilities that have signed up for the program to see just how practices can be changed to help save the Rouge. The Observer building is the first site visit for the project.

Some of the practices on which small business owners may be educated include material storage and handling, as well as refuse management – whatever is necessary to prevent runoff of undesirable and potentially toxic materials into the Rouge.

Test project coordinators are seeking more participants in the program. Letters have been sent to businesses in the pilot area.

Participation will cost nothing, except time. The key is education. Participants will learn some common sense solutions to reduce pollutants heading into the Rouge.

In landlocked western Wayne County, there are few natural and environmental gems. But the Rouge is one of them, no matter how tarnished it is. Every little bit of effort will help restore the Rouge to what it should be – a free-flowing and clean river for all to enjoy.

Racism attacked

The recent spate of attacks on black churches, including the vandalism of the New Hope Missionary Baptist Church in Wayne, is very disturbing.

Racism in America has lessened, but it is by no means dead. The Baha'i community of Westland rejects racism and prejudice of all kinds, for they violate the teachings of our prophet-founder, Baha'u'llah, who taught that humanity is one, that there is only one race, the human race.

We would like to share with Westland residents this statement from the National Spiritual Assembly of the Baha'is of the United States, a statement which we support completely:

"The American Baha'i community, composed of members who belong to all races and ethnic groups, recoils in horror from the acts of arson perpetrated against black and multiracial churches in the United States. Whether committed by demented individuals or malevolent terrorist conspirators, these acts are directed at all humanity, for humanity is one.

"We believe that attacks against black churches are not about religion. They are ugly manifestations of ingrained racism, and racism, as we have said elsewhere, is an affront to human dignity, a cause of hatred and division, a disease that devastates society."

The Baha'i community has struggled for over 100 years to help eradicate racism and build an America where all are equal no matter what their race. We express our deepest sympathy to the immediate victims of bigotry and hate. We feel their pain and share their sorrow.

We also know that our brothers and sisters whose churches have been destroyed are not the only victims. This entire nation has been hurt and diminished by the malice of a few.

However, we do not want this occasion to pass without affirming our unshakable conviction that prejudice, separatism, and division shall not win. Every attempt to turn back the clock of history shall fail, and humanity shall continue on its inevitable march toward unity and peace.

Vote is disappointing

I voted yes for Proposition P on Aug. 6 and laud the voters in Wayne County that supported this appeal. I also hold strong disappointment for my suburban neighbors that failed to understand the major impact and minimal cost that Proposition P will present.

We have all witnessed the deteriorating infrastructure of Wayne County, including its parks. It seems that many people would like to see improved and expanded county services, but fail to support the theory with their wallets. I'm not sure how long it will take for voters to realize that with the current trend toward tax abatement, "pay less, get less" will ring true.

Proposition P will fund improvements across the county at parks that are currently underused due to dilapidated and unsafe conditions. We must realize that parks are an essential component of all societies as places of physical and mental relaxation. It is the parks and overall infrastructure of a metropolitan area that provides a sense of community, spearheads rebirth, prevents decay and maintains property values.

It is time for more Wayne County citizens to become a little less narcissistic and realize that sharing and sacrifice are virtues for which we should strive.

Enforcement needed

"Road officials can be sued if they fail to post warning signs or signals at hazardous spots such as intersections, the Michigan Supreme Court has ruled." (Observer, July 22, 1996).

Very good. Let me expand on this premise.

Those of us who live on or adjacent to Ann Arbor Trail are increasingly aware of the dangerous conditions that are on this road.

Neither the cities nor the Wayne County Road Commission will do anything about this, passing the buck to each other. Ann Arbor Trail needs a massive reconstruction effort, more so than Seven Mile, Six Mile (where many top officials seem to have their homes) and Plymouth Road, where businesses are bringing pressure for improvements.

The Livonia city engineer believes that a "low priority" exists on some streets that have problems with curbs and sinking road conditions, as he has stated about the intersection at Linville and Ann Arbor Trail. Where was the "priority" when the balance of that street was repaired?

The Wayne County sheriff cleaned up Edward Hines Parkway and we must all agree that it was needed. Now it is time for Ann Arbor Trail. Ever since Newburgh Road was expanded, traffic has increased and the speed limits are being ignored on that road and Ann Arbor Trail has become a speedway, especially going east from that road.

POINTS OF VIEW

Finding new appreciation for a quiet neighborhood

BY DOROTHY MATSU
GUEST COLUMNIST

Silence may indeed be golden, but peace and quiet are hardly shabby seconds. As I luxuriate in the tranquility of my new neighborhood, I cannot help but reflect upon the pandemonium from whence I came.

Many New England towns are quaint, but tightly packed, making for some very strange neighbors. Standing out from the typical tenement racket would be the Hell's Angels who thundered in next door on occasion to pay their respects to their somewhat embarrassed elders.

The traditional early and violent death would soon curb that clatter. In lovely Marblehead, we found ourselves on the tiny main drag across from the theater and next to the Riptide where at 2 a.m. the dregs of the town would spew out into the streets for a last round of incoherent garble, bickering and sloppy fisticuffs until the cop on the beat threatened them all with telling their mothers.

In charming Swampscott, I found the sweetest little attic apartment spoiled rotten by a hideous ancient trollop who assaulted anyone attempting to come or go with obscenities that would make a sailor pale.

Back in Salem, I found myself sandwiched between the Fishwife and the Seahag. Nothing short of being dropped on the roof by a chopper could save you from the harassment these bats spent their energies on to create.

They had no problem with me, it seemed, just everyone else on earth, and I was somehow chosen as an unwilling confidante.

GUEST COLUMN

The Seahag made a career of taking my downstairs neighbor to court unsuccessfully over her menagerie of pets. As evidence, she produced a photo showing three tiny kittens hanging on her screen door.

The Fishwife once dumped a bucket of fish heads on the hood of our landlord's car, probably because of his penchant for listening to military marching music at a bombastic volume.

I often stalled in a little old cemetery watching for that crucial moment when they would momentarily cease vacuuming the driveway or combing the shrubbery to make a break for my bleak lodgings without begin asked to relay various threats.

My next stop didn't appear to have any ruckus the nearby railway couldn't squelch, yet in the dead of night one man across the drive would let out a groaning wail of such length and despair, the hair on your head would stand up levitating you from the bed with genuine terror.

Another common thread in the pattern of disturbing the peace is awful music. No matter where you go, you are bound to be tortured by adverse tastes.

It is startling that the music that made you gag as a kid is constantly revived only to be hatefully enhanced by new technology.

Living on the edge of Plymouth Township was as close to country as I had ever been, so I found it eerie for a bit. But there was always the crash of cicadas or critters combative and canoodling, or what sounds like the weird mocking laughter of waterfowl.

It was also like the Bermuda Triangle for car accidents mingling with the roaring road yard.

Here, in Old Village, I enjoy the amusing bustle of the daytime comings and goings. Velvety sunsets bring forth the rustle of great protective trees, summery showers shimmer among the lights and lanterns of the little sleeping shops, and I lay listening to the magnificent steely symphony of the trains.

Dorothy Matsu is a Plymouth resident who has recently moved to Old Village. Guest columns maybe submitted to Leonard Poger, Observer Newspapers Editorial Department, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

Litigation lives on, even long after plaintiff is gone

Harry Quinton died in 1989 in Tennessee. But his name lives on in Michigan jurisprudence where his case was decided July 30.

Quinton retired from General Motors' Pontiac Motor Division 22 years ago, in 1974. Like many UAW members, the day after he retired he filed for worker's compensation benefits, saying he had job-related silicosis and emphysema.

Employers and Republicans consider it a racket and call it "double-dipping." Unionists and Democrats say it's fair because work injuries prevent the retiree from fully enjoying the leisure of his twilight years.

I extract Quinton's lengthy story from Justice Charles Levin's lead opinion, glossing over the mind-boggling legal arguments. Here are the steps.

1. Two years later, in 1976, a state hearing referee required GM to pay him disability benefits. GM didn't appeal.

2. The state Legislature amended the worker's comp law effective March 31, 1982, to require "coordination" of pension and worker's comp benefits – that is, to halt double-dipping. GM notified Quinton his comp benefits would be reduced accordingly. Quinton disputed the decision.

3. In mid-1982, a referee directed GM to restore Quinton's full weekly benefits, saying the new law "may not be applied retroactively."

4. Later in 1982, the Workers Comp Appeal Board (WCAB) affirmed the referee's decision.

5. Someone – Levin's writing is unclear – went to the state Court of Appeals, which denied leave to appeal.

6. The state Supreme Court held the case in abeyance pending a decision in a case called Franks v. White Pine Copper Division.

7. In 1985, the Supreme Court decided the Franks case, ruling that the 1982 law was intended to apply retroactively, and GM could indeed reduce workers comp benefits after March 31, 1982.

TIM RICHARD

8. The Supreme Court reversed the WCAB decision in Quinton's case, saying GM could "coordinate" his benefits based on the Franks ruling.

9. In May 1986, a two-member WCAB panel got around to applying the ruling, saying GM must coordinate benefits.

Complicated? The plot is only beginning to thicken.

10. In 1987, the Legislature declared the Supreme Court was full of beans in its Franks decision; the "legislative intention (was) not to coordinate payments ..." – that is, the 1982 statute was intended to allow double-dipping.

11. Someone – Levin's writing is abstract – challenged the 1987 changes, but the Michigan Supreme Court upheld its constitutionality in a 1990 decision called Romein vs. GM. But the Michigan court stayed enforcement of its decision because the case was going to the U.S. Supreme Court.

12. In 1992, the U.S. Supreme Court affirmed the Michigan court's Romein decision.

13. The Michigan Supreme Court vacated its stay and directed that the 1987 statute be enforced – no double-dipping.

14. Meanwhile, Quinton died in Tennessee. His lawyer in April of 1992 asked GM to repay Quinton's coordinated benefits to his estate. GM declined.

15. A magistrate ordered GM to "repay with interest all past coordinated benefits," citing the 1987 law and the supreme court rulings. GM appealed.

Detroit lawyer Granner Ries, who walked me through some of this, said Quinton's estate will collect about $15,000 – $100 a week for three years – plus interest. Ries added the Quinton decision will affect 39 other cases, mostly at GM Saginaw.

That was an awfully long time to tie up public agencies.

Footnote: Four justices wrote three opinions – Levin and the three Democratic nominees – in ruling for Quinton. Two Republican justices dissented, saying benefits should be coordinated. Justice Elizabeth Weaver (R) didn't participate because she was part of the Court of Appeals panel.

Justice not only is delayed, it is fractured, and it's partisan.

Pain management focus of seminar

BY SUE MASON
STAFF WRITER

When you're in pain, you're in pain. And managing that pain can be just as big of a pain.

That's why the nursing departments of Madonna University and Oakland Community College are teaming up to present "Taking Charge of Your Pain" on Sunday, Sept. 8.

With consumers realizing the importance of taking an active role in their own health care, the conference aims to help people in pain and caregivers get information about pain management and self-care.

"A number of us have a longstanding interest in teaching the public and health care professionals about pain management," said Marilyn Harton, a member of the nursing faculty at Madonna University and the conference's planning committee. "So much can be done to treat pain, but the individual has to know how to

Jazz ballet is his 'Pilgrimage'

■ It appears Rabbi Craig Allen's title for his Hebrew jazz ballet is quite appropriate for his quest to have it performed in March. The quest for financial support for "Pilgrimage" has become a pilgrimage for him.

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

"It's a pilgrimage, a struggle," says Rabbi Craig F. Allen of Congregation Beit Kodesh in Livonia.

The 48-year-old rabbi is referring to a project involving the full-length performance of his Hebrew jazz ballet, entitled "Pilgrimage," next March. The problem is funding.

Written for a chamber orchestra, jazz trio, a mixed chorus with a minimum of six singers and a dance company of unlimited numbers, Allen estimates the production will cost $10,000.

Dedicated to Jerusalem for its 3,000th anniversary, "Pilgrimage" deals with the journeys of human lives in the Song of Solomon, Book of Ruth and Book of Ecclesiastes. Allen chose to write the work in a jazz vein because of the artistic freedom the style permits. Through the dissonance and harmonies of the music, he portrays emotions ranging from discord to an all-enveloping love experienced by a man and woman.

"There's a wealth of marvelous literature in the Old Testament," said Allen, an accomplished composer who won First Prize in the Israeli Chamber Music Festival in 1985. "Every language has its own rhythmic personality. Jazz is very fluid and cross rhythmic. You're not enslaved to the bar line as in Western music.

"The text is the foremost influence in the composition. In the Torah or Bible, there are stories which originally were an oral tradition that became a written tradition. The texts are over 2,500 years old and universal with applications to three religions: Moslem, Jewish and Christian."

Quite a struggle: Rabbi Craig F. Allen of Congregation Beit Kodesh in Livonia is hoping his Hebrew jazz ballet, "Pilgrimage," will hit the stage in March but he first needs to raise $10,000.

Important part

The year Allen served in Vietnam between 1967 and 1968, as a private in the army, molded the work.

"Vietnam is an important part, the isolation. I was far away and in the predicament of being somewhere you can't get out of," said Allen, brushing aside any further discussion of the topic.

Allen used an ancient system of notation (troupe) for chanting biblical texts to create "Pilgrimage." He wrote his thesis on troupe as part of the requirements for earning a master's degree in composition from George Washington University in 1982. It was during this time, he discovered the notation system along with African-Caribbean and jazz music consisted of similar rhythmic "personalities."

Although the ballet was performed in part on a small scale last April by members of the Collateral Dance Collective of Ann Arbor, the improvisational nature of the composition allows choreography to evolve from whatever dance company is performing the work.

"The structure is rigid so it makes it easy to choreograph," Allen said.

Allen hopes members of the arts community will come together to make his dream of a multi-cultural performance a reality. Overcoming religious diversity is not a problem for the rabbi who last year had another of his compositions, "Tryptich," performed prior to parts from a Catholic Mass in a spring concert at Madonna University.

"I want a variety of culturally diverse participation in this," he said. "The key is to draw from

Fill rainy days with Play Clay

The sky is the limit for creativity, except when it is raining. But, there is no reason for a child to be bored indoors, thanks to ARM & HAMMER Baking Soda "Play Clay."

So, next time the weather turns gloomy move the fun into the kitchen and organize activities that are economical, environmentally sensible and food-safe.

Begin the day with baking a favorite cookie recipe together. And, since every parent knows one activity won't keep kids occupied for long, the real fun can begin while the cookies are in the oven . It's time for Play Clay.

Play Clay is simple to make (a mixture of baking soda, cornstarch and water), and the finished pieces can be both beautiful and useful.

The basic recipe includes:

2 cups ARM & HAMMER baking soda (a 1-pound package)
1 cup of cornstarch
1 1/4 cups of cold water

Stir the baking soda and cornstarch in saucepan. Add water and cook over medium heat, stirring constantly. When mixture is consistency of moist mashed potatoes, turn it out on a plate and cover it with damp cloth.

When the Play Clay is cool enough to handle, gently pat until it's smooth, then the follow the directions for the object you wish to make, or create a design yourself.

Unused portions can be stored in a sealed bag in the refrigerator. Remember to bring the Play Clay to room temperature before using.

Once the objects have been shaped and designed, place on a plate or cookie sheet to dry overnight (thick designs may need more time). To shorten drying time, heat the shapes in a 350-degree preheated oven for approximately 15 minutes. Continue to heat if necessary.

Play Clay can be shaped into ornaments plaques, beads and many other decorative designs. This is a great opportunity for children to explore their own creativity. But, perhaps some of the most useful creations include pencil holders and paper clip holders.

To create these, simply mold the Play Clay around a jar or can of appropriate size. To smooth surfaces, rub moistened clay with moistened hands. Decorate with shapes of rolled out clay. Moisten and press onto container. Allow to harden. Finish as desired.

After the clay has hardened and it's time to decorate, remember pieces can be painted with water colors, poster paints or felt tip pens. Play Clay objects can also be preserved with a clear varnish or shellac, or even one or two coats of clear nail polish.

So, no need to frown when the forecast calls for rain. Just grab an extra box of ARM & HAMMER Baking Soda at the store. For additional ways to use Play Clay, please send a business size, self-addressed envelope to Play Clay, ARM& HAMMER, P.O. Box 130, Springhouse, Pa. 19477.

Bike safety tips you forget to remember

They say you never forget how to ride a bike. That may be true, but statistics show that for children, at least, they may forget how to do it safely.

And that's where parents come in, now that summer beckons, and bicycles have taken over for skis and ice skates as the thing to do, according to AAA Michigan.

But bike riding can be dangerous when precautions are not observed – or forgotten.

In 1994, the last year for which statistics are available, 17 bicyclists under age 15 died statewide, 59 percent of the 29 bike deaths recorded in Michigan that year. In the same time frame, 1,338 bicyclists 15 and under suffered injuries. Nationally, more than 500,000 children annually go to hospital emergency rooms or doctors, offices with bicycle injuries.

"Parents can play a crucial role by reminding children how to ride safely, what to do and what not to do," said Jerry Basch, AAA Michigan Community Safety Services manager. "By reminding their children of safe riding practices, they refresh their own memories, as bicycle riding is a popular recreation with adults."

The Auto Club suggests the following reminders for parents to pass on:

- Bike riders should always wear helmets. About 80 percent of bicycle deaths involve head injuries. (According to a AAA survey of some 280 children, ages 8 to 13, in eight states, 44 percent "seldom or never" wore helmets; 11 percent "occasionally" wore them; and 43 percent said they wore them "always or most of the time.")
- Be cautious when entering roadways from driveways and alleys. Slow down, stop and look for traffic.
- Ride with traffic on the right-hand side of the street.
- Obey traffic signs and signals. Be extra careful turning left because motorists don't expect it. Give cars and pedestrians the right-of-way.
- Don't ride at night.
- Signal before turning and look before changing lanes.
- Wear bright and bright-colored clothing so that drivers can see you.
- Avoid broken pavement, loose gravel and leaves, which can cause you to lose control of your bike.

But before the children take that ride, parents should inspect the bicycle to make sure the brakes and tires are in good condition and that the bike is sized properly. Sitting on the seat, a child should be able to balance the bicycle with the tips of their toes.

Writer may be experiencing inner conflict

GRAPHOLOGY PROFILES

LORENE GREEN

Lorene,
I've always wondered what I'm made of – so can you help me. I'm curious to see what my penmanship tells you about me. Do you see me, through my writing, as I see myself?
I am in my early 40s, right handed and self employed.
B.I.
– no city given

Dear B.I.,
I've always wondered what I'm made of – so maybe you can help me. I'm curious to see what my penmanship tells you about me. Do you see me through my writing, as I see myself?

The first thing I see as I study this handwriting is a woman with a peace-loving nature. She wants to relate smoothly to others and will please and appease to avoid unpleasantness. She is usually willing to allow others to have their way.

She often wears her kind heart on her sleeve. She is also emotional and sad movies or stories can start the tears to well up in her eyes.

The writer is usually flexible. And there is also a little humor in the writing, which I always welcome. Who was it who said, "Blessed are the peace-makers for they shall not be bent out of shape?"

Seemingly she is apprehensive about something coming up in the future. Or is she concerned about the people in it? She may be going through some inner conflict at this time.

This is a conforming person. She needs approval from others. Security is important and rarely is she willing to take a big risk.

Most of the time she is friendly, compassionate and shows her feelings. Happiness, sadness, worry, fear, enthusiasm, etc., cannot be concealed. Her body language gives her away, although she may not realize it.

The writer draws strength from a traditional upbringing. She knows what she believes and is not open to a new value system. Some people may even think of her as opinionated.

Apparently she is not a long-range planner. Most of the time she formulates her plans as she is involved in the task.

She does not rush into a new task or project. She thinks about it and/or talks about it for awhile. Once she commences, however, she takes pride and can be counted upon to do it well.

She is neat and tidy in both her appearance and in her work. She has a place for everything and wants things in their proper place so she can find them when she needs them.

If you would like your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36265 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please write a few paragraphs about yourself, using a full sheet of white, unlined paper and writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and signature are all helpful. Due to the volume of mail, personal replies are not possible. However, objective feedback is welcome.

local talent. Whether the performers are from Livonia or Plymouth, I want my art to communicate that basic philosophy of a sensitivity to cultural diversity and to be that force in this tangible cause."

Allen is hoping for help from a patron, or a business proposition from an entrepreneur to produce the jazz ballet. Currently, money is being raised from lectures on the dynamics of the work. Since the requested honorarium for the programs is small, many years could elapse before a performance.

"We need a few good people not afraid to take risks," he said.

Mirror, mirror.

Allen's life mirrors the pilgrimage he writes about, from the sweet phrases played with his wife, Diane, to the dissonant chords created when an inner ear condition diagnosed after Vietnam left him unable to play all but improvisational trumpet.

"We met after Vietnam; Diane encouraged me to go back to my music," she said. "She is the balance to my unbridled passion."

Born and raised in Port Huron, he began playing trumpet around age 11 or 12 under the tutelage of his father, a musician who quit playing on the night of his son's birth due to the instability of performance careers.

In later years, Allen studied with the principal trumpet of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra. Following in the footsteps of his father, Allen sought a stable position to raise his family after marrying Diane 25 years ago. He began writing music while on the U.S. Navy School of Music teaching staff from 1977 to 1980. It was here the opportunity arose to have his compositions performed by a 100-piece wood ensemble. Later works have been performed by the Scandinavian Symphony.

Allen is active within the metro Detroit jazz scene. He has written compositions for Marcus Belgrave as well as performed with him, Ali Muhamed and Jerry LeDuff. LeDuff's percussion was heard in the background during the April mini performance of "Pilgrimage."

Diane is very proud of her husband. Like his music, their marriage has survived the challenges of residing in 16 states in 23 years. Together with their sons Ian, now 23 and Aaron, 19, they lived in Israel at two different times during the 1980s. She is certain "Pilgrimage" will debut as a full-length jazz ballet in March regardless of where the source of funding originates.

"Music and the arts are essential to sensitizing future generations," she said.

Target 'hugs' program

A national retailer's 50th anniversary celebration has proved to be good news for the Child Abuse Prevention Council of Out-Wayne County.

Dayton Hudson is celebrating its 50th anniversary of giving 5 percent of its federally taxable income to support nonprofit organizations.

Dayton Hudson operating divisions – Dayton's, Hudson's, Marshall Field's, Target and Mervyn's – and the Dayton Hudson Foundation share a common goal of serving the communities where they operate. As a result, CAPCo is a partner with Target stores in the Be a Hugger – Not Slugger program.

Target's support of this child abuse prevention program during the past four years has enabled the Council to reach more than 1,000 parents with information that will help them be the best parents they can be.

The Be a Hugger program is a two-hour discussion and video presentation on everyday parent-child situations. It is offered at no charge.

To learn more about this program or to schedule a presentation, call the CAPCo office at (313) 721-5901 access the resources available and take charge of their care."

The conference will be 12:30-4 p.m. in Madonna University's Kresge Hall on Schoolcraft Road, west of Levan, Livonia. Advance registration is $5 per person by Friday, Aug. 30, and $6 for walk-in registration the day of the program, space permitting.

Harton credits Carol Lubin of OCC's Community Services with getting the ball rolling when it came to the conference. She put together the planning committee, which draws of the talents of people with the Karmanos Cancer Institute, Henry Ford Health System, OCC and Madonna University and the Chronic Illness Awareness Coalition.

The committee has been working on the program since January. Members view it as a community service and hope it will attract 200-300 people. A good turnout would be "encouragement" to do similar programs, Harton said.

"There's been a lot of people very willing to get involved," she said. "It's because they feel this is very important. It's so easy for people to become defeated by chronic pain."

The conference's lineup includes a keynote address at 1:15 p.m. by Neal Shine, a cancer survivor who has had to cope with a chronic pain syndrome resulting from his successful cancer treatment, and a selection of seven different workshops, covering exercise, depression, humor and pain medications.

Laura Dobeck, an adaptive fitness instructor at St. John Hospital, Macomb Center, will show participants how to keep joints flexible, maintain muscle strength and build stamina as well as ways to exercise despite chronic pain.

Social worker Sharon Lotoczky of Professional Counseling Associates will lead a discussion about the challenges of communicating the experience of pain while exploring patterns of communication, barriers to communicating well and ways of expressing needs to others.

Clinical nurse specialist Wendy Goldberg of Henry Ford Heath System will address the issue of depression, focusing on what depression is, how it relates to the individual, how it is treated and where to find help.

Participants will learn the physiology of laughter and its role in healing, at work and at home, in a workshop led by Christeen Conlin Holdwick, patient care director at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor, while Roberta "Jeff" Bailey, training specialist at the Oakland University Continuum Center, will introduce participants to a variety of relaxation methods in her meditation and relaxation workshop.

Mark Touchette, clinical pharmacist with Henry Ford Health System, will concentrate on pain medications, with Beth Campbell of the American Chronic Pain Association discussing the rights necessary for a patient to become an active member of his or her own health care team during her workshop on basic rights, responsibilities and resources.

"There's a lot of myths about pain and pain management that have to be overcome, especially with medications; people have a fear about becoming addicted," Harton said. "We chose the title because we hope the conference is one little piece of what's needed to enable people."

Registration can be completed by sending a check, payable to Oakland Community College, to Carol Lobin, Community Services, 7350 Cooley Lake Road, Waterford 48327.

Red Wing, wrestler to visit Christian center

Tri-City Christian Center sees school-age children and Generation Xers as two groups that need to be closer to God so it has scheduled two programs to help accomplish that.

The monthly program "Thermal Nuclear Tuesdays" hosts inspirational speakers like Detroit Red Wing Stu Grimson, and WWF wrestler Jake "The Snake" Roberts, and an array of youth-oriented events. All of the TNTs (except The New Year's Event) run from 7-9:30 p.m. and include a giant pizza party with beverages, a giant trampoline, human jousting, big screen Super Nintendo, and live music. The cost for most events is $1 unless otherwise noted. Formerly known as "Wild Wednesdays," the average attendance for the night is 400-450 students.

Upcoming events include:

• "Penalty Box" with guest speaker Detroit Red Wing Grimson and featured events sumo wrestling and bouncy boxing, Tuesday, Sept. 3. The person who brings the most first-time visitors wins two Red Wing tickets.

• "School Spirit II" with a special invitation and competition for school pep bands, cheerleading and pom-pon squads, Tuesday, Oct. 1. Cash prizes will be awarded to the school with the best spirit team. The person who brings the most first-time visitors wins two Detroit Pistons tickets.

• "Celebrity Night" with Jake "The Snake" Roberts costs $2, Tuesday, Oct. 29. Participants get the change to put on a foam-filled sumo suit and fake sumo wrestle. The person who brings the most first-time visitors wins a free stretch limo ride.

• "Wild, Wild West" features country line dancing and rodeo ropers, Tuesday, Nov. 26. The person who brings the most first-time visitors wins two rodeo tickets.

• For "The New Year Event," TNT joins forces with MAINSTREAM (a metro-Detroit Ministry networking organization) for the Tuesday, Dec. 31, event that features a massive youth all-nighter with down-hill skiing, in-line skating, sporting events and movies. Last year, more than 1,400 students attended. For more information about this event, call Joe Casiglia at (810) 689-8692.

The "Roaring Twenties – Acoustic Cafe" is geared toward 18-29-year-olds who enjoy acoustic music with a Christian message. Held monthly on Thursdays, the cafe includes espresso, coffee and other beverages, snacks and the opportunity to win door prizes. All shows take place from 7-9 p.m. To purchase non-refundable advance tickets, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope with a note requesting the number of tickets and the event you wish to attend to: "Roaring Twenties – Acoustic Cafe," 2020 Hannan Road, Canton, MI 48188. Make all checks payable to "Tri-City Christian Center." Tickets may be obtained three weeks prior to each event.

Scheduled performers include:

• Comedian and international recording artist Ron Moore brings his show to the cafe Thursday, Aug. 15. Tickets are $2 in advance; $3 at the door.

• The acoustic/folk alternative band Lost & Found performs Thursday, Sept. 26. Tickets are $2 in advance; $3 at the door.

Blackburn makes cut

Joe Blackburn, who will be a senior in the fall at Livonia Churchill, earned one of two goalkeeper berths on the United States Under-18 National Hockey Team.

The U.S. team, comprised of 20 players, is currently playing in the Pacific Cup in Nelson, B.C.

Blackburn has never played for Churchill, opting instead to play travel hockey.

Blackburn played last year for the Compuware Junior Midget team, a member of the Michigan National Hockey League. He had a 91 save percentage, which was best in the league, and had the league's fourth-best goals-against-average.

He was a draft pick of the Soo Greyhounds of the Ontario Hockey League. He will play during the 1996-97 season for the Compuware Junior A team, which will make its home in Plymouth.

Blackburn also played on the Churchill baseball team, earning scholar-athlete honors with a 3.5 grade point average.

Livonian Dustin Kuk made last year's U.S. Under-18 National Team. Kuk, who will attend the University of Wisconsin on a hockey scholarship, had a shoulder injury and was unable to try out this year.

Elliott at Showcase

Livonian Robyn Elliott, a 16-year-old forward who plays for the Metro Flyers, is a member of the Mid-West squad which will compete in Hockey Night in Boston's second annual Girls' Summer Showcase, Aug. 19-25, at Merrimack (Mass.) College.

The tournament features the top 130 female high school-age players from 15 different states and Canada.

Twisters trounce foe

The Wayne County Twisters improved their Lakeshore League record to 2-1 with a 41-6 semi-professional football win Saturday over the host Toledo Tornadoes at Raider Stadium.

The Twisters bounced back from a disappointing 34-6 loss the previous week against the North Coast Rebels.

"We took a big step in the direction we want to go," Twisters coach Kevin Bradford said. "The difference in this game and last week's performance was the emergence of our passing game."

Twister quarterback Kris Collins, who had thrown for only a total of 68 yards in the previous two outings, connected on six of 11 passes for 138 yards and one touchdown against the Tornadoes.

Andy Colburn (Canton) had three catches for 73 yards and one TD.

The Twisters' running attack, which had been averaging only 117 yards per game, racked up a total of 280 yards.

Patrick Bowie (Wayne) led the way with 100 yards on 13 carries. Kevin Kutch, former Redford St. Agatha standout, added 96 on 10 carries, while Redford's Jeff Platt was four for 64.

Bradford also singled out the blocking of Mark Johnston and Paul Daniels (Livonia).

"In my opinion, these guys are two of the best offensive linemen in the league and will play a major role in our progress offensively," the Twister coach said.

Defensively, the Twisters were only one play away from recording their second shutout of the year.

Helping to stymie the Tornadoes' wishbone attack were Chuck Lauber (Westland), Jeff Burke (Flat Rock) and Aaron Brothers (Canton).

The Twister secondary made their seventh pick-off of the year year when T.J. McGlothlin intercepted a pass on the final play of the game.

The Twisters return to action at 1 p.m. Saturday at old Inkster Cherry Hill High School when they take on the Motor City Cougars.

NRC wins state crown

The North Redford Central Little League 9-10 year old all-star baseball team made history, winning a state championship.

The North Redford Central Little League 9 and 10-year-old all-star baseball team has hung banners before, but never one that said state champions.

NRC earned that distinction when it won its first-ever state championship last Friday with a 10-9 victory over South Portage in the winner-take-all championship game. There were 252 teams from across the state eligible for the tournament, which started last month with district play.

NRC finished 4-1 during the double-elimination state tournament. Its only loss came on Thursday night when South Portage earned an 11-9 verdict in nine innings to force a second meeting the next night.

That South Portage advanced this far was something in itself since it lost its opening game of the state tournament 13-0.

It won five consecutive games before losing in the final to NRC.

"They must have come without their game playing hats that first game, then went through the loser's bracket undefeated," said one of NRC's coaches, Tim Kohalisky. "They were just as good as us. It took a ball falling one way or another to win this game."

An all-star team of 10 year olds from North Redford Central won a district championship in 1991, but prior to last year no NRC team was allowed to compete for a sectional or state championship.

"Back then, that's as far as you could go," Kohalisky said.

Kohalisky said it took a team effort to win,

Hines Park bows out of Johnstown tourney, 11-9

Hines Park was so stubborn during its stay at the All-American Amateur Baseball Association national tournament that it took a team two days to eliminate it from championship contention.

Hines Park, champion of the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League, finally bowed out of the double-elimination tournament with an agonizing 11-9 loss to Buffalo Lieb's in 11 innings Wednesday morning at Point Stadium in Johnstown, Pa.

The game was suspended Tuesday night because of darkness and resumed Wednesday morning with the score tied 5-5 after seven innings.

The two teams were tied 9-9 after the regulation nine innings before Buffalo broke the tie in the top of the 11th on a two-out two-run homer off the bat of left-handed batter Scott Wilcox.

The homer, which came against Hines Park pitcher Kevin Uzarski, just made it inside the foul pole down the right field line about 258 feel from home plate. The unconventional configurations of the Point Stadium home run fences help explain the home run.

The ball barely cleared the 8-feet high wall, which jets out to about 420-feet from home plate in right field away from the line.

Had the ball not been pulled as much by Wilcox, it "Would have been just an out," said Chuck Steiner, official scorekeeper and umpire liaison.

The winning pitcher was Steve Gleason, the fifth pitcher used by Buffalo, who had total command in three innings of work. Gleason retired all nine batters he faced, walked none and struck out two.

Uzarski, the fifth pitcher used by Hines Park, allowed two hits, two runs and walked three in two innings of work.

Dave Kapla led Hines Park's 10-hit attack, going 3-for-4 with two runs scored and three RBI. Scott Barrett and Chris Kirian contributed an RBI triple and RBI

Garden City Little Caesars wins closed division Koufax crown

SANDLOT

The Garden City 14-under Little Caesars Federation baseball team completed its 1996 season on Saturday with a 4-3 playoff victory over Riverview to clinch the Sandy Koufax Closed Division championship.

The win gave Caesars a final 18-3 won-loss record.

Ryan Krol struck out 13 while scattering three hits and walking three over 5 2/3 innings. Robbie Hudson pitched the final 1 1/3 innings during which he allowed only one hit and struck out three.

George Kordie sparked the offense with two hits and two runs. Robbie Lademan, Brett Hackman, Jeff Fletemier and Angelo DiMichele also contributed one hit each.

Hudson and Krol scored the other two runs. Jack Sheehan helped the hitting attack with one RBI and Dan Evans reached base three times in three at-bats.

Team members also include Jerry Knoph, Robert Mitchell, Joe Samborski, Mike Sparks and Jason Springer.

The coaching staff includes Bob Hudson, Wade Evans and Joe Emery. Wally Krol is manager.

especially on the mound. Because each pitcher was allowed to throw only nine innings in seven days, five were used: Brandon Hays, Chris Rigley, Jason Krug, Tim Kohalisky and Chaz Bulbuk.

The five combined to strike out 18 in Thursday's loss.

The games on Thursday and Friday were nearly identical.

NRC broke a 9-9 tie in the bottom of the sixth to win the championship game by one run. Bulbuk led off with a single and came home when Hillson's towering fly ball to right field fell in for a double.

"Bulbuk is incredibly fast, there were no outs, we had to send him," Kohalisky said. "The whole game was on the line. We've got a team full of hitters and weren't too worried."

Kohalisky and Hays split time on the mound in the championship game. Hays struck out three and walked two in his stint, which ended because he had used his allotment of innings for the week.

Kohalisky struck out six and walked three while allowing two runs in his stint.

Matt Feldt laid down two excellent bunts to help NRC's cause, one to start a big rally.

Krug, Kohalisky and David Hillson drove in two runs each. Hays and Bulbuk knocked in one apiece.

Even in defeat on Thursday, NRC had a chance to cut the deficit to one or tie the score in the bottom of the ninth after Mike Bommarito reached third base on a single and two straight passed balls by the South Portage catcher.

Bommarito was stranded, however, after NRC failed to produce a hit.

Rigley and Hillson had two RBI each. Kohalisky, Bulbuk and Colin Tober contributed one RBI each.

"It was a real close, competitive game," Tim Kohalisky said. "We'd go up, they'd come back or they'd go up, and we'd come back."

Kohalisky said South Portage was by far the best competition NRC faced in the state tournament.

"They had a kid on Thursday hit a grand slam, really crushing the ball a mile over the center field fence," Kohalisky said. "It took a lot of ball playing. We had to play real hard to beat them."

Eleven of the 12 players on NRC's roster were 10 years old and played in the league's 11 and 12-year old Major Division.

Kohalisky said the fact that they faced pitching from older players throughout the year helped because teams in the state tournament played mostly 10-year old schedules.

To reach the state tournament, NRC had to win a district and sectional, both held in Taylor.

"It was kind of like an edge, because South Portage is playing against 10 year olds, they don't get to see 12 year old pitching, 12 year old base stealing," Kohalisky said.

The manager was Jim DeCapite and Kohalisky shared the coaching duties with Barry Tober. Tober's Falcons' team won the Minor Division and Kohalisky's Hawks took second place.

The manager of the all-star team is picked by the league's board prior to the season and the manager selects his coaching staff. Larry Rigley, who has coached two NRC all-star teams to state championships in the past, was added to the staff for the final game because DeCapite was unable to attend.

The coaching staff had tryouts following the regular season and hardly had a day off throughout July and August.

"We knew at the beginning of the year we'd have a good team," Kohalisky said. "We practiced six days a week, three hours a night, they were lucky to get a Monday off. We had a great following wherever we went. That helps. Grandparents, relatives, it gets the team pumped. We have to thank the parents."

David Hoppe, Griffin Hageman and Kelly Shanks also were team members making key contributions. Mike Bulbuk was the official scorer.

"He let us know who hit what to where," Kohalisky said. "Keeps an eye on the field and has been a large piece of our offense and defense on and off the field."

The next time the team will gather is Sunday, Aug. 25, for a victory celebration, Kohalisky said.

"The celebration is yet to come," Kohalisky said. "We'll really do it up nice."

Observer standouts help Finesse finish 3rd

Stephanie Volpe was voted Offensive MVP as Finesse, a 16-and-under team, came away with a third place finish in the U.S. Slo-pitch Softball Association World Tournament, Aug. 1-4 in Hutchinson, Kan.

Finesse, the top seed, won six of eight games in the national tourney played in 95-degree temperatures with 95 percent humidity. Thirty-five teams competed in the nationals.

Volpe, who will be a junior this fall at Plymouth Salem, was one of seven players with 20-or-more at-bats to hit over .500.

She hit an astounding .781 (25 for 32) with five homers and 31 RBI.

Other top hitters included Jenny Trott (Salem), .583; Christie Koester (Redford Thurston), .571 with a team-leading 19 runs; Melissa Bako (Garden City), .565; Billie Jo Cavalarro (Walled Lake Western), .538; Kristen Zabalavicius (East Detroit), .533; and Kristy Pawlowski (Walled Lake Central), .517.

Volpe was named to the All-World Tournament team along with Cavalarro and Zabalavicius, a pitcher who worked all 46 1/3 innings, giving up 108 hits and 49 earned runs for a 7.40 earned run average.

The runner-up Bryant (Ark.) Express, who lost in the tournament final to the Bobcats, 25-7, handed Finesse both of its tournament losses, 15-5 and 13-9.

Finesse victories came against Champions Gym (Amarillo, Tex.), 16-6; Ramstar (Brookpark, Ohio), 20-1; the Black Diamonds (Davidson, N.C.), 25-9; Wildthing (Oklahoma, Okla.), 10-3; Texas Tornadoes (Garland, Tex.), 25-15; Dare Devils (Brookville, Ohio), 20-19.

Volpe, a middle infielder, went 4-for-4 with six RBI in the win over the Daredevils.

Managed by Bill Martin, Finesse finished the season with a 40-16 record, including 10-5 in league play and 30-11 in tournaments.

Other members of Finesse include Tiffany Bako (Garden City), Megan Brady (Westland John Glenn), Elizabeth Elsner (Plymouth Canton), Katie Foran (John Glenn), Jillian Gross (Canton), Wendy Hankinson (Garden City), Angela Haas (John Glenn), Karen Prosyk (Salem), Sarah Talbot (Garden City) and Raegan Tisher (Livonia Churchill).

Tommie Walker is the assistant manger, while Bill Eskew and Hank Carroll serve as assistant coaches.

In the final USSSA rankings, Finesse finished third for the second consecutive year.

Hoener accepts West Liberty bid

Schoolcraft releases CC grad for 4-year school

BY STEVE KOWALSKI

■ COLLEGES

It looks like Justin Hoener will get to bypass the junior-college ranks en route to his goal of playing basketball for a four-year college.

Hoener, a Livonia resident and recent Catholic Central graduate, was all set to attend Schoolcraft Community College until West Liberty State College in West Virginia. came calling.

Schoolcraft coach Glen Donahue released Hoener from his letter of intent so he could accept the offer from West Liberty State, an NCAA Division II school that finished 17-10 and in second place last year in the West Virginia Intercollegiate Athletic Conference.

All of the news on the recruiting front isn't bad, however, for Donahue. He has announced the signing of 6-foot-5 forward Tymon Marshall, who played on Detroit DePorres' Class C state champion team.

Hoener was virtually ignored by Division I and Division II colleges after missing most of his junior year because of a broken leg and having an up-and-down senior season. But because of his above 2.0 grade point average and a 21 on his ACT test, he was eligible to play right away at a Division I or II school.

He was unavailable for comment Tuesday night.

West Liberty State assistant coach Dale Kuhl, interviewed over the phone Tuesday, said he heard about Hoener by accident about three weeks ago. The school is located near Wheeling, W.Va., about 5 1/2 hours from Detroit.

"I ran into an Akron assistant coach who saw him play when he was looking for someone else and he thought Justin was still available," Kuhl said. "He gave us his name and phone number, it was kind of a freak thing."

The West Liberty State staff was impressed with the five game films that Hoener's father sent and with Justin when he made an official visit shortly after their first phone conversation.

Hoener is 6-foot-2 and has the ability to play either guard spot, but he'll be used at the point, according to Kuhl.

"He's a very nice player, fortunately he was still available," Kuhl said. "He's a point guard that fits our system. Our head coach (Dan Petri) likes bigger point guards. We run a motion offense and our guards need to shoot the three, and he can do that."

Donahue is happy for Hoener and knew this could happen when he signed.

"When I signed Justin, I told him, 'You're a predictor (eligible to play right away). I feel you're a quality player and wouldn't stand in your way. But if you're going to a JC, I want you to go to Schoolcraft,'" Donahue said. "I left it in his hands. He obviously feels they're in a good situation.

"I thought he was a real good prospect. I'm from the school where a kid's really got to be happy, and wants to be there. I wish him the best. He's a good kid, got ability to play at high level Division II or Division I."

The loss of Hoener leaves Schoolcraft with four guards for the upcoming season: Returnee Dwaun Wormack, freshman recruits Pete Males (Garden City) and Tykie Reeves (Willow Run) and Stan Cavin (Dearborn Heights Crestwood), who sat out last year with a broken leg after playing the 1994-95 season for the Ocelots.

Donahue is excited about adding DePorres' Marshall to the Schoolcraft roster. He should especially help in the rebounding department for the Ocelots, who finished 9-21 overall.

"He made a lot of key plays through the years, was the glue that held them together this year," Donahue said.

He hopes to sign one or two more players before classes start.

"We're probably down to getting either a great player or a big man," Donahue said. "A couple kids are available that we're talking to. We've really got a good roster, we're strong."

Whitetail deer plentiful as hunters look ahead to 1996 season

OUTDOORS

BILL PARKER

Despite a rough winter in the western end of the Upper Peninsula, the outlook for the upcoming 1996 whitetail deer season in Michigan is outstanding.

In fact, Department of Natural Resources personnel think 1996 could be a record-breaking season.

Michigan's whitetail population is estimated at two million animals, up from 1.8 million a year ago.

That increase has prompted wildlife managers to ask the Natural Resource Commission to approve the sale of 402,193 antlerless deer permits, over 100,000 more than last year, in an effort to reduce the population to a viable size.

Antlerless deer permits are allocated through Deer Management Units. Each of this year's 169 DMU's average 350 to 400 square miles.

Wildlife managers annually assess deer populations, the impact from the previous year's hunter harvest and winter severity, as well as public attitude, to establish population objectives in each DMU.

Hunting regulations, including the number of antlerless deer permits to be issued, are then established to meet the population objectives in each unit.

Winter took its toll

The only down side to this year's hunt may be in the western Upper Peninsula where a rough winter took its toll on the whitetail population.

"(Last winter) definitely affected the herd in the western UP,"

NUVEEN TOUR

double, respectively, for Hines Park.

Kirian had a week he'll never forget.

Two days after setting a AAABA record with three solo home runs in a 9-0 opening game victory over Chicago South Shore, Kirian picked a more suspenseful moment to hit the long ball again.

Kirian, who plays at Eastern Michigan University, hit a two-run shot during a six-run rally in the bottom of the eighth inning of Hines Park's 11-10 win Tuesday over Brooklyn, N.Y.

The victory gave Hines Park the right to play Buffalo later that night.

Hines Park finished the tournament with a 2-2 record and was one of six teams still remaining from a field of 16.

Baltimore, a 9-2 winner on Sunday over Hines Park, was the only undefeated team in the field with a 4-0 record after Tuesday.

All of Monday's games were rained out, which might push the championship game, originally scheduled for today, to Saturday.

Here is a recap of Hines Park's games (starting with the most recent games):

•HINES PARK 5, BUFFALO 5: Hines Park jumped to a 4-0 lead early Tuesday night with four runs in the fourth inning. Buffalo scored five unanswered runs before Hines Park tied the score in the seventh with a single run before darkness suspended play.

Barrett's triple brought home Uzarski, who had walked to lead off the fourth. Stacy McCollum followed Barrett's triple with a two-run home run for a 3-0 lead. Kirian doubled with the bases empty and came home on a single by Chance Beam to raise the lead to 4-0.

Kapla (Canton/Michigan State) scored Hines Park's fifth run. He singled, went to second on a walk to Brian Kalczynski (Farmington/University of Michigan) and scored after a couple wild pitches.

Brian Reynolds, Chris Hesse and Mark Fleming saw action on the mound.

•HINES PARK 11, BROOKLYN 10: Hines Park trailed 10-5 after 7 1/2 innings before erupting for six runs in the bottom of the eighth to go ahead to stay.

Kirian and Uzarski hit two-run homers and Tom Buckley contributed a double that cleared the bases during the decisive rally.

Fleming was the winning pitcher, scattering six hits and allowing five runs in seven innings of relief. Hesse was roughed up for five runs on five hits in two innings of work.

Kalczynski went 2-for-4 with two runs scored and an RBI. Uzarski, an acquisition from Little Caesars, was 2-3 and scored twice.

•BALTIMORE 9, HINES PARK 2: It was a close game for five innings before Baltimore exploded for six runs on seven hits in the sixth Sunday in a game played at Nanty-Glo.

Right-hander Joel Hillebrand, who couldn't get an out in the sixth, suffered the loss. Steve Hornsberger worked the next three innings before giving way to Joel Fabris (Madonna) in the ninth.

"He (Hillebrand) was doing well, but then he got tired and they started hitting shots," Hines Park manager Gary Pierce said. "It was a great game for five innings and then we kind of laid down after that."

The winners collected a total of 16 hits, led by first baseman Kevin Olkowski (West Virginia University), who had two, including a two-run homer in the fifth inning.

Winning pitcher Greg White (James Madison University) threw the second complete nine-inning game of the tournament for unbeaten Baltimore. He scattered eight hits and struck out three.

Uzarski led Hines Park with three hits and one RBI. McCollum homered in the eighth and Kirian added two hits.

•HINES PARK 9, SOUTH SHORE 0: Winning pitcher Darric Terry was sharp in the opener against undermanned Chicago Saturday at tiny Vo-Tech Park.

The right-hander from the University of Detroit-Mercy fanned 13 and allowed only three hits in going the distance.

Kirian hit three homers, all solo shots.

Hines Park unloaded for a total of six homers, including three consecutive blasts in the first inning by Kirian, McCollum (solo) and right fielder Barrett (two-run).

Barrett and Kirian each finished with three hits. Hornsberger added a solo homer, while Uzarski had an RBI double.

explained Joe Robison, wildlife technician with the Michigan DNR. "The western end, up around Baraga, Houghton and Ontonagon counties, got hit pretty hard and they lost a lot of animals. The majority of the deer that died up there were seven to eight months old at the time so there won't be many young bucks up there this fall. South of there, around Iron and Dickinson counties, the deer made it through pretty well and are in pretty decent shape"

Deer populations in the Lower Peninsula are also in good shape and Robison encourages hunters to apply for an antlerless permit.

"In southern Michigan and in the northern Lower Peninsula there are an awful lot of deer and people should take advantage of the doe permits we're issuing," he said.

The NRC is holding its monthly meeting today and tomorrow in Ludington and will decide on the official number of permits to be allocated.

Permit guide error

There is an error in the antlerless permit application guide. Deer Management Units 77, 83 and 89 are closed to antlerless hunting. The antlerless permit application guide erroneously states that these units are open for antlerless hunting when in fact they are bucks only areas.

Antlerless deer permit applications are available at the more than 1,700 license dealers statewide as of August 10.

Anglers and hunters are urged to report their success. Questions and comments are also encouraged. Send information to 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, MI. 48009.

CAGE COACH HIRED

The announcement was made Monday by David Yarbrough, Director of Athletics for the Walled Lake Consolidated Schools.

Stanczak succeeds Pat Adams, who resigned to take the varsity boys basketball position at Warren Woods Tower.

HOT TOPIC
During the hot summer months, car owners should keep an eye on their dashboard temperature gauges. It is not uncommon for engines to overheat in hot weather, particularly in stop-and-go traffic, when hauling a trailer, or when climbing steep hills. Overheating can leave motorists stranded by the side of the road, or it can lead to engine damage if not properly attended to. In the event that the temperature gauge needle crosses over into the red area of the gauge, drivers should pull off to the side of the road to allow the engine to cool before continuing. If a stop is not possible, an effort can be made to stabilize heat buildup by turning the heater to its maximum setting and setting the fan to high speed. This will serve to divert some of the heat from the engine compartment until it is safe to stop. Allow the engine to cool before adding water to avoid subjecting the block and cylinder head to thermal shock.
When it comes to your car, it's better to be safe than sorry; pull over if your engine is overheating and wait for it to cool down. Michigan Bulls go 0-2 at Mantle World Series

A difficult draw led to an early exit for the Michigan Bulls in the American Amateur Baseball Congress World Series last week.

The Bulls lost their first two games in the double-elimination, Mickey Mantle tournament: 12-2 to Cincinnati Midland and 3-0 to Baltimore.

"We faced the two toughest teams in the whole tournament," Bulls coach Jim Ferguson said, adding the Midland team has a national reputation.

In its first game, Baltimore threw one of its lesser pitchers against the host team from McKinnon, Texas, and lost 7-6 in an upset.

"They took them too lightly, and that put them in the losers bracket with us," Ferguson said. "We weren't too lucky there."

Jeff Trzos pitched well in the opener, according to Ferguson, but was the victim of defensive mistakes.

Five runs were charged to Trzos, who allowed four hits (two home runs) over five innings while striking out eight and walking four.

John Larson and Evan Feldman pitched one inning of relief each.

Trzos, who batted .500 in the two games, had two of his team's five hits, and Sean Heard drove in a run with a double.

"(Cincinnati) played good baseball," Ferguson said. "They'd steal a base, move the runner along with a bunt, punch the ball through the left side and get a run in."

Baltimore was undefeated in 63 games this year before losing to Texas.

Kevin Thomas pitched a complete game for the Bulls, allowing only three hits. He had nine strikeouts and three walks.

But the Bulls managed just four hits in support of Thomas, two by Gordie Smith.

As an example of how the Bulls were frustrated, Baltimore scored its first run on a walk, a stolen bases, a sacrifice and a passed ball.

"He has a no-hitter going, and he's losing 1-0," Ferguson said of Thomas.

The Bulls finished 32-18.

"Overall, it was a very good season when you analyze it," Ferguson said. "It was a great ride going to the World Series."

The event is sponsored by Chevy Trucks, Ameritech, Delphi Automotive Systems and The Somerset Collections.

Entry fee is $15 per runner for the 5k and 10 k races or $20 to run both races. Entry fee for the fun run/walk is $7. All participants will receive a four-color commemorative T-shirt.

Proceeds go to the Boys and Girls Club of Troy. Call (810) 689-1687 for more information.

ROUNDUP

Stingers finish 3rd in 18-under loop

The Stingers, an 18-and-under girls softball team, finished the season with four victories to move into third place in the North Oakland Fastpitch League with a 10-10 record.

The team is comprised largely of Garden City, Farmington Hills Mercy and Redford Thurston high school players.

"This was by far the most grueling year I have coached; every game was a dogfight from the first pitch to the last out," Stingers co-coach Bob Smith said, adding the Stingers lost four games by two runs or less.

"I believe it is a tribute to the desire of each individual player to be her very best that brought this team to such a strong finish."

■ 'I believe it is a tribute to the desire of each individual player to be her very best that brought this team to such a strong finish.'

Bob Smith
—Stingers coach

The Stingers also participated in four tournaments, finishing fourth in the USSSA state, ninth in the NSA state and third in NSA events at Riverview and Potterville.

The roster included six Garden City players: cousins Angela and Christina Hudson, Brandy Mulvany, Kelly Shanks, Melody Smith and Stephanie Smith.

The other players are Dana Dziekan, Leah Moeller and Shayla O'Mara of Mercy, Kelly McSween and Tami Welch of Thurston, Megan Hall and Heather McLean of Taylor Kennedy, Kendra Dumke of Dearborn and Shannon Coultas of Plymouth Salem.

Stephanie Smith, who will play for Henry Ford Community College next year, was named the team's most valuable player.

Melody Smith and Dumke shared the Buzz Award, which is given to the player(s) who contribute in ways not reflected by the scorebook.

Smith played over pain and discomfort before having surgery to remove a tumor from a knee, according to coach Smith. Dumke, who batted .500 in the leadoff position, scored in all but four games over two seasons.

The defensive player of the year was second baseperson Kelly Shanks, who will continue playing at Michigan State, and McSween was named the most improved player.

Ed Moeller served as co-coach of the Stingers.

GOLF

North Farmington hoping to unseat Churchill in WLAA

BY DAN O'MEARA
STAFF WRITER

Boys golf will start the 1996-97 high school sports season Monday when Farmington Public Schools compete in the annual city tournament at Huron Meadows in Brighton.

North Farmington is the three-time defending champion, but the title could be up for grabs as its crosstown rivals also expect to be competitive.

Farmington High was the best of the bunch in the Western Lakes Activities Association meet, finishing fifth (451) and just ahead of Farmington Harrison (456) and North (458).

To start this year, the Raiders will be without two of their top players for most of August.

Senior Andrew Wantuck has a leg in a cast until the end of the month, and junior Dan Krochmal just returned Sunday after spending the summer overseas.

Besides missing Wantuck and Krochmal, each of whom averaged 43 strokes for nine holes last year, North also lost Aaron Stephan and Jason Mansuy to graduation.

The Raiders return five seniors, including three others with varsity experience: Brad Barth, Chris Reading and Nick Pfiefer.

North coach Daryl Case planned to cut a dozen players Wednesday, reducing the roster to 12, but he only keeps a senior if he places among the top six in practice rounds.

"I don't think any senior would want to play JV golf," he said.

Reading finished strong last season and missed qualifying for the regional by one stroke. Case said Barth has improved and senior Ian Woodhouse, who didn't play last year, could make the team.

One of the top young prospects is freshman Brian McCoy, who shot 78 at Glen Oaks on the first day of practice and has a future in golf, according to Case.

Sophomore Mike Barrett has improved his game, and Case looks for him to play better this year. Freshman Rob Krochmal is another newcomer who could help.

Two days after the city tournament, the Farmington schools are back in competition Wednesday in the annual 12-team Farmington Invitational.

"We certainly will be giving it our best," Case said, "but we won't know what kind of team we're going to have until after next week, when we can play some different courses like Kensington Valley and Huron Meadows.

"I don't know what our kids are going to shoot when they get away from our course. I know we're capable of shooting better scores, but right now we're not showing it."

Farmington High

The Falcons have huge holes to fill, according to coach Jim Miner, after losing five players to graduation: Kris King, Brett Rickard, Mitch Barrett, Mike Carolan and Brian Prentice.

But Farmington has some quality players returning from a team that was 4-1 in Lakes Division dual meets and 5-6 in Western Lakes contests.

Junior Derek Fox and seniors Pat Hickey and Jeff Thomas have the most varsity experience, and Miner said senior Nick Katcherian has made great strides in his game.

Fox had the best average among the three, shooting just over 41 per nine holes, and he carded a 39 in his only practice round thus far.

Hickey and Katcherian appear to vastly improved. Both have dropped their averages from 45 strokes to 37 1/2.

Junior Tim Fluter played in two varsity matches and should push for more playing time this year since he has lowered his average five strokes to 42.

"He works at San Marino with Nick, and both get a lot of time on the golf course," Miner said. "Both are very serious about their golf games; they're golf junkies."

Sophomores Chris Katcherian, John Knight and Jeremy Allor are up-and-coming players.

Katcherian "has a marvelous swing, and we look for good things out of him in the future," Miner said.

Allor has reduced his average score to the lows 40s, also, and Knight is a first-year golfer with a "nice swing" and equally low average.

"It looks like a lot of the fellas put some time in over the summer and got a little stronger and wiser," Miner said.

"But it's a real young team at this time of year, and who knows what's going to happen in the next two weeks?"

So he certainly isn't making any predictions about the overall season.

"At this time, we're stronger than I anticipated after losing so many seniors," Miner said. "We're better off than I thought we would be, but there's no test like putting them in a competitive match."

Farmington Harrison

The Hawks will have a more balanced lineup this year as opposed to relying on a couple key players, according to coach Bill Spencer.

The graduation losses include Kevin Horton, a state qualifier as a junior, and Kris Jovan, who just missed qualifying for state last year.

Jeff Moscow and Jared Taketa also have graduated after helping Harrison post a 3-2 record in Western Division duals and 7-4 mark against all Western Lakes opponents.

The Hawks return junior Jeff Boxman and seniors Adam Tandon, John Sennett, Muhamet Sulejman and Dave Bozak.

But the best player could prove to be freshman Brian Grohman.

He has the lowest average (38 1/2) on the team currently and could compensate for the loss of Horton, according to Spencer.

"He's been tournament tested, but we'll see if he can maintain it," he added.

The coach also likes what he saw from the returning players in two practice rounds.

Tandon and Bozak have dropped their averages seven strokes apiece to 39 and 40, respectively. The other four have made more modest gains.

Boxman is the most experienced player, having earned 20 match points (one per nine-hole round). Sulejman had 17, Tandon nine, Sennett six and Bozak five.

Senior Steve Vogel, junior Chad Hines and sophomore Chris Scott also return, but none played in no more than two varsity matches.

Hines, who missed most of the season because of a broken ankle, averaged 53 in a limited role but is shooting 39 this year.

"I expected him to be better," Spencer said, "but I didn't know he was going to shoot 39."

Scott and Vogel have showed improvement, and Spencer hopes they will get better as the season goes on.

"Last year we had a couple of superstars," Spencer said. "This year we can go seven deep for the first time in a lot of years.

"I have seven who average under 42, but I don't have as yet what you would classify as a superstar. If they keep shooting like that, we're going to be in good shape.

"When you put them on a tough course and go 18 holes, things change. We'll get a good indication Monday and Wednesday. By the time school starts, we'll all know where we stand."

Livonia Churchill shot 408 to win the Western Lakes championship with Plymouth Salem (421), Northville (435) and Westland John Glenn (443) following.

Phobias

Overcoming fear is her life struggle

BY VALERIE OLANDER
STAFF WRITER

Today Mary Ann Gogoleski said she leaves the door open for growth. But it wasn't too long ago she completely closed the door and was afraid to leave her home..

Gogoleski, 45, is the founder of Agoraphobics In Motion (AIM), a support group for those recovering from anxiety disorders or phobias. Since March 7, 1983, when 20 people showed up at the first AIM meeting, the group has grown to 14 groups throughout the metropolitan area. Locally, AIM meets at 7:30 p.m. every Thursday in Faith Lutheran Church, 30000 Five Mile, between Middlebelt and Merriman in Livonia.

Gogoleski formed the group after a 20-year battle with a panic disorder. Doctors failed to diagnose the problem for years.

Gogoleski was 12 years old when she experienced her first panic attack, which set the beginning stages for becoming agoraphobic. At the time, medical doctors didn't know enough about panic disorders to diagnose it. Much more is known today.

"I went to a Catholic school and I had my first panic attack while I was in church. I ran out and made my mother take me to the doctor. He said nothing was wrong with me," she said.

Gogoleski stopped going to church because every time she went the same uncontrollable sense of fear took over. It also put an end to all aspirations of becoming a nun.

In high school, the fear began to spread to different places and by the time she was in college, she couldn't stay in a classroom. It wasn't until then that she was diagnosed as having a panic disorder. The doctor prescribed Valium.

"At the time I didn't think it was a nervous thing. I thought I had a rare blood disease," she said. "I went to numerous cardiologists ... I wanted it to be something tangible even if it was something horrible."

After a brief visit to a therapist – a psychoanalyst – the panic disorder began getting worse rather than better. Digging into her past only dredged up more insecurities that added to the panic she was already feeling, she said.

"Why (the panic attack) happens doesn't matter," Gogoleski said.

She later discovered professionals specializing in cognitive behavioral therapy are the preferred method of recovery from anxiety disorders. She also learned that recovering comes from having a positive attitude.

But the fear didn't subside for some time. There was a period of about two years in which she was housebound. It was shortly after giving birth to her first child, she became scared of everything. Depression set in. She pulled the shades and left the phone off the hook.

A friend gave her a magazine article about agoraphobia. It was only then she realized what was happening to her.

Agoraphobia is fear of fear: A panic disorder is defined as someone having panic attacks and an agoraphobic is a person, who because of the panic attacks, avoids different things.

"More people find out they're agoraphobic from the media than they do from doctors," she said.

It was a minister in the end who set her on a path of recovery. His message was a simple one – a positive attitude. Of course, it came after much hard work.

"It wasn't until I took my three daughters to a movie theater that I realized I didn't have a panic attack in six months. I sat there thinking I didn't feel like leaving or dying," she said.

She thought about writing a book about her experience, but instead decided to form a support group. At the first meeting 20 people showed up. Scared, she forged ahead, standing in front of the group reading word for word off of a piece of paper detailing everything she went through. Gogoleski said she never looked up from the paper.

"I guess they knew I was sincere, because they came back the next week and the week after that," Gogoleski said.

Panic attack may signal anxiety disorder

BY VALERIE OLANDER
STAFF WRITER

There's no warning. It can happen anywhere – while you're driving, getting onto an elevator or shopping in the supermarket.

It's a raw sensation of fear accented by a pounding heart and shortness of breath. Fingers may begin to tingle and hot flashes cause droplets of sweat to begin at the temples. It's followed by an overwhelming and unsteady feeling that something is terribly wrong. Doom appears imminent.

The feeling passes within a few minutes, but leaves an underlying feeling that this sensation could return at any given moment.

A panic attack can be the beginning phase of various anxiety disorders. Sometimes, the attack is triggered by severe stress, such as a major life change, loss of job, divorce, or death of a loved one.

"When a cop stops you, you may feel your heart starts beating. You can identify with why you are feeling that way. But when you can't identify (the fear), then it's a panic disorder," said Livonia psychiatrist Dr. Victor Moss, who is on staff at St. Mary Hospital and has a practice at the Naria medical building on Farmington Road, north of Five Mile.

A panic disorder is one of the more common anxieties diagnosed by psychiatrists, he said. In fact, one in 50 people will have a panic attack some time in his or her life.

The good news is that it is treatable with medications and behavioral therapy, Moss said.

Panic attacks can occur in other anxiety-based illnesses, such as depression, manic depression, schizophrenia and various personality disorders.

People can develop the attacks during the withdrawal period from chronically using drugs or alcohol.

Anxiety also is at the root of phobias and obsessive-compulsive disorders, which are earmarked by repeatedly doing a task over and over again.

Moss said one man sought help from him because he washed his hands 150 times a day.

"He had been doing it for 40 years," Moss said. "He got disgusted with it ... That's the thing with obsessive-compulsive disorders, the patient knows others don't do it and eventually they recognize they have to do something about it."

Medications and behavioral therapy can make a significant difference. In this particular case, Moss prescribed the antidepressant Prozac to the man.

The patient also was told to keep a record, writing down every time he washed his hands. In a five- to six-week period the patient had reduced his hand washing to 40 times per day, Moss said.

Everyone has anxiety to some degree, but when it begins to interfere with a person's sleep, appetite, or work, then it's time to get help, he added.

"I think the big thing is that this can be helped ... There's a general prejudice in the community for those with emotional problems. People have to remember that a psychiatrist is a doctor, just like any other medical doctor and there's an organic underlying for all of this or else medication wouldn't work," he said.

St. Mary to offer free screening

A free anxiety screening is being offered by St. Mary Hospital at Five Mile and Levan in Livonia from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Thursday, Aug. 22, in the Center for Counseling Services by appointment only.

A mental health professional will meet privately with individuals to help identify if they are experiencing anxiety and how to seek relief from the symptoms.

Registration is required.

Local man 'quality hero'

When Gov. John Engler formed the Michigan Quality Council on Nov. 10, 1993, he had people like Livonia resident Frank E. Angileri in mind.

Angileri exemplifies the council's goal of promoting a culture of business excellence within the state, including a commitment to total quality management. In fact, Angileri is a "Michigan Quality Hero."

The Michigan Quality Council's "Hero" award allows the council to recognize outstanding individuals, in addition to businesses and industries.

"It awards any person who provides outrageous or memorable customer service," said Bill Kalmar, the council's director. "We have the opportunity to recognize that person who is a quality hero, someone who contributes to the quality of life, the quality of Michigan."

Angileri worked as a quality engineer at the Ford Motor Co. for 34 years. After retiring in 1988, he started his own quality management consulting business, Quality Concepts and Strategies, Inc. He prepares applicants for the ISO-9000 and Q1-9000, two widely recognized quality standard programs.

"I consult and guide them by the hand to get them to that point," said Angileri.

Angileri also initiated the Angileri Quality Award at Madonna University in Livonia. That award goes to a student obtaining a Master's Degree in Quality and Operations Management. The student must have made significant contributions to quality improvements in the automotive industry or related areas, while maintaining a 3.25 academic average.

In the typical fashion of someone with a lifelong commitment to excellence, Angileri is a modest man. "It's a long story," he said about being named a Michigan Quality Hero. "I didn't think I deserved it."

Angileri, who said he is the "same age as Johnny Carson and Queen Elizabeth," immigrated from Sicily in 1950. He had an MBA from the University of Palermo but no English language skills. He worked as a stock boy at J. L. Hudson's in route to his job at the Ford Motor Co.

Quality hero: When Gov. John Engler formed the Michigan Quality Council on Nov. 10, 1993, he had people like Livonia resident Frank E. Angileri in mind. Angileri is a "Michigan Quality Hero."

"I owe my success to my wife Bessie and the Ford Motor Co. I didn't even speak English when I arrived."

Today, Angileri is proud of his work history, including his certification from the Regulatory Accreditation Board (RAB).

Motivation is difficult to analyze, and when asked about the source of his motivation, Angileri said, "One, it's the genes. That's the most important. Then this country. Everyone has equal opportunity to achieve. And it's perseverance, willpower and a little bit of luck. I don't know the ratio of these elements."

■ 'I try to do one job at a time and do it right." He gave his lawn as an example. "You should see how it is manicured. That is reflected in everything I do.'

And how does he translate motivation into action? "I try to do one job at a time and do it right." He gave his lawn as an example. "You should see how it is manicured. That is reflected in everything I do."

When it comes to quality management, Angileri acknowledges that doing the job right requires hard work. "I try to be up to snuff with the latest techniques, attend seminars and read all the training manuals because this game is a very demanding game."

Even though Angileri spent his career in management, he is on the side of the American worker. "If he or she is properly trained, they can do as good a job as any worker in the world. Eighty-five percent of quality problems are caused by management, not the workers. We don't take the time to train the person or provide the proper equipment."

Even though Angileri is a recognized Michigan Quality Hero, he admits he isn't perfect. "I do goof. My wife reminds me of that."

RENAISSANCE FESTIVAL IS A RIGHT JOLLY GOOD TIME FOR ALL

Renaissance moments: In an instant, photographer Jim Probelski captures expressions, which convey the essence of the Renaissance Festival in a way words cannot.

STORY BY KEELY WYGONIK • STAFF WRITER

Leave your troubles behind, escape to the 16th century at the 17th annual Michigan Renaissance Festival opening Saturday.

We're not jesting: The festival offers something for the whole family. Join King George and Queen Gwendolyn, and the villagers of the Shire of Hollygrove where merrymaking is the rule. Guests are welcomed by peasants, musicians, and hundreds of costumed entertainers performing both onstage and off throughout the day. The village features over 160 artisans selling pottery, jewelry, weavings, herbs, clothing, and other items reminiscent of the 16th century.

"I've never run into anyone who's been in a bad mood," said Jim Probelski of Livonia. "Everyone is having a good time eating, drinking and making merry."

Probelski, a math teacher at Franklin High School in Livonia, and adjunct math professor at Schoolcraft College in Livonia, placed second this year in an Arbor Drugs-sponsored photo contest to capture the essence of the Michigan Renaissance Festival. Probelski's photo, of a child, entered in the professional photo category, was selected from 123 entries.

In addition to teaching, he's on the staff of Midwest Photographic Workshops in Farmington Hills. He does model portfolio work, nature photography, and recently, street scenes.

"I'm always looking, always observing," said Probelski, who attends the festival four or five times during the season. For him, the Renaissance Festival offered an opportunity to do street-type photography in a safe environment. He started taking pictures at the festival about 10 years ago.

"Since then, I've felt comfortable wandering around in other towns," he said. "I went to the Ann Arbor Art Fair to photograph people instead of art. I look for something that catches the eye. I try to pick out single subjects, or small groups. It's an instant of time where you can capture something – that's art. The fun of photography is catching something no one else sees."

This year's 17th annual festival offers continuous entertainment on 12 themed stages featuring lighthearted drama, comedy, bawdy and classical music, folk and courtly dance. Impromptu performances are presented by troubadours, street theater troupes, puppeteers, magicians, jugglers and musicians along tree-shaded paths.

Test your skill in games popular during the Renaissance period – archery, Jacob's Ladder, Dueling Buckets, and the Maze. Trumpets herald the entrance of armored knights on horseback onto the joust field each day at 12:45, 3:30 and 5:45 p.m. The New Riders of the Golden Age wear over 90 pounds of armor as they vie for the Queen's favor on the fields of Upson Downs.

There's a new special events pavilion – The Castle, presented by Inglenook Vineyards Wine Company. The Castle will host a variety of special events each weekend, including a wine seminar, storytelling, the Queen's Tea, and the first Tournament of Temptations, where some of metro Detroit's finest chefs will bring their sweetest delights to compete for a king's ransom in gold.

"It's a beautiful castle in the middle of the grounds," said Michelle Baryj, festival public relations director. "We'll have special events there including a charity wine tasting. The tasting is cause and effect, and shows how different wines go with different foods."

You're sure to work up an appetite at the festival. In keeping with Renaissance tradition, most festival foods are handheld. Savor roasted turkey drumstick, corn-on-the-cob, soup-in-a-breadbowl or an apple dumpling. Toast the day at the expanded pub area.

Also new this year is Flight of the Raptor, a display of predatory birds. Join Ray Pena and his pets as he shares the history of falconry and bird ecology.

ELI REED

Directing: Director Robert Altman on the set of "Kansas City."

Altman comes home again in 'Kansas City'

BY JOHN MONAGHAN
SPECIAL WRITER

Jazz music and filmmaker Robert Altman have long gone hand in hand. From his early successes in the 1970s, through his years spent in Ann Arbor in the 1980s, to "Kansas City," which opens this weekend, improvisation has always been key to his work.

"This movie is like jazz," Altman said. "The story we have is three minutes long, like the lyrics of a song, then we give it to the actors and, like jazz musicians, they start playing on it for 20 or 30 minutes and everybody does their own little riffs." The movie returns Altman to the city he called home in the 1930s. "I spent the first 18 years of my life there," he recalled. "I spent a lot of time in those black jazz clubs from the time I was 15 on. I probably heard Coleman Hawkins and all of these guys playing, but I didn't know their names."

Hot jazz sessions at K.C.'s Hey Hey Club are interspersed through the story of Blondie, the secretary played by Jennifer Jason Leigh, who kidnaps a senator's wife (Miranda Richardson). She wants her boyfriend to be released from the clutches of Seldom Seen, Hey Hey owner and a notorious black gangster. Filming in Kansas City proved surprisingly easy.

"It's the kind of city where they didn't tear things down and rebuild it," Altman said. "It just keeps moving southwest. We replaced some street lights and a couple of fences, and tried to get the cars off the street, but otherwise it was all there."

"Kansas City" has been anxiously awaited by jazz and film fans alike. Altman's last movie, the over hyped fashion epic "Pret a Porter," was a disaster. The studios were reportedly worried about this project as well, postponing its release from early spring to late summer. One concern was that the "cutting contest," a six-minute music competition in the middle of the film, would slow the action down. Preview audiences have loved it.

Altman says the jazz sequences have been compiled into their own 50-minute video called "Jazz '34," which will bow on PBS this fall. Altman recreated the legendary sessions which attracted Coleman Hawkins, Lester Young, Count Basie, and even Charlie Parker, seen here as a teenage kid with a saxophone. "We wanted the best players around today," he said. "We mixed groups. Most of them never played together and most won't play together again. We wanted that sense of jamming." A sort of dream team of the jazz world, the Hey Hey ensemble included, among others, sax players Joshua Redmond and James Carter, guitarist Mark Whitfield, and bassist Christian McBride.

According to Altman, "30 or 40 years from now these will be the real lions of jazz." Altman has enjoyed a love-hate relationship with filmgoers and critics ever since the 1970s, when he made such seminal American movies as "M.A.S.H," "Nashville," and "McCabe and Mrs. Miller." Those three films alone would leave him stand as one of America's great directors. As the old saying goes, you're only as successful as your last picture.

In the 1980s, his creative batteries and studio clout apparently running low, he came to Ann Arbor to work with the theater and film departments at the University of Michigan. He helped stage an opera, even shot a movie there, a one-man show called "Secret Honor" about the last days in office of President Richard Nixon. Then came "The Player" in 1992 and "Short Cuts" a year later, movies that again made him an international success. Altman treats his professional ups and downs with characteristic candor.

"Hollywood is a bunch of accountants that follow whatever sells," he scoffed. "... You know this 'Multiplicity' picture? This is what they want to get to: when they can invent someone and don't need to pay anybody. When they can just clone the whole thing. If I ever made a picture and everyone said, 'this is great,' then I'd really be in trouble."

FINE ARTS

Novi Art Festival showcases works by local artists

LINDA ANN CHOMIN

If you're looking for artwork to set your home apart from the rest, the Novi Chamber of Commerce has the show for you.

Glass artist Stan Megdall of West Bloomfield and ceramist Alan Gibson of Livonia are among the 150 exhibitors participating in the second annual Novi Art Festival 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 17-18 at the Novi Town Center. A portion of the proceeds will benefit the Novi Chamber of Commerce. Admission is free.

Visitors will also enjoy entertainment by strolling musicians including Russell Donnellon on acoustic guitar and Inkari, who will perform the music of the Andes. Plenty of food will be available.

Megdall, who has a one man show continuing through Aug. 22 at the Janice Charach Epstein Gallery in the Jewish Community Center in West Bloomfield, will offer a number of blown glass objects for the home. From decorative accessories like paperweights and bowls to shelves and three-legged contemporary tables, the works are priced from $30 for a flower to $950 for a table.

According to wife Debbie, Megdall's glass has changed during the last two years from painterly to free-flowing ocean-like forms. New works include sculptured perfume bottles and wall vases ($55), which act like wall sconces to hold fresh or dried flowers.

Megdall began creating the glass in his West Bloomfield studio after closing the first one he built in Birmingham in 1990. The large pieces are produced with the help of his father, a Birmingham pediatrician who assists in the studio a couple of days a week.

Megdall first became interested in glass while taking a clay class wi h Barbara Friedman at Birmingham Groves High School. Megdall credits her for giving him the encouragement to pursue the arts. Before studying glass blowing under the tutelage of Albert Young and Herb Babcock and learning about non-functional furniture from Maxwell Davis at Center for Creative Studies College of Art and Design in Detroit, Megdall studied clay with Marvin Zender at Northern Michigan University in Marquette. Over the years, the 31 year old glass artist has produced everything from tiles for a Huntington Woods home to the tripod table. His work, which is in the permanent collection of the Corning Museum of Glass in New York, is created in the blasting fires of a 2,000-degree furnace.

"Glass is a difficult medium. It's not a tactile medium. The human aspect of it is gone because you can never get your fingertips on it," said Megdall.

Gibson will bring lots of contemporary wall reliefs ($175-$1,000) created with a combination of processes. Background pieces take their start as slips poured into molds while forefront abstract and geometric shapes are hand-cut to insure that works become one-of-a-kind. Once assembled each is like a collage of jigsaw puzzle pieces. Slip casting reduces the weight so that artworks can be hung safely on walls. Gibson will also offer a limited number of large vases, usually placed on dining room tables as centerpieces. Prices range $300 to $400.

"There will be some pastel work but the emphasis, following today's latest decorating trends, is on darker colors, jewel tones, and fuschias," said Alan Gibson who with his wife Lori will do shows in Miami, Dallas, New York City, and Philadelphia this year.

Clay by Gibson was started by Alan's mother Barbara 28 years ago. She has decided to cut back on clay in favor of soft sculpture endeavors. Now, Alan is at the helm and the direction of the business is changing. A special order last year led him to create multiple hangings, enough to fill a 19 by 22 foot wall in one of Miami's new contemporary homes.

"Frequently, people like our work but don't see something that fits their needs. Many times they have large walls to fill so 30-40 percent of the work is commissions."

Besides Gibson and Megdall, other Observer & Eccentric area artists included in the festival are Suzanne Lifton, collage, Farmington; Carole Berhorst, clay, Bloomfield Hills; Kathy Phillips, watercolor, West Bloomfield; Dudley Smart, painting, Rochester Hills.

Linda Ann Chomin of Canton Township is a freelance writer specializing in the visual arts. her Artistic Expressions column appears weekly in the Arts & Entertainment section of The Observer Newspapers.

Program helps students get a 'Jumpstart on the Arts'

BY KEELY WYGONIK
STAFF WRITER

During the summer, a lot of people come home to visit mom and dad, and rest. Not Broadway actor Daniel C. Cooney. He's putting in long days, teaching, rehearsing, and helping build sets for Jump Start the Arts presentation of Andrew Lloyd Webber's "Evita!" 8 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Aug. 22-24; and 3 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 25 in the Louis E. Schmidt Auditorium, Clarenceville High School, 20155 Middlebelt Road, (between 7 Mile and 8 Mile Roads) Livonia. tickets are $16 adults, $14 senior citizens and children, available in advance by calling (313) 425-5782 or Ticketmaster (810) 645-6666. Tickets will also be available at the door.

"I love going home," said Cooney who will star as Che, a role he performed in the National Touring Company of "Evita." "I'm working 12 hour days, but I feel like I'm making a difference."

Cooney, a 1985 graduate of John Glenn High School in Westland, and his friend Michael J. Sawaya of Garden City, now a Wayne County Deputy Sheriff, started the program last summer. "We grew up together, and have been friends since we were old enough to walk across the street," said Cooney.

They started Jumpstart the Arts to give high school students an opportunity to develop their skills by working side-by-side professional stage actors. Twenty-eight students are selected during April auditions, and attend a two-week summer acting workshop at Clarenceville High School, taught by Jim Bonney, one of New York's finest acting instructors, and Cooney.

After the workshop, the students, who also perform in "Evita!" began rehearsals. While Cooney is on the road performing, Sawaya is home, arranging auditions, finding a place to hold the workshop and production, and taking care of all the behind the scenes details.

"Evita!" which follows the rise to power of Eva Peron, once the leader of Argentina, whose death on July 26, 1952, was a shock to her people.

In addition to Cooney, the production will star Stephanie Myre formerly of Farmington Hills as Eva Peron. Myre, a professional actress, performed the role of Mary Magdalene in two performances of Jumpstart's production of "Jesus Christ Superstar," and the role of Pilate's wife. Myre, 19, is a student at Depaul University in Chicago, she has numerous regional theater performances to her credit.

Cooney, who stars as Che, recently appeared as Perchik in the 30th Anniversary Tour of "Fiddler on the Roof," which stopped at the Fisher Theatre in April. He will begin attending Yale Drama School this fall.

Co-starring, as Juan Peron, is John Sartor, a professional actor who began his acting/singing career at Michigan Opera Theatre. He then went on to do regional and professional theater roles all over the U.S. and in Europe. The role of Magaldi will be played by Matthew Karrel of Garden City. Brooke Andres, 13 of Livonia, is cast as the Mistress. She has performed roles in more than 18 regional theater productions over the years including at the Attic Theatre, Michigan Opera Theatre and Players Guild of Dearborn.

David Roberts, who lives in New York, is co-director and choreographer. Roberts recently worked with Cooney in the Papermill Playhouse production of "Evita!", in New Jersey, which starred Cooney as Che.

Jumpstart the Arts is recreating the original Broadway set, "to the best of our ability," adds Cooney, and rented some of the costumes used in the Broadway production. Roberts designed the set, and Cooney, and his father, Chuck Cooney, a master carpenter are helping to build it.

"I'm grateful to have the opportunity to do this again," said Cooney. "I hope people support it by coming to the show. Then we'll do it again next year."

Primitive Radio Gods lend song to 'Cable Guy'

CHRISTINA FUOCO

When the Primitive Radio Gods' Chris O'Connor was first approached about putting his song "Standing Outside A Broken Phone Booth With Money In My Hand" on the soundtrack to the movie "The Cable Guy," he wasn't exactly sold on the idea.

"I told them, 'There's no way.' I just envisioned 'Pet Detective Three.' I didn't see how the song would work so I said no. They kept calling me back saying it's going to be a big movie. Finally, I guess the director (Ben Stiller) wanted to use some of the song in the movie. I talked to him about my reservations and he assured me that it was going to be a departure, a dark comedy."

He read the script which "didn't look like it was going to be a real standard Jim Carrey flick" and since he wanted to make sure that his song was heard, he agreed to let them use the song, a complacent pop/hip-hop ditty that samples B.B. King's "How Blue Can You Get."

The video for "Standing Outside A Broken Phone Booth With Money In My Hand" soon became a MTV "Buzz Clip" and the single popped onto adult alternative and alternative radio stations. The Primitive Radio Gods' first album "Rocket," on which the song can also be heard, hit No. 1 on the Billboard alternative radio charts; No. 14 in Alternative Album Sales; No. 25 on Retail Album Sales; and No. 1 on adult alternative radio. That's not bad for a man who nearly quit the music business all together.

O'Connor began his musical career with the California band, the I-Rails, who released four indie albums between 1988 and 1990. O'Connor was busy working on the band's fifth album when the other I-Rails – including current Primitive Radio Gods' members drummer Tim Lauterio and bassist Jeff Sparks – left the band to take day jobs. He finished recording what would be "Rocket" in a broken-down '69 Ampex 16-track tape-deck on a $1,000 budget.

After a three-year break from the music industry, he decided to release the album himself. Record companies had a lukewarm response to the album so he quit the music business and returned to his job as an air-traffic controller. A year later, on a whim, he blindly mailed out a few more copies of the album. Columbia Records heard it and immediately decided to release the album.

Now the band, which also includes guitarist Luke McAuliffe, is touring in support of "Rocket." Primitive Radio Gods perform Thursday, Aug. 15, at the Shelter below St. Andrew's Hall, 431 E. Congress, Detroit. Doors open at 7 p.m. for the all-ages show. Tickets are $7.50 in advance. For more information, call (313) 961-MELT.

- Misc: Tickets for Rage Against The Machine, Girls Against Boys and Stanford Prison Experiment, Thursday, Sept. 19, at Cobo Arena go on sale at 10 a.m. Saturday, Aug. 17. Tickets are $13 in advance. ... Warner Reprise Video released "Introducing Morrissey," a new home video collection featuring excerpts from Morrissey's 1995 Sheffield and Blackpool, England, shows, on Aug. 13. The collection includes tracks from his album "Your Arsenal" and a retrospective of his hits. ... Speaking of Morrissey and The Smiths, Rhino Records is putting out "Hang The DJ," a three-CD collection chronicling the evolution of modern rock from 1986-1988. Taken from the line "Hang the DJ" in The Smiths' song "Panic," "Hang The DJ" features New Order ("True Faith"), Eurythmics ("Missionary Man"), Gene Loves Jezebel ("Desire"), and Divinyls ("Pleasure and Pain").

If you have a question or a comment for Christina Fuoco, you can write to her at The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia, or call (313) 953-2047, mailbox No. 2130.

TICKETS PLEASE

JOHN MONAGHAN

With "Kansas City," Robert Altman does more than simply pay tribute to the city of his youth. He weaves a complex tapestry that touches on race relations, political corruption, the roots of jazz, and the importance of movies on the populace all in the context of the 1930s.

Altman fans still reeling from the disappointment of "Pret a Porter" should find most of the things they like about America's premier maverick director in "Kansas City."

Jennifer Jason Leigh plays Blondie, a secretary who kidnaps a senator's drug-addicted wife (Miranda Richardson). She wants her boyfriend released from the hands of black gangsters who caught him trying to roll one of their best gambling customers.

Interspersed are scenes of the Hey Hey Club, the K.C. hot spot run by Seldom Seen (Harry Belafonte), whose jam sessions frame much of the movie's action. Seen controls black gang activities, yet he must also coexist with the white-led machine run by "Boss" Tom Pendergast (like many characters in the film, an actual historical figure.)

Altman usually mines incredible performances from his actors, and "Kansas City" is no exception. Jason Leigh, who has already created 1930s-style characters in "The Hudsucker Proxy" and "Mrs. Parker and the Vicious Circle," cleverly captures a pathetic woman who patterns her actions on the movies, especially those with tough-talking Jean Harlow.Belafonte, who hasn't been seen on screen to much effect since "Carmen Jones" in the 1950s, has what may be the year's biggest screen comeback as Seldom Seen.

Steve Buscemi, as a politically-connected barkeep, and Michael Murphy, as the troubled senator, round out the supporting cast.

From set design to costumes, "Kansas City" evokes the look and feel of the 1930s. Fortunately, Altman and cinematographer Oliver Stapleton don't go for the yellowy tones that usually accompany period films, giving it instead a more realistic and immediate feel. Moviegoers unfamiliar with Altman may find the movie schizophrenic and the jazz segments intrusive. But the six-minute "cutting contest," where jazz musicians compete in an informal session, is so electric that audiences have found it difficult not to applaud.

Main Art Theatre118 N. Main Street at 11 Mile, Royal Oak. Films play through at least Thursday, unless noted otherwise. Call (810) 542-0180 for information and showtimes. ($6.50; $4 students, seniors and matinee; $3 twilight)

• "Lone Star" (USA - 1996). John Sayles wrote and directed this subtle, moving drama about a sheriff who must dig deep to solve a 40-year-old murder. What he doesn't count on is that the prime suspect is his late father, a legend in his tiny Texas border town.

• "Trainspotting" (Britain - 1995). A runaway hit in Britain: the story of five liars, losers, junkies, and thieves on the road to self-destruction in modern-day Edinburgh. This one's directed by Danny Boyle, who made the clever "Shallow Grave."

• "Emma" (USA - 1996). After it showed up as the modern story "Clueless" last year, Hollywood has brought Jane Austen's novel to the screen as the real thing, a beautifully filmed and exceptionally acted tale of a woman who fancies herself a matchmaker but falls short when it comes to her own romance.

Michigan Theatre606 Liberty, Ann Arbor. Call (313) 668-8397 for information. ($5; $4 students/seniors)

• "A Perfect Candidate" (USA - 1996). 7 p.m. Aug. 15. The 1994 Virginia Senate race between Oliver North and Chuck Robb is the focus of this documentary about the political process.

• "Shallow Grave" (Scotland - 1996). 11:30 p.m. Aug. 16-17. He hit the big time with "Trainspotting," but Scottish director Danny Boyle made a smaller splash last year with this cleverly wicked thriller about three friends who murder their roommate and then try to hide their dirty deed.

Redford Theatre 17360 Lahser (at Grand River), Detroit. Call (313) 537-2560. ($3.50) Screwball comedy double feature — "It Happened One Night" (USA - 1936) and "Twentieth Century" (USA - 1936). 8 p.m. Aug. 16; 2, 8 p.m. Aug. 17 (organ overture begins a half hour before showtime).

Two classics of Depression-era comedy. The first is a fitting tribute to Claudette Colbert (who passed away last month) as a runaway heiress who hits the road with newspaper man Clark Gable. Directed by Frank Capra. The second stars John Barrymore and Carole Lombard in the story of a volatile Broadway director and his tired-of-it-all protegee. Howard Hawks directs.

Canterbury Village shows art in historic surroundings

BY SUSAN B. TAUBER
Staff writer

More than 90 artists passed the muster to be in the Second Annual Art in the Park at Olde World Canterbury Village in Orion Township.

They're coming from around the country to participate in the three-day juried, fine arts show. It will feature display booths throughout the Victorian-style village with its quaint cottages and shops from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m., Friday, Aug. 16; 10 a.m. to 7 p.m., Saturday, Aug. 17 and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Sunday, Aug. 18.

Admission and parking are free all three days.

Olde Worlde Canterbury Village is located three miles north on Joslyn Road off of I-75.

Patricia Hill Burnett, Lorraine Chambers McCarty and Gail Mally-Mack judged the entries.

"These are all very illustrious artists," said Sharyn Davis. "We were very fortunate to get them to help us.

Davis is coordinator for Art in the Park. She also is on the board of the Orion Art Center in Lake Orion Village. The non-profit art center is involved in the show. It will receive proceeds from the jury fees paid by the artists.

She's very excited about the upcoming show. "We've doubled the number of exhibiting artists from 45 last year to 90 this year," she said.

"That's all the openings we have. We also have a wonderful cross section representing only fine arts."

Media displayed will include clay, baskets, leather, painting, printmaking, toys, enamels, folk art, mixed media, fiber/fabric, glass, jewelry, photography, wood, metals, drawings, sculpture and miscellaneous.

While browsing and buying among the various artists' booths, visitors will enjoy other types of entertainment. This includes Burnett's signing of her book, True Colors, an artist's journey from beauty queen to feminist.

"She's painted everyone from presidents' wives to Margaret Thatcher," added Davis.

She'll sign copies of True Colors from 4-6 p.m., Friday, at King's Court Castle Restaurant. There will be entertainment to enhance the show.

Judges will select artists for first, second and third prize in the categories of two-dimensional and three-dimensional art. They will choose three honorable mentions in each category.

There also will be six purchase awards.

"This something we're trying to encourage," said Davis. "These go the artists selected by community businesses who chose to purchase a piece of their art. The business people will have the artwork; the artists will have a ribbon. It's a win-win situation."

Art lovers of all ages are welcome to Art in the Park. In addition to viewing the artists' creations, they can enjoy the various offerings at the village.

These include carousel rides and specialty shops, including Always Christmas, Toy World, and the Fudge Shop.

The Village of Lake Orion downtown merchants are staging their own art show, Art in the Village, to coincide with the Canterbury Village show. It will feature art works by at least 17 artists.

"This is a chance for people to visit downtown Lake Orion, to look at work by many local artists, try out our food establishments and visit the local shops," said Beverly Luther of the Lake Orion Downtown Merchants Association.

AT HOME Inside...  F1

Little Plymouth sub has a great location

It's easy to see why Village Cove, a platted residential subdivision on the north side of Wilcox Road east of Edward Hines Drive in Plymouth Township, would be popular with prospective buyers.

First, it's fairly small – just 22 lots on about six acres.

But let Salvatore (Sam) LoPiccolo, the developer/builder take up the theme.

"The beauty of it is the privacy of a cul-de-sac street, trees, woods," he said. "Downtown Plymouth ... with charm and history ... is probably two miles from here. Old Village is one-half mile.

"I believe accessibility to freeways is going to be important. You're minutes from Ann Arbor, and you can get to downtown Detroit in probably 20 minutes.

"Wilcox Lake," LoPiccolo added.

The waterways and other amenities of Hines Park – bicycling, skating, jogging, picnicking, birding and fishing – are an easy walk away.

"I think it's going to be the buyer who wants to stay in Plymouth, who wants a home of the '90s and wants to stay in the $250,000 range," LoPiccolo said of expected interest.

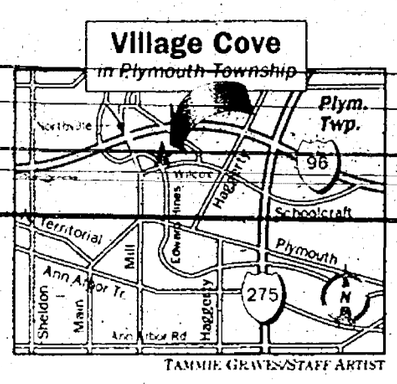
He identified some of those amenities as master suite with separate tub and shower, walk-in closets and volume ceilings.

"We'll offer homes with lofts, two-story foyers," LoPiccolo said.

Five basic floor plans are on the drawing board. Prices start at about $180,000 and go to $229,000.

All will include at base-price fireplace, range and dishwasher, first-floor laundry, 2-1/2 baths, two-car garage and basement.

The least expensive is a ranch of about 1,600 square feet with three bedrooms, two baths, a great room, living room and dining room priced at $179,900.



TAMMIE GRAVES/STAFF ARTIST

A colonial of 2,375 square feet with four bedrooms will carry a price of about $209,900.

A two-story of 2,150 square feet with the master on the first floor and two bedrooms up will sell for about $219,000, as will a 2,400-square-foot colonial with three bedrooms.

The most expensive plan, a colonial of 2,500 square feet with four bedrooms or three bedrooms and a loft that overlooks the great room, plus a den downstairs, will be priced at about $229,000.

Lots with walk-out basements, premium woods sites and houses with upgrades like air conditioning and whirlpool tubs are extra.

Primary exterior materials will be brick and wood siding.

LoPiccolo has started clearing the land. He intends to start putting in the roads, water and sewer lines the middle of this month. He plans to start building in October, with the first buyers taking possession in January or February.

"Probably 30 percent of the lots can be walk-out basements," LoPiccolo said. "There's some heavily wooded sites. We're going to do everything we can to save trees like this (huge maple).

"When it's done, people will drive by and see the entrance, but it (the subdivision) will be hidden. That's why we called it Village Cove. We took village from Old Village (in Plymouth) and cove being carved out of the woods.

On the boards: LoPiccolo Homes is pulling together several different designs, including this colonial, for Village Cove in Plymouth Township.

"Every time I used to go down this street, I saw the strip of land and thought it would be a good sub," LoPiccolo said.

"I have a partner in the deal, Donald Treader, who one day saw a sign go up. He stopped. We put a deal together. It was a long time. We had to have patience for it. It's a great spot."

Village Cove will be serviced by city water and sewers. It's within the Plymouth-Canton school district. The sub will have sidewalks.

The property tax rate currently is $24.58 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation, half of market value. That means the owners of a $219,000 house there would pay just under $2,700 in taxes the first year.

An annual association fee of about $100 per house to maintain the entrance and common areas is expected.

"We plan to have a date when people can walk the site and put down a deposit," LoPiccolo said. "Sept. 1 is the target."

Susan and Rich Allen are thinking about buying in Village Cove.

"We live right behind there in Lake Pointe," Susan said. "We love the area. It's just a beautiful spot. There's a lot to offer in this community (Plymouth).

"We live in a smaller home now, have a growing family, and we're looking at a larger home. We'd like to stay in the area. We would need four bedrooms, and I like the great room style.

"It has nice access to the road system, and it's hidden, too," Susan said. "My husband jogs, and we bike as a family. Hines Drive is real nice for that."

Lynzie and Michael Babala also have considered a move.

"We want to stay in Plymouth, and we're keeping our eyes open for houses with new features we don't have now," she said.

Anyone interested in specific information about Village Cove may contact LoPiccolo's office at (313) 455-4320 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

MORTGAGE SHOPPING

DAVID C. MULLY

Gaining the credit you need to begin your house-buying process

Buying a house, particularly for the first time, is a big step. And, because a house is typically the largest purchase a person will make in his/her life, most buyers must get credit to finance their house purchase. Before getting a large amount of credit to buy a house, you need to start establishing your good credit record with smaller amounts of credit.

Get a good credit rating

Credit allows you to "buy now and pay later." It's a valuable convenience to be able to buy and use goods and services before you're actually able to pay for them. That's why it's so important to maintain a good credit rating. Lenders assess your credit worthiness whether you're a good "risk" to pay off your credit balance by looking at two factors:

■ your ability to repay based on income, expenses and debt.

■ your credit history and record of repaying your debts on time.

To begin to get a good credit rating, get some experience repaying money. It's not too difficult of a process, but it will take some discipline on your part. For starters, you can open a savings or checking account at a bank and borrow against the amount you have on deposit. Or, you could apply for a co-signed loan where a person with an established credit rating can help you get a loan by co-signing and sharing the responsibility for repaying it. Having a co-signer just tells the bank that if the first party is unable to repay the debt, the co-signer will.

As another choice, you can apply for a department store or oil company credit card. These cards usually are easier to obtain than bank credit cards and are a good way to get started. You can use your history of rent and utility payments as well.

If you can show that you made payments on an account held in your spouse's name, that account's credit history will be considered as well. The fact that you made regular payments on these bills is just as important to lenders.

The Golden Rule of managing credit is to always repay your debt on time. Your credit rating is a record kept by a credit reporting agency that shows how well you pay your bills and make your loan payments. Other lenders can check your record with the credit agency when deciding whether to loan you money and extend additional credit to you. Lenders want to see not only that you pay your existing debts, but also that you pay your bills on time.

Keep a good credit rating

You'll want to be careful with the credit you've worked hard to obtain. Some rules of thumb for maintaining a good credit rating are:

■ Don't borrow unless you are sure you can meet the payments.

■ Don't borrow more than you need.

■ Don't borrow unnecessarily; borrow only to fulfill a real need or you might find yourself in more debt that you can afford.

■ Don't borrow from many different sources.

■ Stop borrowing when you see some danger signals such as past-due notices, inability to make all your monthly payments, or running out of money before payday.

If you have an emergency situation such as the loss of a job or extended illness, and begin to fall behind in your payments, call your lender immediately. If you explain the situation, the lender will usually work with you to make new arrangements for payment. It's very important that you take the first step and call before you fall too far behind and your credit record is damaged.

It's a good idea to periodically check your credit record to see exactly what's on it and make sure there are no errors. You can obtain a report from a local credit reporting agency. Check your Yellow Pages. One agency, TRW, provides individuals with one annual free copy of his/her credit report. For more information, contact TRW at 1-800-682-7654. If you are denied credit based on your credit record, you can receive a copy of your credit report free if you request it within 30 days of the date of your loan denial.

Establishing good credit can certainly help you down the line when you're ready to apply for larger credit, such as a house mortgage. It's important to keep your use of credit under control so that your credit history will never give a negative impression to a potential lender.

Interest rates in review:

Here are some interest rates that may be helpful to you in tracking the direction of rates for house mortgages. These are just a guide. Be sure to call a lender to get current rate quotes.

In Freddie Mac's Primary Mortgage Market Survey, the 30-year fixed rate for the North Central area for the week ended Aug. 9 moved downward to 7.93 percent (U.S. average 7.88 percent). A week ago, the average for the U.S. was 8.23 percent, and one year ago, it was 7.80 percent.

Current 15-year fixed-rate mortgages have dropped slightly to an average 7.44 percent. Adjustable-rate mortgages also dropped slightly to an average 6.24 percent for our area of the country.

New vinyl flooring goes down like 'Post-It' notes

Revolutionary new vinyl flooring goes down like a big "Post-It" note

Imagine do-it-yourself vinyl flooring so easy to install it goes down like a giant Post-It note.

Even more amazing, it comes back up like one, making it the ideal flooring for renters. And it can be installed over any surface, including wood, concrete or old vinyl flooring.

Adhesive is necessary to hold the flooring in place only in large rooms (more than 12 feet wide) where it must be seamed. In that case, the DIYer installs the floor by the "Post-It" method – the easiest yet for installing this kind of flooring.

In smaller rooms where the material does not have to be seamed, no adhesive at all is necessary. Then, the flooring can simply be lad down loose.

Loose-lay flooring, as it's known, has been around for years, but it's always had one big drawback. Over time, it will curl at the edges, presenting an unsightly appearance.

But, this new flooring has a new type of backing material unlike any other to prevent curling. The same backing also allows installation by the revolutionary "Post-It method when seaming is required.

The manufacturer, Colmar Industries, refers to these new products as "floating floors" to distinguish them from old-style loose-lay floors. It offers two lines, Kitchen Creations and Bath Creations.

Unlike Post-It notes, the new flooring does not come with the adhesive already on it. The do-it-yourselfer must apply it, but that's easy to do because the adhesive can be rolled onto the back of the flooring with a paint roller – a first.

After cutting the flooring to fit the room the DIYer lays the flooring in place, folds back half of it to expose the backing and rolls on the adhesive. In about 120 minutes, the adhesive becomes clear and tacky, and the flooring can be stuck down. Then, the installer repeats the procedure for the remainder of the flooring.

The old way of applying adhesive by troweling it onto the subfloor is the most difficult part of an installation for do-it-yourselfers. A specially notched trowel is needed. The adhesive must be spread to a precise thickness, and it it's allowed to set up for a little too long or not quite long enough, the job can be ruined. The "Post-It" method does away with all that.

If later on you decide to take up the flooring, the adhesive remains on the backing of the material, not on the subfloor where it was installed.

The new flooring comes in 12-foot rolls in a variety of patterns and colors expressly styled for kitchens and baths.

DuPont Teflon in the no-was surface makes the flooring exceptionally stair-resistant and easy to clean, and Ultra Fresh prevents discoloration of the material from mold, mildew or fungus. Best yet, with all these features, the new flooring costs just $16 a square yard. It comes with a five-year limited warranty.

For more information, write to Colmar Industries, 245 Butler Ave., Lancaster PA 17601.

Show it off: In smaller rooms like baths where the material need not be seamed, Colma's new vinyl flooring can be laid down loose without adhesive. Because of its special backing, the flooring won't curl at the edges over time as other flooring will.

Overall dimensions: 56 feet by 60 feet. Living area is 3469 square feet. Garage has 640 square feet. Basement has 1,548 square feet.

2-story house provides lots of space

The brick, glass and stone exterior of the Image emits an aura of elegance that is coveted in today's house design market. Step through the covered entry into a wide foyer that is open to the upper level, and the meticulous planning of this 3,469-square-foot beauty becomes evident.

The first floor accommodates the majority of communal living areas in the floor design. The foyer, with a guest closet on either side, opens to the living room on the right and the formal dining room on the left. The dining room, boasting a built-in arched showcase, abuts the walk-through kitchen. This arrangement permits the host to serve a sumptuous meal without neglecting company. The spacious kitchen features an island cooktop, trash compactor and double ovens. To spare your guests any inconvenience from the weather when departing, a covered porte-cochere is accessible through a side door.

The comfortable living room, with a huge bay window, is another site the Image offers for gracious entertaining. Adjoining the living room is a combination library and home office. Bookshelves line the walls, and whether you use this space for business or maintaining household accounts, you will appreciate the hidden safe room. A large utility placed next to the two-car garage, a half-bath and sunny breakfast nook complete the lower level.

The second floor holds all the sleeping areas. The isolated master suite is enormous. Next to the sleeping section is a roomy sitting area. Other amenities include a private patio, huge walk-in closet and private bathroom with skylights, linen storage, twin basins and compartmentalized toilet.

Three additional bedrooms are on this level. They are all quite sizable and have substantial closet space. Any of these, if not needed for sleeping purposes, could be converted for use as a music chamber, den or sewing room. The big recreation room will hold a ping-pong table, big-screen TV and a couple of couches. A side door opens onto an extended deck. A full bathroom is directly adjacent to the rec-room. The floor design of the Image also includes a 1,584-square-foot basement.

For a study kit of the Image (335-120), send $10 to Landmark Designs, P.O. Box 2307-OE48. Eugene OR 97402. (Be sure to specify plan name and number.) For a collection of plan books featuring our most popular house plans, send $20 to Landmark, or call 1-800-562-1151.

INVITING IDEAS

Cool as a cucumber dishes summer delight

RUTH MOSSOK JOHNSTON

The last days of summer are to be savored — cucumbers ebbing from the garden, and the weather still steamy. You can use these crispy vegetables for a cool appetizer or light luncheon treat — perfect for a ladies luncheon, break time from the mah jong game, or lite-eats around the pool. Often overlooked, and sometimes considered ubiquitous, the cucumber brings to the table a light, cool, crisp, benign, but adaptable taste, and virtually no calories.

Cucumbers are one of the very oldest cultivated vegetables. They are a member of the gourd family, dating back to 7750 B.C., and originated in India and Burma. It is told that during Roman times, the Emperor Tiberius ate cucumbers saturated in wine. Even then, it was apparent that these cool, bland vegetables were easily mixed with other ingredients to enhance their flavor.

Use long English (seedless) cucumbers or the typical garden variety in all kinds of quick, cool sumptuous treats. Mix cucumber slices with Laban (heavy strained yogurt), sour cream, or ranch dressing.

Toss cucumbers with fresh dill for an easy side dish or snack. Marinate cucumber slices in olive oil and fruit flavored vinegars, mix with your favorite herbs, or splash with Balsamic vinegar and top with chopped chives.

Slice cold cucumbers paper thin and add to tea sandwiches made with herbed cream cheese and topped with a sprig of fresh dill. Use cool thin slices of cucumber to garnish tomato or vegetable juices. Hollow out a whole cucumber and stuff it with cream cheese and smoked salmon — then slice it in fairly thick slices and serve as a cool summer appetizer.

Keep your cucumber dishes cool and lively — try old Tiberius' favorite, and splash with a little wine!

Here are two of my favorite cool as a cucumber summer first courses.

I love this recipe — it's cool, delicious and tastes like you are drinking a salad — this mixture is fairly thick, you may want to provide a spoon to avoid drips and spills on your guests shirts and blouses! Because it is so colorful, you may want to serve it in a clear glass or crystal pitcher — it can be topped with a sprig of fresh herbs, slices of lemon or croutons — serve in clear, chilled glasses (no plastic!)

MY FAVORITE GAZPACHO

1 (28 ounce) can seasoned diced tomatoes (Dei Fratelli if possible)
1 large green pepper, stem removed, seeded & deveined, and chopped
1-2 jalapeno pepper(s), stem removed, seeded & deveined, and chopped
1 cucumber, peeled, seeded and chopped
1 cup shredded zucchini (use the firm part, avoid the seeded section)
1 cup Spanish onion, peeled and chopped (small dice)
4 tablespoons light olive oil
6 tablespoons strawberry wine vinegar
1 1/2 to 2 teaspoons sea salt
2 teaspoons sugar (you can use sugar substitute)
Dash of Tabasco sauce

In a large bowl, mix all of the ingredients together, adjust seasonings — cover and chill in the refrigerator 6-8 hours. Serve well chilled, and top with croutons if desired. Yield: 12 servings

This delicious chilled soup is the perfect addition to any luncheon or dinner's first course. Spicy and complex in flavor —usually more compatible to adult palates.

CHILLED CUCUMBER AND SPINACH SOUP

2 tablespoons light olive oil
2 onions (Vidalia if possible), peeled and sliced
2 leeks, white part only, washed thoroughly, and thinly sliced
1 hot pepper (long green or red finger pepper), stem removed, deveined and chopped
2 large potatoes, peeled and sliced
6 cups of chicken stock — homemade or prepared
1/4 cup chopped fresh parsley
1 bunch fresh spinach (approximately 10 ounces), washed and stems removed
4 medium sized cucumber, peeled, seeded and sliced
1 cup Laban (heavy strained yogurt)
2 tablespoons light mayonnaise
2 teaspoons horseradish
Juice of 4 lemons (freshly squeezed)
Salt and freshly ground white pepper

In a large heavy stock pot, Dutch or French oven, add olive oil, cook over medium heat until hot — add the onion and leeks. Cook until transparent, then add the hot pepper.

Saute briefly and add the potato. Continue to saute for 6-8 minutes, add the chicken stock, parsley, and spinach. Bring to a boil.

Reduce the heat and continue to cook the soup for 30 minutes until the potato is tender. Let the soup cool — puree in a blender, food processor or Vita Mix. Chill for 2 hours.

Add the cucumber, Laban (heavy strained yogurt), mayo, horseradish and lemon juice — reprocess through the blender, food processor, or Vita Mix. Adjust the seasonings — chill thoroughly and serve. Yield: 8 servings

Block glass windows provide light, protection

If you're one of the many homeowners looking for just the right solution to your window needs, look no further than durable, decorative glass block. While double-pane windows have been the "traditional" choice, many restrictions limit their usefulness.

Glass block's versatile design options, and varying degrees of privacy, mean that no additional window treatments are needed. Besides offering privacy, glass block windows resist breakage, making them virtually vandal-proof. This makes them an excellenet choice for window locations that could potentially offer a burglar easy access to a home. If one block should break, it can simply be replaced. You don't need to replace the entire window. Essentially, glass block panels act like masonry walls with light transmitting capability.

The appeal of glass block windows is enhanced by a variety of shapes and sizes available, allowing homeowners to create curved, functional windows with ease, These windows have an R-value more than twice the R-value for flat single-pane glazing, and they are easily maintained – just hose them down of wipe them clean with a damp cloth.

Windows made from Pittsburgh Corning's PC GlassBlock® products can be configured to fit an size opening, thus making them appropriate for new home construction and remodeling projects. They can be constructed with or without ventilation. Glass block panels provide brilliant luminescence for any room in the house, including kitchens, bathrooms, living or dining areas and even basements. Or, use glass block as side lights in halls and entryways.

APPLIANCE DOCTOR

Appliance Bill needs your voice

JOE GAGNON

In just a few weeks members of the appliance service industry will be convening at the state capital in Lansing to discuss the Appliance Repair Act. This bill sponsored by state Rep. Lyn Bankes has received plenty of support from both parties and also from some of the leaders in the appliance industry.

What Bill No. 5833 needs now is support of consumers who have been taken to the cleaners by some of the unethical, rip off companies that took their money. For the past 10 years, Rep. Bankes and I have been working on issues of consumerism and have devoted much of our time to getting this bill enacted into law. The Appliance Repair Act is designed to give you information that will enable the consumer to immediately recognize whether or not they are getting a fair shake from the service technician. This will not be a problem for the honest companies because they are already doing what is required for the sake of homeowners. It will be a difficult situation for the dishonest company and I would expect some of them to show up in Lansing as well. Following the open hearing we had in Livonia just a few months ago, I thought the service industry would use more caution when servicing a consumers products, but they haven't.

A month ago while backing out of my driveway, I noticed a service ban parked across the street in my neighbors yard. I pulled back into my garage and removed my camera from the trunk of my car. I went for a walk with camera in hand and took pictures of the van parked across the street. The side of the van had lettering which indicates it is from an appliance repair business, but the name of the company has been removed. I wonder why a company which has been in business for 20 years, which uses truck advertising would remove their company name from view of the consumer.

A half hour later the van left and I walked across the street and knocked on the front door. I introduced myself and asked if I could be of assistance in the appliance problem they were having. The lady informed me that because of the new motor needed in her clothes dryer, she would be shopping for a new one real soon.

The service technician had told her it would cost $269 to repair her six year old dryer. He had unplugged the dryer and placed a red tag on it saying, "Danger, do not use." I asked if I could look at the dryer and without reservation she led me to the laundry room. I plugged it in and turned it on and to everyone's amazement it purred like a kitty. I fetched my tools and took it apart and found not one darn thing wrong with the dryer. Whether the plug was loose or whatever caused her to call for service, I couldn't find what caused the problem. The dryer is still operating one month later and certainly didn't need a motor. By the way, she did spent $55 for the service call. It angered me that a service company would do this to a neighbor, but then again, how many times in the past 10 years have I heard and seen these stories, too many.

The major appliance repair industry has been tainted for years by the unethical companies who always profess to be honest. The honest companies are tired of the poor image created by these rip offs and we want change. It is unfortunate that we need to ask the government to intervene on our behalf, but there is no other way. The law makers in this state are there to serve the public and it has been proven that the major appliance repair industry needs some regulating place upon it.

After spending 10 years of investigating the cases which equate to total rip offs, I can't for the life of me understand how these guys can get up in the morning and look in the mirror. If they are so hard up for a job and must follow these company policies which lead to such enormous fraud, I wish they would call me, I'll get them a job somewhere else. Better still, I am inviting any service technician who wishes to clear his conscience, to come to Lansing on Sept. 11 at 9 a.m. in room 427 of the State Capitol and testify in front of our state legislature. Also invited – you the general public and consumer. See you on the 11th.

Joe Gagnon, the Appliance Doctor, will answer your questions about maintaining and repairing large appliances. Gagnon is president of Carmack Appliances in Garden City and does a weekly radio program on WJR-AM. He is author of "First Aid from the Appliance Doctor," available at area bookstores.

Trust your trees to trained arborists

Professional arborists take pride in their care of trees and are skilled in pruning, pest management, tree repair, removal and, in some cases, value appraisals. But some who claim to be arborists aren't professional. And this is just the time of year – and hurricanes and wind storms are just the kinds of conditions – to bring the not-so-professional tree care "specialists," chainsaw in hand, knocking at the property owner's door.

"These so-called 'fly-by-nighters' want only to turn a quick buck. They have little regard for the high-risk situations that storms create for both themselves and homeowners," warns Peter Gerstenberger, director of education and safety for the National Arborist Association, based in Amherst, New Hampshire.

With hundreds and possibly thousands of your dollars at stake – not to mention the integrity and appearance of your property – you should make sure you take your time deciding who to hire and what really needs to be done, says Gerstenberger.

"Don't believe pitches that claim you can save money by simply 'getting the job done' there and then. And, of course, never pay in advance," Gerstenberger said.

To help avoid making long-regretted monetary, safety and aesthetic mistakes, refer to the following tips, issued by the National Arborist Association, on what to look for and ask when hiring an arborist (tree care practitioner).

- Ask if the arborist is a member of the National Arborist Association, the International Society of Arboriculture, the American Forestry Association, American Society of Consulting Arborists or another relevant professional association or society. Membership is no guarantee of quality, but it does imply a professional long-term interest on the part of the arborist.
- Ask if the potential service provider is an International Society of Arboriculture-certified arborist or is state certified. Again, this is no guarantee of quality, but it does suggest a professional attitude. Arborists nationwide can be certified through the ISA. The National Arborist Association offers its members the opportunity to improve their workforce through the NAA "Tree Care Specialist" employer certification program.
- Your arborist should be able to provide upon request current certificates of insurance covering liability for damage to people and property during work, as well as for the workers' compensation insurance. Be certain that the coverage is current.
- Local references as an excellent guide to an arborist's abilities and professionalism. Ask for references and try to contact those given.
- Get a second opinion for any major work you plan to have done. It's worth the expense to get a second or third estimate.
- Pointers that your arborist is more interested in your wallet than your satisfaction include: Using climbing spikes or live trees; immediate desire to remove a viable and living tree (which is always a last resort); lack of proper, well-maintained equipment or knowledge of safety procedures.

The National Arborist Association is the trade group for owners and operators of tree care companies nationwide. To find the NAA member arborist closest to you, call 1-800-733-2622.

Society collects pet food for homeless animals

In recognition of "National Homeless Animals Day" Saturday, Aug. 17, the Michigan Humane Society is asking for donations of canned pet food to help thousands of the area's homeless animals.

"Homeless Animals Day" was created to help raise awareness about the tragedy of pet overpopulation. It is estimated that as many as 15 million dogs and cats are euthanized in our nation's shelters each year because there aren't enough homes for them. The Michigan Humane Society urges everyone to please have pets spayed or neutered. "Every single puppy and kitten contributes to this problem," says Michele Mitchell, MHS director of community relations. "Even when you find homes for these animals, you're depriving a shelter pet of a chance to be adopted."

Those wishing to donate canned pet food in support of Homeless Animals' Day can stop by any of three MHS shelters, 7401 Chrysler Drive in Detroit, 3600 Auburn Road in Rochester Hills and 37255 Marquette in Westland. Everyone who donates will receive a free pet ID tag and a special "I Helped A Homeless Animal" sticker. For more information, call (810)852-7420.

Besides spaying or neutering your pets, other ways you can help homeless animals are:

- Adopt an animal from the Michigan Humane Society or your local shelter.
- Make sure your pets have proper identification at all times.
- Do not adopt a pet unless you are willing to make a lifelong commitment.
- Donate your time and resources to local shelters.

The Michigan Humane Society is a private, nonprofit organization, caring for more than 53,000 homeless, abandoned and needy animals each year.

COVER STORY

Home tour highlights diversity

BY HUGH GALLAGHER
STAFF WRITER

Home tours have become a popular way to sneak a peak at how others maintain and decorate their homes. They provide a fresh injection of new ideas and a chance to politely invade someone's privacy for a good cause.

The Ypsilanti Heritage Foundation is holding its 19th Annual Historic Home Tour noon to 5 p.m. Sunday. Tickets are $8 for adults, $7 for seniors and $5 for children under 12. They are available at ticket booths in Riverside Park in front of the Ypsilanti Historical Museum, 220 N. Huron St.

Ypsilanti's home tours benefit the foundation's activities in preserving local architecture. This year a portion of the proceeds will also go to the Riverside Arts Center.

Ypsilanti has a rich architectural history. It's late 19th century and early 20th century public buildings, including several on the campus of Eastern Michigan University, are notable for their variety of styles and unique decorative ornamentation. Private residences are also notable for their variety. Though the Victorian style often predominates, other styles were also important. This year's four houses and one small apartment complex show that diversity.

On the Cover: Kyle and Skip Bunton call their house a "work in progress" as they continue to renovate their Cotswold Cottage and revive its gardens. Their home is one of five in the Ypsilanti Historic Home Tour. Cover photo by Jim Jagdfeld.

Kyle Bunton wasn't even sure she wanted to buy a house when she and her husband bought the Cotswold Cottage at 507 Fairview.

"It's charming, cute. I didn't want a house, but my husband, my fiance at the time, did," Bunton said. "Then I was going through one of those house books and saw a picture. I knew it needed a lot of work. But I thought if I wanted a house, it had to be different. It just suckered me in."

The house that Skip and Kyle Bunton were "suckered" into buying was built in 1926, one of the first houses on Fairview in Ypsilanti's College Heights neighborhood near the university.

The Period Revival English Cotswold Cottage has a storybook quality with its distinctive rolled roof, eyebrow windows and thick stucco walls.

"I liked the roof, the kitchen nook, the wood floors, that we've had to refinish. It had old world quality workmanship," Bunton said.

The house has become a "labor of love" for Bunton, a dietitian at St. Joseph Hospital and her husband, who works in sports rehabilitation for Body Specs.

"On the exterior we pulled off the ivy to protect the masonry. We completely redid the yard, re-established a garden and lawn," Bunton said. "We refinished floors, painted, plastered. It's been a project, a lot of sweat, real sweat equity."

The house has been given a period look with special window treatments, family heirlooms and such unusual touches as a chair bought at the Treasure Mart for $35 that once sat in the lobby of Ann Arbor's historic Michigan Theatre.

The Buntons have also experimented with interior painting. They took a class in house painting together and learned a process called "smooshing" that creates a marble look for walls.

Bunton said that despite her reluctance to get into house rehabilitation she was destined to do it.

"My parents have done rehabilitation projects and I helped as a child. I knew what would be involved," Bunton said. "My sister is really surprised with what we've done, that I've become this domestic goddess."

A very different rehabilitation project is represented by 184-190 N. Washington.

The Phoenix Place Apartments are an example of a public/private partnership to create affordable rental housing and restore historic buildings at the same time.

The Queen Anne Style duplex was built in 1894. It was home to an Episcopal rector, a mathematics professor at what was then Norma College, a doctor, a grocer and several local businessmen. It eventually became a rooming house and began a gradual decline.

In 1990 a fire heavily damaged the declining building. When Shoeb Sharieff/190 Washington Associates bought the building in 1993, they had to gut the interior to create eight uniquely designed one, two and three bedroom apartments while retaining the Queen Anne exterior.

"It was an involved process," said Sharieff. "The basic elements of architecture and design are there."

About 70 percent of the exterior was preserved. The basement was dropped nine inches to create a higher ceiling. Dormers were added to the front and existing dormers were expanded. Two chimneys were removed and the bricks were used to repair interior walls that use exposed brick.

The complex has two mirror image north and south sides and features two 3-bedroom, 2-story, 1400 square foot units with 11/2 baths and the distinctive brick walls; two 2-story, 2-bedroom units with decorative non-functioning fireplaces; two 1-bedroom units; and two 2-bedroom single floor units that run across the top length of the building.

The most significant factor in this is the financing. This is a project that makes use of state funding and state and federal tax credits to create affordable housing with a top rental of $671 for a three bedroom.

"The state of Michigan is very pleased with what we're doing," Sharieff said. "It's a building that shows what can be done with public and private joint partnerships. We were able to make apartments affordable with help from the state and haven't skimped on anything."

Major funding for the project came from 1st of America Community Development Corp., a subsidiary of 1st of America, which in turn provided the mortgage loan.

Richard Buss, president of 1st of America Community Development, said his company was able to take advantage of a federal tax program that allows investment in the form of a grant to develop the project.

Phoenix fireplace: The interior brick walls of the Phoenix Place Apartments were restored using bricks from the building's chimneys.

"The money we invest comes back to us through federal tax credits," Buss said.

To receive tax credits, the project must comply with a 15-year rent restriction program. Buss said rents usually work out to around 30 percent of a renter's income. Buss said the rent restrictions will be longer on the Washington Street apartment building.

The other houses in the tour are examples of Ypsilanti's architectural diversity.

David and Linda Rapasky's Tudor Revival house at 709 Cambridge features classic cedar and stucco combined with brick and field stone. The house was built in 1925, one of the first in College Heights. David Rapasky designed an addition in 1991 that blends beautifully with the existing house. The Repaskys have made numerous improvements including a new kitchen, a first floor bath and a deck with a year-round spa. The house is furnished with antiques.

The Colonial Revival house of Jeff and Jennifer Goulet at 1207 Roosevelt in College Heights was built in 1939 and designed by architect Ward Swartz. The house is simply designed and intended for functionality. The interior is notable for Jennifer Goulet's needlework and the Goulets' collections of pottery, dolls, textiles and glassware.

The architecture books describe the 1015 W. Cross house of Jim and Helen Vick as a "comfortable house," a style prevalent following the First World War and marked by relatively small size and simplicity, a break from the Victorians. The Vicks have owned the house since 1975, only the fourth owners since it was built in 1926. They have added a second floor dormer, a large master bath and built-in cupboards.

GARDEN SPOT

Phlox plants attract flocks of fans

MARTY FIGLEY

Many of us grow phlox in our gardens and enjoy the wonderful variety that is available in these versatile plants.

From early spring we can enjoy creeping phlox P. stolonifera, in bright purple or violet clusters, or P. subulata, varying in color from pinkish white or purple as they make a carpet of color in the landscape. These are especially suitable in rock gardens as their informal, spreading habit softens the scene.

For the rest of the season we can enjoy the tall forms, sometimes referred to as "border phlox" (now called garden phlox), as they are often used in formal and informal border plantings. One of the more common varieties is the summer perennial phlox, P. paniculata, which grows to four feet high. Originally the flowers were purple, but now there are many colors and shades available, thanks to hybridizers. The large clusters of flowers bloom in summer and early autumn.

There are several other perennials species of phlox and a few annuals. Many of the perennials are hardy in our zone and add a nice touch of color when some of the other plants have "had their day in the sun." A good way to learn about what is available is to search through mail-order catalogs and visit nurseries in the early spring.

Care

It is surprising, but phlox will do well in rather heavy soils and can be neglected, especially established ones, but as with any plant, a loamy, humusy soil will result in a better show. A top mulch, especially during dry weather, will help hold moisture in the ground and keep the roots protected. They will benefit from an all-purpose fertilizer applied two or three times a season, and an application of water, when necessary.

By removing spent blooms, additional flowering will reward; and (for next season) in mid-June if the stems at the front of each plant are pinched back on early blooming ones and rebloomers, the season can be extended.

MARTY FIGLEY

Fantastic phlox: Phlox are beautiful, easy-to-grow plants suitable for almost any garden.

To ensure that your stand of phlox is sturdy and for larger flowers, thin young shoots when they are about one-third of their final height. Remove the weaker shoots, by pinching or cutting them at the base, at a ratio of about one shoot in three.

To prevent powdery mildew, divide phlox every third or fourth year in the spring by splitting the plants into several pieces. Good air circulation will also help with mildew problems.

This unsightly condition can often be prevented with these good cultural practices and spacing the plants properly and growing them in a sunny place. Another disease that can affect phlox is called leaf spot, and shows up as brown spots, first on the lower leaves and continuing up the stem. In the fall destroy the plant tops and fallen leaves to further reduce disease problems.

If you wish to propagate phlox, keep in mind that the dwarf species are best propagated by cuttings or root division and put in a shaded cold frame during the summer for spring transplant. Taller species can be propagated by cuttings of young stems, shoots or roots. If you save the seed, choose only those that are extra-special. Self-sown seedlings often revert back to their original lavender color, so if you don't want that color, clear them out.

Pests

These plants' most fearsome pest enemies are the red spider mite, which infests the undersides of leaves and turns them light yellow, giving them an unhealthy look, and a nematode or eelworm that causes root galls.

Mites can be checked with a spray to control mildew or a stream of water

Gardeners create with a personal touch

BY MARTY FIGLEY
SPECIAL WRITER

Four years ago Cammy and David McKinnon became gardeners. They had installed a swimming pool in the back yard of their home in Commerce Township and decided to plant a perennial border garden along the tall wooden privacy fence that encloses the yard.

"We went in blind with the garden, having no experience at all," Cammy said.

She feels some of the expertise must have been in their genes. Her grandmother, who lived in Grand Rapids, had a perennial garden and Cammy remembers picking bouquets from that garden as a child. Her grandmother also kept a gardening journal that Cammy now has.

"My grandmother always said that gardens are better after the soil was tested – it (the soil) improved a lot."

This spring the McKinnons took the master gardener class and found they didn't make too many mistakes after all. They did have their soil tested and found it was very sweet, so they have added a small amount of sulfur to remedy that situation.

David is the problem solver. He identifies pests and diseases, explains the problems to Cammy and then treats them.

"This (gardening) is probably the most enjoyable thing we have done."

Soil preparation took many hours and sometimes McKinnon found herself working until the wee small hours. Topsoil was brought in to improve the existing soil. Plants have been placed in the garden to suit their light needs and most receive at least six hours of sunlight a day as the sun moves across the area. Cammy reminded me that plants can't readily adapt from sun to shade, but can adapt from shade to sun.

Eclectic mixture

The garden is an eclectic mixture with bloom times throughout the season. White, pink, yellow, orange, lavender and various shades of foliage have been artfully used.

This is a plant lover's garden with often only one to three plants of one specimen, and is tied together with shrubs such as white-blooming Lilacs, Rose of Sharon, a variegated Dogwood, purple-leafed Plumb, Mock orange, Forsythia and at a local point, a pink-flowering Dogwood. The shrubs are placed to disguise the fence and provide additional privacy.

At one section of the fence a blue Jackmanii clematis bloomed beautifully. Hostas grow at its base to shade its roots. Nearby annuals add color and are also used in other areas.

Snow-on-the-mountain blooms white in the spring and is filling in a bare spot with gray foliage. Primroses, Iceland poppies, Lady's Mantle and white Lilacs also bloom then. These are followed by Salvia "Purple Rain," Coreopsis, Foxglove, Bellflower, Campanula, Yarrow, deep purple Veronica and Columbine, Delphiniums, Gayfeather, Hollyhocks, roses, a beautiful white Achillea "Ballerina" and others. Purple asters will soon follow.

Personal plants

Cammy bought the white "Ballerina" because their daughter, Megan, is their resident ballerina. The flowers are quite personal to the family. Another of Megan's plants is the white obedient plant. David's is a tall white phlox.

Last year the wedding of their son, Tom, took place in the garden and Cammy's uncle and aunt brought a division of a peony from the grandmother's garden. This now is the plant of the bride, Cindy. Interestingly, the aunt told them the name of the peony is "Bridegroom."

The peony had been transferred from Grand Rapids to Cleveland, to Tennessee and now part of it grows in the McKinnon garden until the newlyweds have a place for it.

"I will keep some of it here. It's our pride and joy."

This year they have added dahlias of various colors to the selection of plants.

A large piece of driftwood the family found in Grand Haven this summer reminds them of fond memories during their many vacations on Lake Michigan. Soon their names will be carved on it. This memento rests comfortably among the plants as does a wrought-iron chair, another of the grandmother's former possessions. Several garden signs add interest.

Everything in this long perennial bed has been lovingly arranged and cared for. Coco-mulch covers the soil and adds a deep red/brown tone. Along one edge of the garden red square stones have been placed on red rocks for walking.

An edging of variegated Ajuga is planted around the structure of the above-ground pool and is carried around to join with the border plantings.

Lime mound Spirea, Wiegelia and Meideland roses grow in a side bed in the front yard, and toward the back, 10-year-old smoke trees provide privacy. These began as 40-inch shrubs and are now 10 foot tall, beautiful specimens.

from the hose, while plants with the latter pest problem need to be destroyed along with the surrounding soil. Deformed flower buds are an indication of the phlox bug. An insecticidal soap spray can be used, if the infestation is heavy.

With that out of the way, new lines of the old-fashioned native phlox are being developed based on these healthy plants as growers and nursery people strive to improve the species. To control nematodes "obtain nematode-free phlox from root cuttings," the American Horticultural Society Encyclopedia of Gardening said. So be sure to ask your nursery about this potential problem.

Phlox are beautiful and reliable, easy-to-grow plants that are suitable for almost any garden. I hope you don't let the possible problems prevent you from growing them and enjoying their forms, colors, fragrances and charm.

INTERIOR MOTIVES

Dine with your individual moods and style

NAOMI STONE LEVY

Your dining room should resonate a variety of moods. The decor can be versatile, reflecting what will transpire at any particular hour. Whether it is your own family about to use it, or if you want to entertain, this is where you will congregate. I love to have friends over for a Sunday brunch, as well as a sumptuous buffet dinner.

The furniture can vary from informal pine or oak to more dressy mahogany or walnut. I prefer a mix – even contemporary plastic laminate or steel and glass, added to traditional can be more individual than a matched set. I have voiced this in previous columns. There is no talent in buying a "suite." Your personality is reflected in choices.

Whatever the furniture, in everyday use your decorative accessories will be less formal. I like to recommend copper (always polished) with its warm, wondrous glow. Combine that with baskets and you have created a family feeling.

A copper chafing dish to cook in, or from which you serve the main meal, is the core of this setting. A copper pot of soup in which it has been cooked is serviceable as well as handsome. Why not a copper salad bowl? You will find gorgeous old copper plates and serving pieces in antique shops. Seek some out to create this subtle atmosphere. Your pottery dishes and pewter flatware befit this more casual setting.

Add to all of the above a basket of breads. Another basket of veggies and dip, still another with apples and pears is appropriate for dessert. Glass pie plates are often housed in basketry. Delightful baskets abound in many gift shops. A copper or basket centerpiece will enhance the setting. The centerpiece can be filled with greens, always beautiful. Autumn is fast approaching with lovely colorful leaves available to fill these receptacles with style.

In a modern mode glass is significant. It is tasteful and spatial, whether colorful or clear glass. There are artists who execute dazzling bowls, plates and sculpture, and galleries that display their skills. Use as many glass candlesticks as you can assemble for your table setting. Some glass is flamboyant, some very subtle. An eclectic mix here evokes a totally different dining area. Use your imagination.

Some occasions call for more elegance. Bring out your silver candelabra. A lace tablecloth or lovely place mats are more dressy and will diversify the atmosphere. Your floral centerpiece can reiterate the formality of this dining area.

Your best china is about to be used, and the flatware you received as wedding presents will be conducive to formality. If you are lacking any of the above items there are great "rent it" places that will fill in and accomplish it all. Amazing tableware can be bought at Slades in Applegate Square, Northwestern Highway at Inkster Road.

The dining area is the magnetic field of your home. Your family comes first, but your guests will also love to sit down and dine at leisure, feeling indulged and complimented.

AROUND THE HOUSE

Don't become confused about fuses

The son has his new compact disc blasting in his bedroom as he plays a Nintendo game. The teenage daughter is blow drying her hair as she watches "Beauty and the Beast" for the umpteenth time. There are clothes in the dryer and the air conditioning is on. A pot of stew is simmering on the electric range, and Dad is watching the final "Jeopardy" question ... when the fuse blows! The only problem is that Mom is working late at the office and she's the only one who has ever changed a fuse. Sound familiar?

Changing a fuse is actually quite a simple procedure. But for those who have never done it, it can be intimidating because they have to approach the electric panel. In their minds, electric panels equal hair-raising shocks.

Many people feel that fuse panels should automatically be replaced with breakers. This isn't so! Many fuse panels perform their function well and are safe as long as no one tampers with the wiring or installs the wrong size fuse.

If your home was built around 1958 or before, you probably have fuses. If it was built after that time, you probably have circuit breakers. Although they look different, they serve the same function: to protect wiring from overheating. Fuses are glass with a lead band that is visible through the glass base and screw into a fuse socket; circuit breakers look like switches.

If the lights go out or the appliance or tool stops operation, you probably blew a fuse or tripped a circuit breaker. Switch off the appliance or tools that were running. Then go to the panel box, open the cover and look for the glass fuse with the black burn mark in the center. There is a lead strip about 1/2-inch to 3/4-inch long. If you can see an intact lead strip, this isn't the fuse that is blown.

Unscrew the burnt-out fuse and replace it with the same size, or rating, fuse. The fuses are color-coded and numbered as follows: Blue fuses are 15 amps, red or orange fuses are 20 amps and green fuses are 30 amps.

It's also important to note that the fuses in the sockets could be the wrong size. On most home inspections we perform, we will find overfused circuits, which is a potential safety hazard. To find out, you need an electrician to remove the cover and check the wire sizes. The following will indicate which fuse sizes are needed: 14-gauge wire = 15 amps, 12-gauge wire = 20 amps, 10-gauge wire = 30 amps.

Normally, 14-gauge wire is the smallest wire in the panel; 12-gauge wire is a little thicker and 10-gauge is a little thicker still and is normally used on 240-volt circuits.

We don't recommend that you unscrew the panel box to look at the wire sizes. You can open the front of the panel box without fear of a shock. If, however, you unscrew the cover off the panel box, you run a considerable chance of getting a shock. You can also get a shock by sticking your finger in the fuse sockets. Only qualified electricians should make repairs or alterations to electrical systems.

LET'S REMODEL

Different additions have their merits

Q: We are considering adding space to our home with either a second-story addition or an addition off of the back. Besides the obvious difference in added space what are other things we need to consider in our choice and if possible some of the advantages and disadvantages of each.

A: Both types of additions offer exciting options to adding space to your home. It is first of all most important that you choose a professional contractor that can prove his experience in creating additions. Many contractors have professional photos of their projects and it is a good place to start reviewing their credentials. Also be sure to ask to see other photos (if they have them) and don't be afraid to ask to visit their clients that have had this work done.

Often times the only way to go is up. Naturally, a second-story addition will not take away from cherished yard space. Another advantage to going up is that you will not have to get involved in excavation and foundation (which causes the square foot price to be a little less). When doing an addition off the first floor the advantages that stand out are maintaining the aesthetic appeal of your home (not having to integrate a new floor plan or make big changes) and as we grow older the idea of stairs is not very appealing.

When designed properly, a second-story addition can double the space in your existing home. Homeowners have several concerns that are regularly voiced when considering adding on and they include planning and architectural design, cost per square foot and necessary interior and exterior renovations. Before you get started I advise that you talk to your contractor about the requirements that must be met by the city or township building department. Many townships have maximum height requirements. Professional contractors are very familiar in dealing with these offices and know many of the allowances for conforming and non-conforming structures. You will need to have a certified survey. A mortgage survey is not always a reliable source of information for site lines. If you are considering a variance you should know that an appeal process can be very time consuming.

Some of the interior work you may want to consider would be stairwells and electricity. Stairwells usually mean having to give up a first floor closet (although I have seen circular stairwells done that are very appealing). This closet can be used to create either an open of closed stairwell, depending on the design plan.

Running electricity to the upper floor may mean upgrading your electrical service. Although most homes have 100 amp service, we often recommend going to 150 or 200 amps. A modern kitchen alone can require up to 12 circuits. A professional contractor can look at the electrical requirements for a home and advise what you will need. You may need some improvising with your furnace and plumbing for a second story, but you would need new ductwork for both types of additions. An addition off the back often requires opening an existing wall to move space out while creating a second story may be more involved with floor plan changes.

Clients often like the idea of a new, full-floor addition with cathedral ceilings, a large master bath area and the potential for adding a deck off the master bedroom. A small addition off the back of the home often provides an enjoyable space for summer entertaining, connecting to a deck. With additions you may want to add more windows and create an environment that can be enjoyed by everyone all year round.

The architectural design of the exterior on either project is most important. A second story addition that looks like a box put on top of the house has little appeal. The design should take into consideration the look of your home in the neighborhood and whether you will be trying to make it fit without other exterior renovations. In order to complement the existing structure you may find yourself considering choices in siding, roofing and the style of windows. If you have aluminum siding you may want to update to vinyl siding. There are so many styles of products on today's market that it is not that difficult to combine the old exterior with a complementary addition. Good luck!

FOCUS ON PHOTOGRAPHY

MONTE NAGLER

Have you ever looked through a photography book or magazine and marveled at the strength and impact of the photographs? Ever been to a photography exhibit and wished you could take similar pictures that would earn you rave reviews?

Chances are the photographers you're admiring are using a very simple technique that I call "looking through square eyeballs."

Our peripheral vision is expansive and we're always looking at a vast world. We tend to see the whole and in so doing, we miss many photographic opportunities that are right in front of us.

But by training yourself to "look through square eyeballs," new and exciting possibilities will open up for you.

The best way to begin is to use a viewing mask. Cut a "window" about two by three inches out of a piece of cardboard and begin to view things through it. You can also use a discarded slide mount or simply look through the rectangle formed when you place together the thumbs and forefingers of both hands. You'll frequently see professional photographers use this method to help them view their subjects.

Looking through "square eyeballs" will isolate subject matter from the surroundings. You'll be truly amazed at what you'll see. Even familiar surroundings will offer you photographic possibilities you never knew were there.

You may see, for example, the unusual pattern of brickwork under the window ledge embraced by a sprig of ivy that you won't see as a potential picture because you're always looking at the whole house.

Looking through square eyeballs allowed me to see the beauty and intimacy and striking texture of just a small portion of the dome in the Wells Cathedral in western England. Remember, an intimate photograph such as this can convey the beauty and grandeur of the whole.

No matter if you use a simple point-and-shoot or a more sophisticated camera, getting into the good habit of looking through square eyeballs will open up new and exciting photo opportunities for you.

Monte Nagler is a fine art photographer based in Farmington Hills. You can leave him a message by dialing (313) 953-2047 on a touch-tone phone, then his mailbox number, 1873. His fax number is (810) 644-1314.

Angelic angle: Looking through "square eyeballs" enabled Monte Nagler to see just a portion of the dome of England's Wells Cathedral. As you can see, the picture has impact and stopping power.

Dream Cruise Participants:

I am truly pleased and honored to be associated, even in a small way, with such a wonderful and worthwhile event as the 1996 Woodward Dream Cruise.

The mission of this event is two-fold: To promote and unite the six communities along the Woodward Corridor from Ferndale to Birmingham; and to celebrate the history of cruising made famous in the 1950's. This year, we have the added excitement of the centennial anniversary of the automobile.

As the second annual cruise gets under way, I would like to commend everyone involved in staging a world class event that places Oakland County squarely in the national spotlight.

My congratulations and sincere best wishes go to the cities and representatives of Berkley, Birmingham, Ferndale, Huntington Woods, Pleasant Ridge, and Royal Oak. Jean Chamberlain, in her position as South Oakland Liaison, has done an excellent job as my representative to the aforementioned cities and as the President of the 1996 Woodward Dream Board of Directors.

I'd like to send along special thanks to Dream Cruise Coordinator Caron Hall, Chairman Jim Ellison, WOMC 104.3 Radio and The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers for providing a winning combination that will guarantee a fun-filled and successful day.

I would also like to express my heartfelt appreciation to all the individual members and sponsors of the event, without whom this would not have been possible.

And finally, thanks to all of you who will be participating in the event on August 17th:

Get ready to start your engines and shift into high gear for Dream Cruise 1996, a truly extraordinary event that draws participants to Oakland County from all over America.

Sincerely,

L. Brooks Patterson

Cruise # 2 expected to top first

BY TODD WICKS
STAFF WRITER

Whether to stir old memories or simply admire vintage auto craftsmanship, over 250,000 people are expected at the second annual Woodward Dream Cruise Saturday, August 17.

Last year's inaugural event saw over 10,000 collectors and their hot rods; muscle cars, and all kinds of vehicles taking one more historic drive down the Avenue. For this Cruise, organizers have slated even more events, more entertainers, and of course, more cars.

"Overrall, it's going to be bigger," said coordinator Caron Hall. "For example, Ferndale (one of the six communities along the cruising strip) has expanded its car show from 500 last year to almost 1,000 this year. More businesses are getting involved, and many more people are planning parties and special events along Woodward. There are going to be businesses having outdoor cafes, some planning to do drive-ins, some planning to put up bleachers and offer refreshments...This year is going to be so much larger."

Entertainment will be varied in each city, with music by oldies acts,

WE BRING THE FUN HOME

Birmingham takes cruisers on trip down memory lane

Take a drive down memory lane on Saturday, Aug. 17, when Birmingham presents The Official Woodward Avenue Dream Cruise. While cruising you'll feel yourself slip back into the '50s. You'll be surrounded by poodle skirts, blue suede shoes, classic cars, antique bikes, juke boxes and more. It's an opportunity to relive the '50s or experience them for the first time.

The fun begins at 7 a.m. with Car Club Parking on Woodward between Maple and Ring Roads and ends at 9:30 p.m. with a memorable performance by The Contours. At 11 a.m., International Drag Racing Hall of Famer "Broadway Bob" Metzler will talk about drag racing and show off some early drag racing videos in the lower level of the Baldwin Public Library. Jim Wangers will discuss the history of the GTO & Pontiac Muscle Cars at 1 p.m. at the Baldwin Public Library.

At noon, the entertainment begins on the stage in Shain Park and continues throughout the afternoon into the evening. The entertainment includes Zeemo, the yo-yo expert, the Satin Dolls, Benny and the Jets, an Elvis impersonator, Tommy-C & The Gamut Band, Ronnie Cee, comedian/musician, and two free concerts by the Motown sound of The Contours sponsored by Jeep.

Automotive artist Danny Whitfield will display his exquisite art on the steps of the Birmingham City Hall. One of Whitfield's realistic paintings hangs at the National Corvette Museum in Bowling Green, Kentucky. Whitfield's art will be on display and for sale during the Cruise.

Pleasant Ridge, Huntington Woods, Berkley, Royal Oak and Ferndale will also have special events and displays taking place as part of the Woodward Avenue Dream Cruise.

Mark your calendars to be in Birmingham on Saturday, Aug. 17, for the Official Woodward Avenue Dream Cruise.

Taste of Royal Oak and vintage hot rods top city's events

With the Woodward Dream Cruise just days away, the City of Royal Oak is hard at work gearing up for the festivities. The Dream Cruise in Royal Oak will offer something for everyone from epicurean delights to concept and classic car displays.

The Michigan Hot Rod Association will feature over 75 vintage cars at Northwood Shopping Center located at 13 Mile and Woodward. According to Dave Birchmeier, MHRA president, car owners from all over southeastern Michigan will be participating in the display. The vintage cars that will be showcased include a wide variety of autos from a 1923 Model T Rod Pick-Up to the muscle cars of the sixties. Birchmeier said members of his association are especially excited about the Woodward Dream Cruise because many of the MHRA members, including himself, spent many summer nights cruising Woodward during the Fifties and Sixties.

Also featured at Northwood Shopping Center will be Ford Motor Company car designers Joe Siler and Paul Arnône. This creative team will be on hand to sketch and create caricatures of cruise attendees' cars. Many merchants at Northwood Shopping Center will be getting into the spirit of the cruise by offering sales events and specials.

Memorial Park will be a place not to be missed as over 15 Royal Oak restaurateurs will be serving up "A Taste of Royal Oak." Restaurants represented in "A Taste of Royal Oak" include: Pronto, Mongolian Barbeque and The Oxford Inn, just to name a few.

Memorial Park is also the site for Chrysler Corporation's intriguing concept car display. Cruise attendees will have the opportunity to view the Viper GTS and 1997 Prowler. Along with these cars, Chrysler will display classic MOPAR Street Cruisers, Dodge Ram Truck Racers and the Neon Race Car.

Sleek, black 'Stude' on show during Dream Cruise

"A Studebaker?" non-car buffs would say. "Do they even make those anymore?"

But their mood would change when they saw Regis Gully's '61 Studebaker Hawk. This sleek black automobile is in mint condition, and to car aficionados is top-of-the-line. It will be on display at the Woodward Dream Cruise Saturday, August 17, in downtown Birmingham.

Gully, the owner of Trick Titanium, has had this jet-black Stude greatly modified. First, it was equipped with '87 Corvette front suspension and a narrow Ford nine-inch with Koni gas shocks, 3.90 gearing and Strange axles. Next came the Buick GNX engine mated to a 2004R overdrive automatic.

The modern-day parts in the interior of the car include Buick Grand national seats, console and shifter and a Corvette steering wheel. For the best exterior shine around, the bad-to-the-bone Stude was sprayed with special-formula basic black paint over chrome trim to give the car its untouchable, sexy, sleek appearance. It also sits on Cragar wheels wrapped in BF Goodrich rubber and anchored by Trick Titanium lug nuts.

As beautiful a showpiece as this car is, Regis Gully literally drives it everywhere he goes, and the next place will be the Woodward Dream Cruise.

Classic look: Regis Gulley's 1961 Studebaker is a highlight of the dream cruise.

If you dig be-bop or Monk or Miles or punk then listen closely to this place: symphonies and CDs and sidewalk cafes all combine to make Birmingham come alive. From a concert on a summer's night to festive holiday sounds and lights, for words and works on film or stage, to calm the soul or catch a groove...Birmingham.

Berkley transforms Woodward cruise into big 3-day Summerfest

Summerfest is a three-day celebration throughout Berkley surrounding the Woodward Dream Cruise (WDC) Event. The Greater Berkley Chamber of Commerce is the only organization of the six participating community organizations that hosts a three-day event.

The Berkley streets will be alive with festivities from Aug.16-18 along its commercial corridors with Sidewalk Sales and Merchant Special Events. Area food vendors will be set up in our "Taste of Berkley" food tent located on Griffith, south of Twelve Mile Road.

Micro-brewed beer will be served by The Berkley Front in this location and free concerts will take place all weekend long with such bands as The Back Door Blues Band, The Hatchetman, Elvis, Jonnie Basset and the Blues Insurgents, Back Tracks, and a special concert by a favorite '70s band Rare Earth, Saturday night.

Several additional special events are planned including the Classic Car Parade on Friday with County Executive L. Brooks Patterson serving as parade marshal. The parade will run west along Twelve Mile from Woodward to Hartfield Lanes.

The Berkley Woodward Dream Cruise will be located at Hartfield Lanes, on the north side of Twelve Mile, at Buckingham. A Classic Car Exhibit will take place Saturday at Hartfield's with refreshments and free entertainment. Hartfield Lanes will also be the site of a Millionaire's Party throughout the weekend.

Berkley is the designated location for all official WDC Classic Cars to pick up their official plaques, assuring that over 1,000 WDC Cars will cruise through Berkley.

Free shuttle bus service will be provided from Woodward down Twelve Mile to the Dream Cruise and Summerfest locations.

Merchandise booths will be located on Woodward at Twelve Mile, Catalpa and at Princeton; and on Twelve Mile at the Berkley Theatre Marquee and Hartfield Lanes, selling official Woodward Dream Cruise and Summerfest merchandise.

Plan to attend the Summerfest Miniature Classic Car Show on Sunday to vote for your favorite "homemade" classic car. Summerfest festivities run through Sunday until 5 p.m.

Nine Mile Road and Woodward Avenue will come alive early on the morning of Saturday, Aug. 17, to the sound of some 900 classic cars and trucks as they arrive in Ferndale for the 2nd Annual Classic Car and Truck Show, presented by the Ferndale Citizens Benefit Foundation.

A great day of entertainment and activity has been planned, including live entertainment on stage from 10 a.m.-10 p.m., concluding with Dennis Yost and the Classics 4, along with Tommy Vale and the Torpedoes, from 7:15-10 p.m.

A wide variety of children's activities will take place in our Children's Area including a Dunk Tank, carnival games, face painting, and the appearance of 16-year-old Nicole Rogers, the 1993 World Fuel Dragster Champion and the only female to move from the junior competition into the semi-pro division. Recapture the rapture, cruise along to the Oldies with WOMC

Now you carry a planner. Then you had a looseleaf. Now you have a mortgage. Then you had an allowance. Now you've got kids. Then you had a curfew...pretty much the same thing! If you remember making the turn at Ted's for another lap, the Second Annual Woodward Dream Cruise is for you.

Oldies 104.3 WOMC is very proud to be part of the 1996 Woodward Dream Cruise.

But first, this word from one of our sponsors. Oldies 104.3 WOMC is the Motor City's Good Time Oldies Station and the official Voice of the Woodward Dream Cruise. Our call letters stand for Wayne, Oakland and Macomb Counties. You can't get much more Detroit than that! We signed on in the spring of 1948 and have been featuring fun personalities and your favorite songs ever since.

We've planned a day dedicated to making more of those memories. It's all about family fun for everyone, with classic car shows, food, live music and dancin' in the street. It's the Second Annual Woodward Dream Cruise, Saturday, Aug. 17. Join us and share in the memories made on the street you know so well. It's a chance to recapture the rapture and continue the tradition.

We'll broadcast live all day long and play the songs you can sing along with too. Look for Dick Purtan and Purtan's People, Tom Ryan, Tom Force, Jeff Jennings, Laura Brosnan, Don Phillips, Ron Tavernit and the entire Oldies 104.3 crew cruising up and back. We'll make lots of pit stops, so stop by and say "hi." You'll see the bright red Oldies 104.3 "FunMobile" and the big blue "Rollin' Radio" on the route.

Listen for all the exciting details about the Second Annual Woodward Dream Cruise on Detroit's Good Time Oldies Station, Oldies 104.3 WOMC!

Automotive art

Whitfield paintings add dreams to this year's Woodward cruise

Automotive artist Danny Whitfield will display his true-to-life art in August at Birmingham's Galerie Blu and during the Woodward Avenue Dream Cruise, scheduled for Saturday, Aug. 17.

Whitfield, who has been sketching automobiles since he was five, says, "I was just like any other kid dreaming about cars." But, his dreams came true. Whitfield painted a mural of a 1965 Corvette entitled, "The All American," on the wall of the National Corvette Museum in Bowling Green, KY. Prints of the mural are available for sale.

Whitfield extends his artistic expressions to other makes besides Corvettes. He's painted Dodge Vipers, Ford Mustangs and just about any other car that interests him. Whitfield's fondness for cars goes across the board. He says, "I like every car, even an ugly Pacer." His works have been admired and purchased by many, such as Jay Leno, who owns a copy of Whitfield's Dodge Viper, Alex Trotman, Bob Eaton and Robert Lutz.

Close to 55 of Whitfield's realistic to futuristic works will be showcased at Birmingham's Galerie Blu throughout the month of August. The vehicles will range from the 1920s to Whitfield's vision of what the future of cars holds for us. Whitfield says, "You'll see a 1938 Packard, a 1957 Chevrolet and some '60s muscle cars."

Saturday, Aug. 17, Birmingham will take a drive down memory lane to relive the 1950s. Whitfield's picture-perfect paintings will be displayed on the steps of the Birmingham City Hall. He will also do an on-site artist demonstration where he'll paint a scene of the people cruising down Woodward Avenue.

Don't miss the exquisite art by Danny Whitfield. Mark your calendars to visit Galerie Blu in August and to attend the Woodward Avenue Dream Cruise, Saturday, Aug. 17, from 7 a.m.-9:30 p.m.

Lawrence Tech's 'Hyades' competes in car-of-the future challenge

Lawrence Technological University's "Hyades" is the university's entry into the North American FutureCar Challenge, sponsored by the U.S. Department of Energy and the United States Council for Automotive Research (USCAR), a consortium formed by General Motors, Ford and Chrysler.

Competing against 12 top engineering schools from across the U.S. and Canada in June, "Hyades" took second place overall and won these coveted awards: Best Application of Advanced Technology, Best Application of Advanced Materials, and Best Engineering Design.

High-tech car: Lawrence Tech's future car entry is a joint effort by Ford, General Motors and Chrysler.

FutureCar's goal is to develop passenger sedans capable of achieving up to 80 miles per gallon (mpg) with reduced exhaust emissions. Lawrence Tech's car, based on a 1996 Ford Taurus, is a hybrid electric vehicle combining a small diesel engine and electric motor, linked by a sophisticated microprocessor. Chassis, body panels, and other mechanical components have been modified to reduce weight, improve aerodynamics, and reduce emissions. In the first year of the two-year competition, Lawrence Tech's "Hyades" has already achieved 65 mpg.

Vice President Al Gore calls FutureCar the "most ambitious student project to date."

Huntington Woods features mini cruise for kids

Huntington Woods will be offering a Mini Dream Cruise for children. The cruise will take place at the Huntington Woods site at the NBD Bank from noon to 6 p.m. Kids will be riding on tricycles and Big Wheels on a makeshift Woodward Avenue.

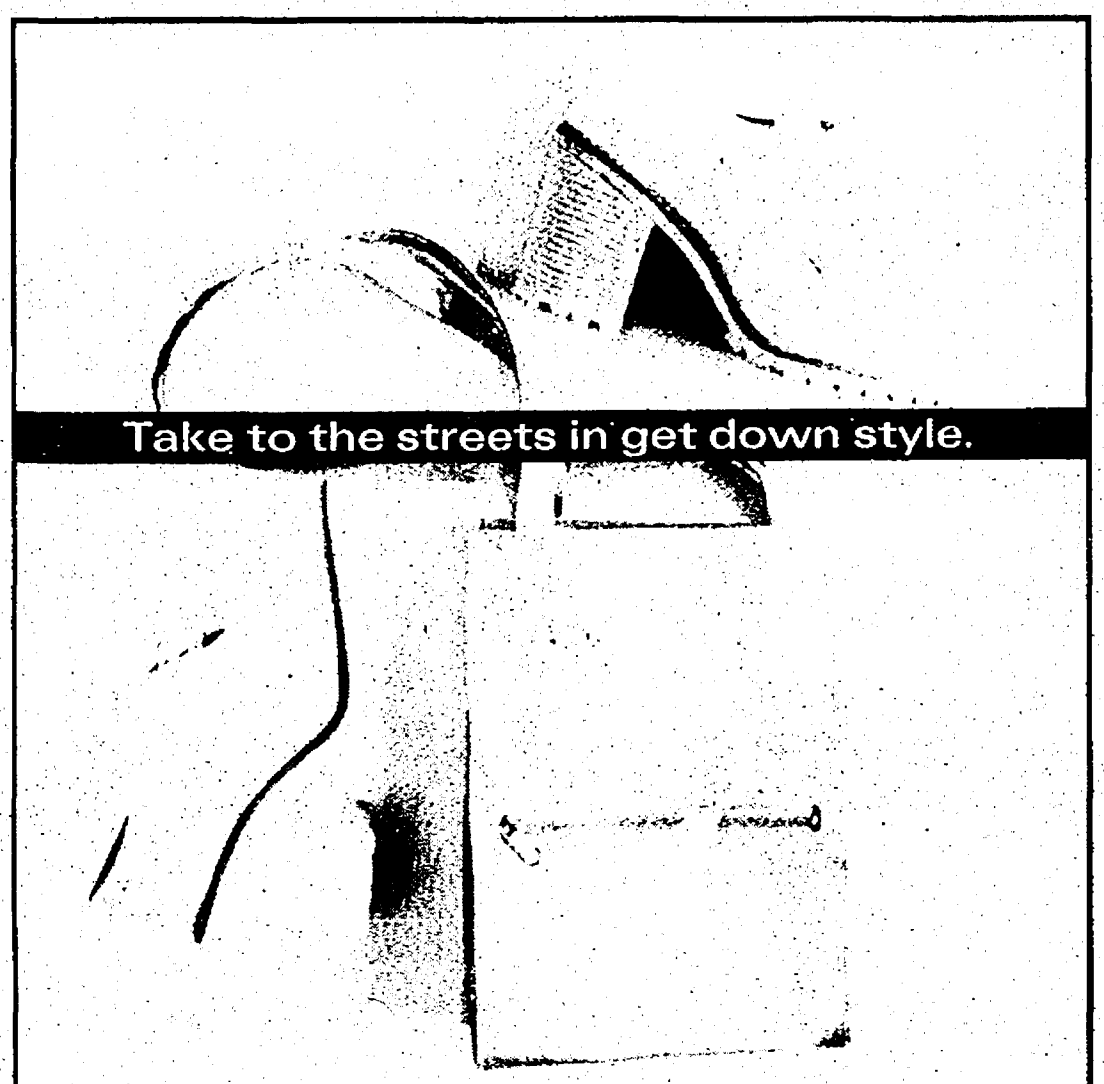
Kids will be able to stop at the Wigwam, Ted's Drive-In, Big Boy and other familiar places along the famous Woodward Avenue. This event is guaranteed to draw a huge crowd. There will be a minimal charge for this fun mini-cruise.

The city will also be providing slot cars for miniature car racing buffs. Races start at 2 p.m. and run until 5 p.m. The slot cars will be reminiscent of the '50s and kids (and adults) of all ages will be able to race them on an electric, self contained race track.

Other events include a giant slide, car bingo, hot lips contest.

In concert they will have: The Reflections, The Boys, B&R, The Satin Dolls and the Oakland County Traveling Music Show.

They will also provide a variety of food booths and T-shirts and trinkets will be for sale at the site.



Whether it's wool crepe or washed silk, designer duds, denim or a blue serge suit, cool white linen or mad tie-dye; any possible combination can be found along with all the fashionable footwear and accessories to match, try it on in Birmingham.

Original cruisers tell tales of old days

Marilyn Burgel, former Huntington Woods resident

"Black-and-white with an engine on it" – that's the quilt my son, Max, asked me to make. My artist daughter drew the first engine. My second son, a mechanical designer, altered this and made the engine templates for me. I also got a lot of free technical input from my husband, who works for Mopar, and my three sons. My fellow quilters in the Great Lakes Heritage Quilters' Guild encouraged me along the way.

In addition to the Chrysler 426 Hemi engine, Woodward Ave. and the old days of street racing in the Motor City are represented by the "Route" sign on the quilt's lower left side. A steering wheel, shifter and a racing flag are also incorporated into the design of the 60 by 60-inch quilt entitled "Power to the Max."

During the summer of 1980, my family was moving and we rented a 30-foot Jartran enclosed van. After a hard day of moving the household items, my friends and I were planning to go cruisin'.

We put a picnic table in the back, started with about four of us and picked up a hitchhiker with a boom box on the way to Woodward. Combine this with a cooler of beer and we had a mobile party! Our first stop was Northwood Shopping Center, and it didn't take long to fill the cargo bay with 50 or more people.

We went up and down Woodward picking up every hitchhiker and coercing any car full of girls to abandon their car and join the party! (Some came to save on the gas money!)

We had a great time that night and did not make it to bed until after 4 a.m. What great memories!

My husband's favorite young Aunt Debbie was in town and wanted to check out her nephew's new girlfriend. After cruising Woodward and a drive-in pit stop, she reported back to the family, "They were made for each other!" Now we've been married over 30 years, and

Avoid parking hangups: Ride the SMART way – free

SMART is offering free rides during The Woodward Dream Cruise '96 on Aug. 17. Since traffic is expected to be heavy and parking spaces at a premium during the events, taking the bus will be an easy and inexpensive way to get from event to event.

Spectators can enjoy the classic cars and other events in the participating communities by hoping on a SMART bus and cruising down Woodward Avenue free.

SMART Woodward service is free from 8 Mile in Ferndale to Ring Road in Birmingham. "We are proud to once again make it easier for Woodward Dream Cruise spectators and our regular customers to cruise up and down Woodward between events in each of the communities," said Richard Kaufman, general manager of SMART.

Special shuttle buses will run approximately every 20 minutes from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. the day of the event. Regularly scheduled Woodward buses will run as usual. Passengers should be aware that Woodward scheduled buses will encounter some delays due to The Woodward Dream Cruise event.

Bigfoot, the monster truck, roars into Ed Schmid Ford, one of the car show's major sponsors, for a three-day display. The new 1997 Ford Bigfoot is one of 16 racing, exhibition and display vehicles that has carried the Bigfoot name for over 20 years. This includes six state-of-the-art computer designed, tubular chassis race trucks. Winners of monster truck racing championships in 1990 and four straight from 1991 to 1995.

Northland Collision, one of the founding sponsors of the Ferndale Classic Car and Truck Show, is back as an active participant this year with their 1972 Mazeratti, which will be on display at this year's show — a shining example of the pride, quality and craftsmanship that best displays the philosophy at Northland Collision.

Step inside the cool air conditioning of the Magic Bag Theatre from 10 a.m.-3 p.m. and enjoy an indoor sock hop, including music and movies of the '50s-'70s. Then join the legendary Bo Diddley in concert at 8 and 10:30 p.m. You'll swear you've been transplanted to Beale Street in Memphis, Bourbon Street in New Orleans, or Chicago's Blues District. Tickets are required and available at the box office.

Enjoy our many vendors, including jewelry, ties, shirts, official Woodward Dream Cruise memorabilia, car related products and a great variety of food vendors. Join us in Ferndale for a great day.

Big winner: Last year's Dream Cruise best of show trophy went to Duane Schmlinski (right) and his red-and-white 1955 Chevrolet Bel Air. Presenting the trophy is the president and CEO of Credit Union One, a sponsor of the cruise.

This year's event also coincides with the 100th Anniversary of the American auto industry, no small celebration in the Motor City. Word of the '96 Cruise has spread beyond Detroit, publicized to auto enthusiasts far and wide and posted on the Internet.

Keeping the Centennial in mind, organizers are involving some older cars. "'50's and '60's are usually the most available classic cars," said Hall. "But I've had calls from people who are going to bring some from the '20s and '30s, of all makes and models."

With such a large gathering of auto lovers, of course the auto makers will be involved. "A lot of the car companies have taken space in the different communities," said Hall. Jeep will have a display in Birmingham, the Chevrolet/Geo Specialty Division will be in Pleasant Ridge, and Chrysler will feature 30 concept cars and classic Mopar street racers in Royal Oak.

To relieve potential parking hassles, SMART buses will offer a free Dream Cruise shuttle for the duration of the event, running from Eight Mile to Ring Road in Birmingham every 20 minutes. Each city may have a separate shuttle available as well.

According to Hall, the Cruise promises to be an honest media event. "Channel 7 will have a live broadcast Saturday night, with highlights from that day and live cutaways to, say, the Contours performing in Birmingham and other things happening live. WOMC Oldies 104.3 FM will also be broadcasting live all day."

Each participating community has a hotline for questions and a list of events in that area:

- Pleasant Ridge: (810) 542-7322

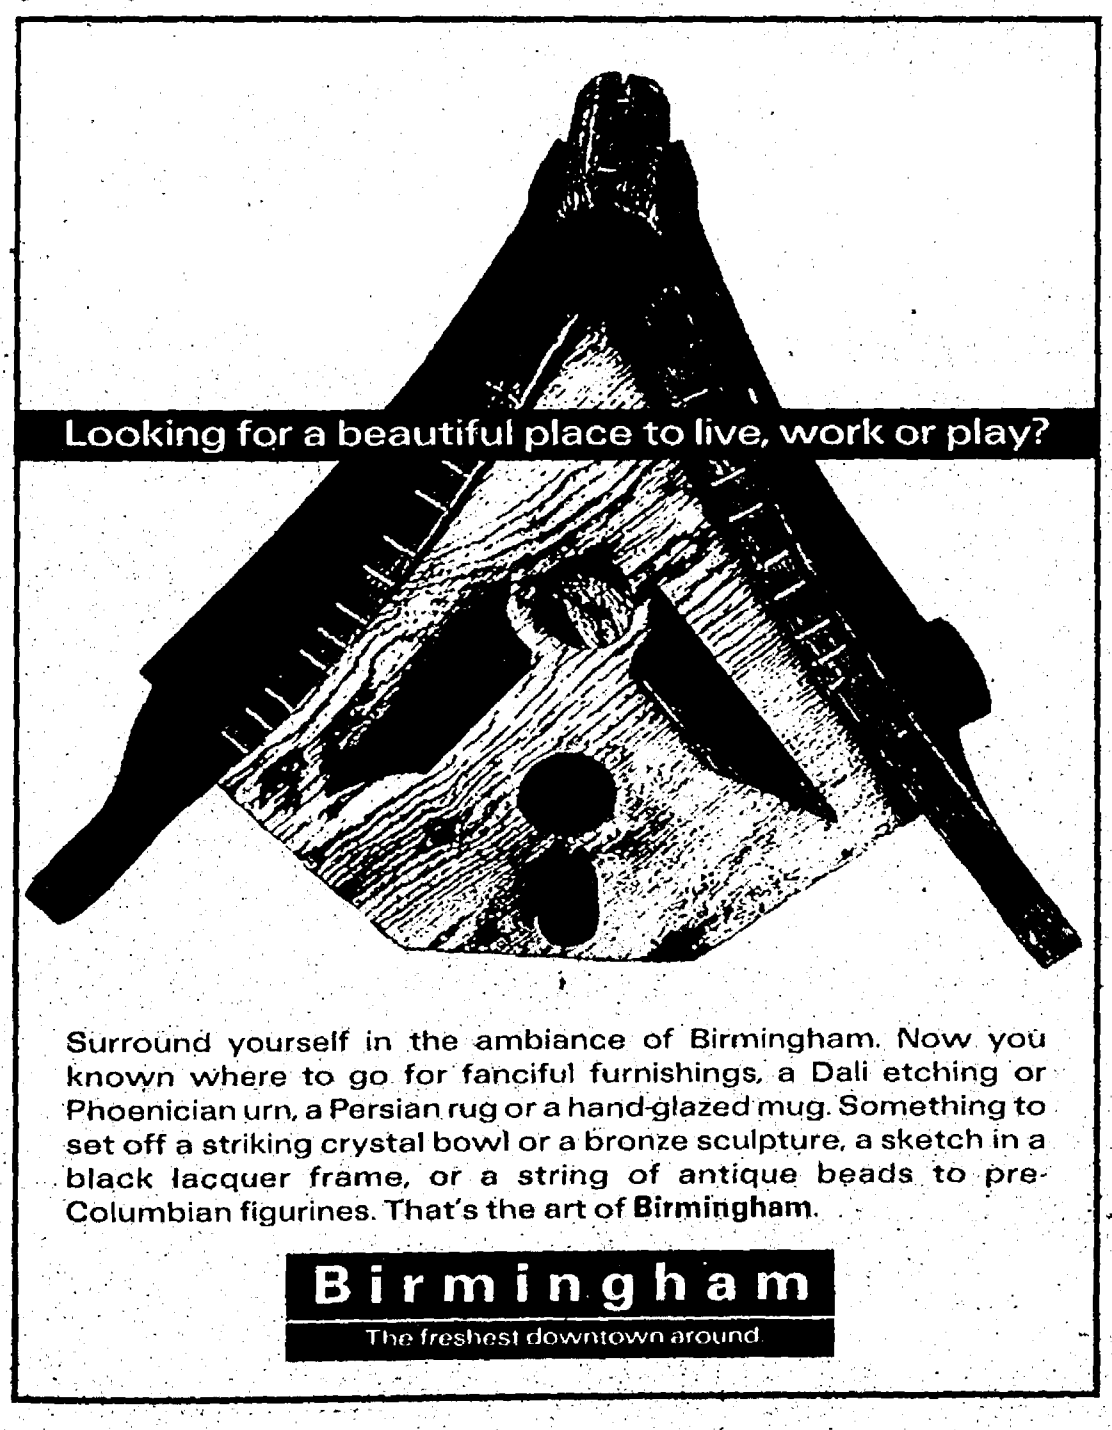
The Woodward Dream Cruise will take place Saturday, Aug. 17, 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. For details, call the official information line at (313) 953-2005.



Surround yourself in the ambiance of Birmingham. Now you known where to go for fanciful furnishings, a Dali etching or Phoenician urn, a Persian rug or a hand-glazed mug. Something to set off a striking crystal bowl or a bronze sculpture, a sketch in a black lacquer frame, or a string of antique beads to pre-Columbian figurines. That's the art of Birmingham.

"Bow Wow" the Nodding Dog remembers Woodward...

Boy, in those good old days I had a view of Woodward that was doggone great!

I was put in the rear window of a '66 where I'd nod to my followers.

I'm frayed now, and my nods are down, but I'm ready again to nod at the Big Woodward Cruise.

A Bird Drops on Woodward

It was the summer of '65 and my '62 'Vette was washed and waxed to its shining glory. Back then I washed it every day, anyways. I picked up my favorite girl – she looked beautiful in her white party dress. We hit the Totem Pole first and were cruisin' towards Ted's for dinner. The sky was clear and sunny except for one bird that flew over us and bombed her on that dress. What a mess.

Imagine this...a hot summer night in 1963, a new Buick convertible with the top down and a 16-year-old raring to go with instructions to be home in a few hours.

Later, I pulled into the driveway and dad was waiting for me. He checked the mileage not believing I drove over 100 miles up and down Woodward. GROUNDED AGAIN!

Anne Meek
Southfield, MI 48076

When you attend the Ferndale Classic Car and Truck show on Aug. 17, 1996, you'll see hundreds of makes, models and motors. Keep in mind as you stroll along admiring the "rides," every cruiser has stories to tell. They'll give you the life history of their car at the drop of a hat. I know the fabulous feeling I get when I shine up my ride before a cruise night or a show. By the way, you do want to hear about my car, right? My name's Anne Meek, and here's my story:

At the time, it wasn't a well-known fact, but the Little Old Lady from Pasadena had a rival right here in Ferndale--my grandmother!

Frances O'Dell lived on St. Louis. As the spring of 1971 burst forth, she decided she'd look around for a new car. She wanted something smaller than the 1963 red Olds 88 she'd been driving, so she sold the Olds to a nephew and headed over to Cauley-Serra Chevrolet on Woodward in Ferndale.

Frances knew exactly what she wanted--something smaller. Keep in mind that the early '70's was the era before fuel emission testing and many popular cars were big gas guzzlers. My grandmother just wanted a car to drive back and forth to Farmer Jack's on Nine Mile and to St. James Church on Sundays. And maybe a trip to Farmer's Market and Hagelstein's in Royal Oak.

So the salesman at Cauley-Serra sold her a lime green (hot color then!) 350 V-8 Camaro. I still have the original vehicle title. She paid $3,427.68 cash.

I wanted that car so badly! I was a junior in high school then. I would cruise Woodward with my friends in my mom's red Gremlin, which was fun, but what I would have given for just one night out in Grandma's Camaro!

Frances didn't drive the Camaro every day. I remember how she'd go out to her car in the garage and "warm it up." When she passed away in December of 1982, the Camaro only had 11,000 miles on it. After 11 years!

My uncle, Ben Simmons was the joint owner of the Camaro and kept it for a couple of years afterward. In August of 1985, he sold it to me for $1. Best buck I ever spent!

I had the Camaro restored in the spring of 1994. It took my body shop man five weeks. New grill, new skins, new paint job. The only modification I made to the original was a Kenwood stereo and dual exhaust system. The restoration was my 40th birthday present. I figured I may be getting older, but now I've got the ride I'd dreamed about in my high school days. By the way, I just rolled over 49,000 original miles on it the other day.

Stop by the Ferndale Classic Car and Truck show presented by the Ferndale Citizens' Benefit Foundation on Saturday, August 17, 1996 from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the corner of Nine Mile and Woodward. You'll see my Camaro and hundreds of other classic cars. The event is sponsored by Ed Schmid Ford, Credit Union One and Northland Collision. It's a terrific family fun event!

You bet: extra training works

Orchestrating knowledge: Carole Kowalik, education director for Professional Association Services, sets up training classes and seminars for Realtors.

■ 'Top producers are always looking for – how do I put it – something that takes them that extra step, one that might make them additional income, offer a higher level of service to customers, make the same amount of money in less time.'

Darwin Conley
national training instructor for Century 21

Techniques Realtors pick up in classes while pursuing professional designations or simple, single-topic informational seminars actually do pay dividends in the field.

"I was at a class we go through to get a designation Certified Residential Specialist," recalls Ron McNeal, a Realtor with the Prudential Preview Properties in Northville. "It involved an outlay of cash, a little time.

"One of the presenters talked about a technique he uses to help people make difficult decisions – future projection reflective close," McNeal said. "It's very useful for first-time buyers with concerns.

"You tell them to close their eyes and imagine six months from now. Most of the boxes are put away, you're sitting around a fire going in the fireplace. Ask them to think back to this time.

"Ask, 'Are you glad you made the decision to go up $500 (in the purchase offer) or are you sorry you didn't get the house?'

"The result is very, very gratifying," McNeal said. "They say they appreciate what I do, that it does help. Usually, when they think of it that way, they say, 'Yeah, it's worth it.'"

That specific sales technique resulted from a specific class. Had he not taken the class, McNeal conceded, he probably wouldn't have learned the technique.

Betty Bjarnesen (better known as Betty B), a Realtor with the Michigan Group in Livonia, said she's picked up people skills at seminars that have directly helped her in her work.

"I really like Rick DeLuca a lot," she said of the motivational speaker with a national schedule.

"He has a very practical concept of doing your business. With him, I think one of the most important things is getting back to people, thank-you notes, being personable with people, really listening to what they say," Bjarnesen said.

"Here's an absolute key. Be sure to send a thank-you note after you meet someone at open houses, floor calls. You send a thank-you note and follow up with a phone call.

"That's why people appreciate it – it's so down to earth and a lot of people don't take the time to do it," Bjarnesen said. "A lot of sales I've had were a result of thank-you notes."

Again, the technique isn't intuitive but something that had to be learned.

Major changes in the real estate business in recent years, especially in such areas as disclosure laws, buyer agency and fair housing, have fostered a need for on-going education beyond the six hours required annually to maintain a license, some agents believe.

"Now, the biggest thing is with personal assistants," said Carole Kowalik, director of education for Professional Association Services, the administrative arm of the Birmingham, Bloomfield, Rochester, South Oakland Association of Realtors.

"We're going to design a seminar for brokers and managers, and then for personal assistants and people who want to be," Kowalik said. "Personal assistants must be licensed to do certain things."

Knowledge has a powerful effect on self-esteem and performance.

"If you're uninformed, don't know, that's when you worry," Kowalik said.

Kowalik is a conduit of information, pulling together experts who can provide entertaining and informative seminars.

She described the elements of a successful session.

"Time must be short, 1-1/2 to two hours. Make it a reasonable fee, $35 on average. Try to do something central (to membership). We try to make it close to freeways."

Morning sessions are best, and Wednesdays and Thursdays are best avoided because that's when Realtors tour houses.

"The better informed an agent is, I think, the better service they're going to be to their client," Kowalik said.

Marge Fraser, president of the Real Estate Education Center, presents seminars to agents.

"The ones that are most beneficial, quite frankly, are how to work with buyers, how to work with sellers, how to enhance their income," Fraser said. "A good training session will leave a student with something of value they can take into the field and use."

Darwin Conley is a national training instructor for Century 21.

"The real estate industry is changing very quickly, especially in regard to automation," he said. "One example would be leads management, another communication.

"Top producers are always looking for – how do I put it – something that takes them that extra step, one that might make them additional income, offer a higher level of service to customers, make the same amount of money in less time."

But all agents could benefit by some extra training, Conley said.

"Only so many people are natural-born salespeople. The rest have to be taught," he said. "Most people I get in my classes need to be taught how to sell. A lot of people are afraid to push.

"We teach a consultative approach – educating, guiding counseling. Help a client make the best decision," Conley said.

Virginia Tatseos, a Realtor with Snyder, Kinney, Bennett and Keating in Birmingham, concedes that "it's very expensive and time consuming" to pursue professional designations.

But she believes it's the right thing to do.

"It makes me a better agent, makes me more professional, makes me more aware of laws and their fine tuning," she said. "I feel it's the same as a doctor going to a convention and learning new techniques or reading articles in a medical journal."

More knowledgeable customers have higher expectations, said Paul Tozzi, an associate broker with RE/MAX Properties and education committee chairman for the Western Wayne Oakland County Association of Realtors.

"People want more than someone who will put up a sign and take out an ad in the paper," he said. "They're looking for a higher level of professionalism."

Swimming pool rules may not discriminate

REAL ESTATE QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Q. Our association is contemplating publishing pool rules but is concerned about a potential violation of the Fair Housing Amendments recently adopted. Do you have any guidelines which you can provide to assist us in that endeavor?

A. Obviously, you should have your community association attorney review any proposed rules or restrictions on the use of recreational facilities to ensure, to the extent possible, that they do not violate any statute or rule promulgated by Congress.

For example, rules that unreasonably restrict the use of swimming pools by children violate the familial status of the act. Additionally, posting an "adult community" sign at the entrance to a community that does not qualify as an adult community is a violation of the act.

Moreover, age restrictions must be based upon reasonable health and safety considerations. Noise, for example, is not a health or safety measure. Of course, be cautious in regard to any restrictions in this area.

Q. Can you give me a brief overview of the law in regard to losing property by tax sale and what rights, if any, the land owner has under those circumstances?

A. A property owner who loses his property in a tax foreclosure is entitled to redeem that property from a tax sale purchaser. This right of redemption lasts for six months after the tax sale if the purchaser meets the statutory notice requirements. However, failure on the part of purchaser at the tax sale to serve proper notice tolls the running of the six-month-notice period.

Failure to do so will result in the tolling of the statute of limitations, but if proper notice is given, the land owner could lose the land.

You are best advised to consult with an attorney regarding the intricate requirements of the statute.

Robert M. Meisner is an Oakland County area attorney concentrating his practice in the areas of condominiums, real estate, corporate law and litigation. You are invited to submit topics that you would like to see discussed in this column, including questions about condominiums, by writing Robert M. Meisner, 30200 Telegraph Road, Suite 467, Bingham Farms MI 48025. This column provides general information and should not be construed as legal opinion.

WASHINGTON (AP) – Orders to U.S. factories jumped 1.9 percent in May, the third straight advance and the biggest in nine months, as the manufacturing sector continued to rebound from last year's doldrums.

Orders are considered a key gauge of U.S. manufacturing strength and an increase could mean a pickup in production and job growth.

The report came as policy-makers from the central bank, known as the Federal Reserve, began the second of two days of debate over whether to raise short-term interest rates to slow the economy to prevent inflation from getting out of control.

The Commerce Department said Wednesday that orders for both durable and nondurable goods totaled a seasonally adjusted $315.9 billion, up from $310 billion in April.

But April's initial estimate of a 0.1 percent decline was revised up to a 0.2 percent gain after March's 1.7 percent advance.

The May increase, in line with analysts' expectations, was the largest since orders increased 2.7 percent last August.

Until recently, manufacturing had fallen behind in the current economic expansion.

In a separate report, the Labor Department said first-time claims for jobless benefits fell by 4,000 last week – the lowest level in a month. Analysts said the range was consistent with slowing job growth.

The Commerce Department said orders for durable goods – items such as appliances and aircraft expected to last more than three years – shot up 3.4 percent, the steepest since a 5.1 percent advance last August. They had fallen 2.5 percent in April.

Meanwhile, a measure of consumer confidence taken weekly by ABC News and Money magazine hit its highest mark since January 1990.

The Consumer Comfort Index, based on polling about the economy, personal finances and buying, is hovering above the average it maintained before the 1990-91 recession, ABC said Wednesday.

Orders for nondurable goods, such as chemicals and clothing, managed a 0.1 percent gain following April's 2.4 percent surge.

The backlog of unfilled orders increased 0.4 percent, the eighth advance in nine months. A growing backlog suggests businesses may have to increase production facilities and manpower to meet demand.

Inventories, another measure of future activity, fell 0.2 percent, the third straight decline.

Shipments, a measure of current activity, rose 1.1 percent, the fourth gain in a row.

Orders for nonmilitary capital goods excluding aircraft edged up 0.1 percent after April's 3.3 percent decline. These orders often are a barometer of business plans to expand and modernize and have been a major source of economic strength during the current expansion.

Among durable goods, the volatile transportation component jumped 12.2 percent, wiping out a 12.1 percent loss a month earlier. Much of the rebound was due to aircraft orders.

Still, excluding transportation, orders rose 0.4 percent, the fifth increase in six months.

Other gains included a 2.3 percent increase in bookings for industrial machinery and equipment and a 1.5 percent advance in orders for primary metals.

But orders for electronic and other electrical equipment dropped 2.1 percent, the fourth decline in five months.

Title insurance protects you from unpleasant surprises

(NAPS) – When buying a home, it's important to remember what you don't know can cost you.

As an example illustrating the need for precautions, the American Land Title Association pointed to the couple who purchased a residence from a widow and her daughter, the only known heirs of the husband and father who died without leaving a will.

Soon after the sale, a man appeared – claiming he was the son of the late owner by a former marriage. As it turned out, he indeed was the son of the deceased man. This legal heir disapproved of his father's remarriage and had vanished when the wedding took place. Nonetheless, the son was entitled to a share of the value of the home, which meant an expensive problem for the unwary couple purchasing the property.

Although the absence of a will hindered discovery of the missing heir in a title search of the public records, ALTA said that owner's title insurance issued at the time of the real estate transaction would have financially protected the couple from the claim by the missing heir. For a one-time charge at closing, owner's title insurance will safeguard against problems including those even an exhaustive search will not reveal.

ALTA reminded that owner's title insurance is necessary to fully protect a home buyer. Lender's title insurance, which usually is required by the mortgage lender, serves as protection only for the lending institution.

ALTA is the national association of the abstracting and title insurance industry. Members of the organization search, review and insure land titles to protect real estate investors including home buyers and mortgage lenders.

For free information on owner's title insurance, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Owner's Title Insurance, American Land Title Association, Suite 705, 1828 L Street, N.W., Washington. D.C. 20036. Questions may be directed to an ALTA member listed in the Yellow Pages.

Builders apparently are learning that speculation doesn't always pay.

America's housing industry has marched in lock-step with demand ever since the residential construction excesses of the 1980s and the economic recession that followed.

During the past five years, homebuilders have operated at a pace neither far ahead nor far behind the rate of construction necessary to maintain balance in supply, reports U.S. Housing Markets, a tracking service based in Livonia.

During the 1980s, homebuilders pulled permits for an average of 1.4 million units per year, the service reported.

That ranged from a low of 986,000 in the 1981 recession year to a high of 1.8 million at the peak of multifamily fever in 1986, the last year of generous rental property tax shelters.

With an estimated 1.3 million residential units permitted in 1995, the last five years have seen an annual average of 1.2 million units authorized nationally.

Household growth, meanwhile, has averaged 1.1 million for the same five year period, U.S. Housing Markets indicated. That is very much in balance with the supply of new units, especially when taking into account average demolitions of 70,000 units per year.

A gradual, balanced growth is better than boom-and-bust cycles for the financial health of the industry.

Builders in the Midwest probably have been better than those in other parts of the country at building on household formation rather than speculation on a more consistent basis, said Brian Bragg, editor of U.S. Housing Markets.

"It's the conservative nature of business here," Bragg said. "It tends to be more blue collar, traditional. Don't get too wild."

Builders in Southeastern Michigan, however, are still dependent on the auto industry _ but getting better.

"They tend to learn over time," Bragg said. "They tend to depend less when there's good times rolling that it will go on forever."

If the country avoids recession, the rate of household formations will increase to an average of about 1.25 million households annually during the next five years, U.S. Housing Markets projects.

And there will be a growing demand from maturing Baby Boomers for second homes.

The greatest household growth in the past five years has been in the 45-to-55 age group as the first wave of baby Boomers arrived.

This group includes nearly 3.3 million more households than it did in 1990, the service reported. About 75 percent was in the homeowners category, just 25 percent renters, as might be expected from a middle-aged group.

Now, persons born from the early 1960s to the early 1970s have moved into the prime years of their household-forming activity, U.S. Housing Markets indicated.

These 25-to-34 year olds have in the last five years left rentals to purchase houses at a greater rate than the preceding generation, which was stymied by rampant housing inflation and high interest rates in the 1980s.

Doubled-up living arrangements, including the formation of extended-family households of unrelated adults, has increased over the years and isn't particularly good news to the homebuilding industry.

Historically, those living arrangements were widespread only in hard economic times.

In the last dozen years, doubled-up households have grown from 3.3 million to 5.2 million, from a 3.9 share of all households in 1983 to 5.2 last year, U.S. Housing Markets reported.

"It certainly takes away from present demand," Bragg said.

Tips on selling a home

(NAPS) – If you're planning to put your house on the market and want to sell it quickly, these proven tips from the experts at the CertainTeed Home Institute can help:

■ Make sure the appearance of your home is neat and clean as prospects drive up to it. If the exterior needs some touch-up painting, it is worthwhile to do so where needed. Also consider planting some flowers and shrubs.

■ Bake an apple pie and place fresh flowers throughout the house. Both not only make a home smell nicer, but add to its charm.

■ If closets are packed tightly, remove some of the items and place in the garage. Today's homebuyers like plenty of closet space and filled closets give the feeling that they are too small.

■ Upgrade the insulation levels in your attic. Today, many institutions offer energy efficient mortgages so if your home is insulated to today's energy standards it will potentially qualify a greater pool of buyers and possibly help you sell your home faster.

■ Caulk and weatherstrip around windows, doors, electrical outlets and baseboards, again, for energy efficiency sake.

■ Make the inside of your home bright and cheery by turning on the lights and opening up the window blinds.

■ Get rid of clutter from the basement and try painting the basement floor battleship gray in a non-latex paint to make it appear clean and bright.

■ Lastly, make sure your home is neat and tidy inside. Potential buyers want to picture themselves in the home and it is hard to do this if the home appears sloppy.

For more information on selling a home, contact the CertainTeed Home Institute for a free copy of the "Energy Checklist For Home Selling" at P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, PA 19482 or call 1-800-782-8777. You can also visit the Institute on the Internet at http://www/certainteed.com

New faucet designed for hard water

Who hasn't had problems at time or another with leaky, drippy faucets?

As evidenced by recent studies, most consumers see hard water as the major culprit for their faucet problems. To provide consumers with an alternative to the age-old nemesis, Gerber Plumbing Fixtures Corp. has introduced a complete new line of Hardwater™ Faucets.

These are the first faucets specifically marketed for use in hard water applications.

The new single-handle design is based on Gerber's extensive research and field testing. The result is a more durable, longer-lasting faucet. At the heart of the new design is a special Ceramaflow™ ceramic disc cartridge which protects against the damaging, corrosive effects of hard water. A faucet's cartridge regulates the water flow. To stop leaks and drips throughout years of continuous use, its components must resist wear and deterioration caused by hard water.

The ceramic discs in Gerber cartridges are harder and more durable than the stainless steel or plastic components used in faucet cartridges today by several other manufacturers.

Referring to the Ridgeway's Extension of Moh's Hardness Scale, the diamond has a hardness of 15, while ceramic rates a 12. Steel has a hardness of about 6, and plastic even less at around 3 or 4.

The Gerber's ceramic disk cartridge's near-diamond hardness resists wear from friction and prevents damage from hard water. It delivers years of reliable operation and precise flow and control. Gerber backs its Ceramaflow™ cartridge with a lifetime warranty against leaks and drips.

All of Gerber's new Hardwater™ Faucets use the same ceramic disc cartridges. If replacement is ever needed, it's quick and easy. Gerber is the only manufacturer to offer ceramic disc cartridges throughout a full line of single-handle faucets for kitchen, bath, lavatory and shower applications.

Meeting ADA requirements, the easy-to-use loop handle and trim body design enhance appearance and add value to any kitchen or bath.

Many features which cost extra on most manufacturers single-handle faucets are standard on Gerber's new Hardwater™ Faucet.

For example, Gerber is the only manufacturer to offer loop hand as standard throughout the line. It is also the only one to make its single-handle lavatory faucets available with or without escutcheon.

A Gerber's is the only one to offer 16-inch copper supply tubes with its chrome faucets as well as polished brass and colors. Packed unbent, 16-inch straight copper supply tubes decrease installation time with less chance of tube damage.

The Hardwater™ single-handle faucets have a body core of solid brass and feature copper or brass water ways. The new faucets are the latest addition to Gerber's full line of high-quality faucets, lavatories and lavanities as well as water-saving toilets, urinals and bidets.

For more information, write to: Gerber Plumbing Fixtures Corp., Dept. F95/H.I.T., 4656 West Touhy Avenue, Chicago, IL 60646.

Home's efficiency is part of price

While size, livability and location are all important factors when looking for a home, don't overlook what it costs to heat and cool. Simply put, the more energy efficient it is, the more you'll be able to afford in mortgage payments.

Four basic areas of energy efficiency you should examine include:

■ Optimum amounts of insulation, caulking and weatherstripping.

■ Energy efficient windows and doors.

■ A high-efficiency heating and cooling system.

■ Energy efficient lighting and appliances.

Today, a properly insulated home not only helps you save on your fuel bills, it can help to improve indoor comfort. Many experts recommend that quality insulation such as CertainTeed Building Insulation or InsulSafe III® Blown-In Fiber Glass should be installed to today's recommended R-values in the attic and sidewalls. Insulation should also be installed in the floors, garages and crawlspaces and around the water heater, pipes and within and around ducts.

In the area of windows and doors, look for energy-efficient models like low-e double paned windows, which provide three times the efficiency of single pane glass for added energy savings.

Perhaps most important in terms of your annual energy bills, is your central heating and cooling system. Have a professional evaluate or test the system. In addition, look for oil and gas furnace modifications such as higher efficiency burners and automatic electronic thermostats.

Lastly, but still important are the lighting and appliances in a home. Perhaps the best way to evaluate the efficiency of major appliances, such as dishwashers, waterheaters and furnaces, is to look for the bright ENERGY GUIDE label to help you determine the annual operating costs.

In the area of lighting, remember that a 40-watt fluorescent bulb gives off more light than a 100-watt incandescent bulb at half the energy costs.

Free Energy Guide

An informative Energy Checklist for Buying and Selling is available free from the CertainTeed Home Institute, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, PA 19482 or by calling 1-800-782-8777. You can also see the checklist on the Internet at http://www.certainteed.com

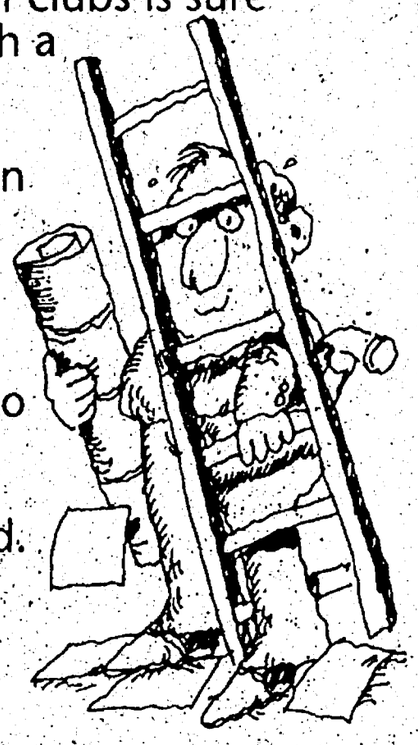
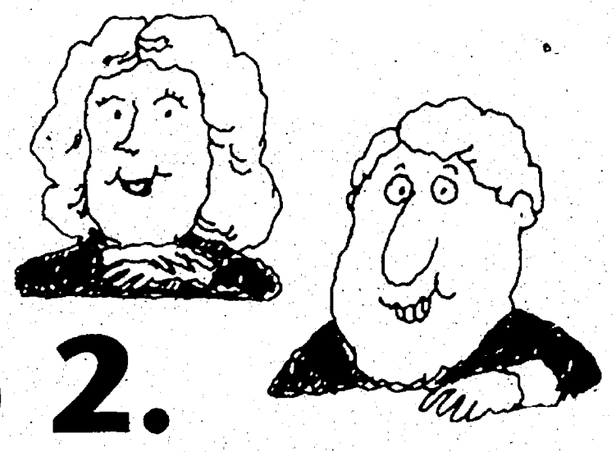
How to make money in three easy steps.

Step 1.

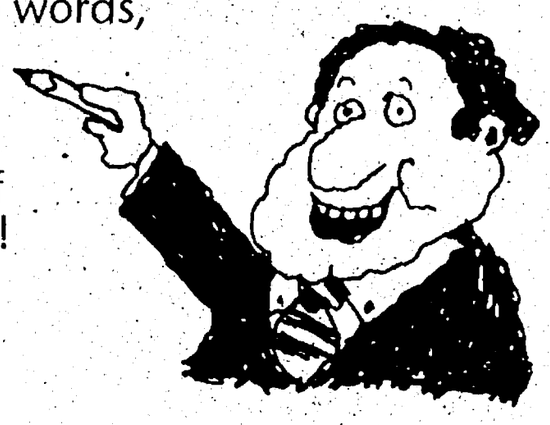
Sell a solution! Your old rattle trap is a teen's dream machine. That old set of golf clubs is sure to be a big hit with a beginner. Here's the point: Your former treasure can bring another pleasure. And if you've got a skill to market or service you'd like to provide–there's someone looking for you in classified.





Step 2.

Aim for an audience. After you've selected a solution for another to seize, bring that person to life. Think about your product or service and its original value to you, then detail its features and benefits to another individual. When you put those benefits into words, other like you will find value too. And that's of value to you!



Step 3.

Contact classified. Give us a call. You'll cash in on the speed and effectiveness of the dynamic classified marketplace. Each day, highly motivated readers are seeking services and solutions for a variety of needs. Turn to the classified pages, and you'll turn your item to be sold into money! It's as easy as 1-2-3!

BUY IT. SELL IT. FIND IT. CLASSIFIED.
